A ROYAL FLUSH.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

We played at cards, my love and I;
I took her hand, no one was by,
Then drew—I drew her nearer me,
And, such a queenly maid was she,
When to her cheeks the blood did rush
I caught, and held a royal flush.
—Columbus Times.

We played at cards, my friend and I,
He drew a "flush." Well, was it fair?
He took my hand, quite unaware—
Like other maids I'm somwhat shy,
The daring deed caused me to blush—
Holding both hands, he drew the flush!

DR. DEADSHOOT'S RETORT.

A STORY OF THE VARIETY SHOWS.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH FOR THE CLIPPER, BY H. LLEWELLYN WILLIAMS.

In a sitting room in a hotel a man was engaged in a curious occupation. He was ferreting in a Spanish costume like a ladies' tailor, looking out for defects. And yet he was a man manly above other characteristics.

"Dr." Kaine Tucke was indeed what the French, undersized since the Great Napoleon's murderous wars, call a colossus—that is, he was over six feet high, and massively built. He was a rather handsome man, with dark complexion, particularly piercing and yet, large black eyes, rarely frowning even when he stared; a long moustache of brown color; cheeks always smoothly shaven, and a chin tuft, not very full or long.

He spoke French with tolerably good accent, and his English was not too American for the British to disapprove his exhibition as well as the French were now doing. At London, in fact, where they love a good gunner and rider, his double accomplishment of breaking glass balls while galloping in the well kept grounds of the aristocracy and the Alexandra Park had always ensured him a London engagement.

His skill and steadiness of hand and nerve with small arms were remarkable; he dared to outline the delicate hand of a woman on a board with rifle bullets; he could cut steel rings off her curls, while she was swinging on a trapeze bar. As for breaking eggs, perforating coin and smashing bottles, he was renowned.

In all countries his American appellative of "Dr. Deadshoot" was at once acknowledged correct. Proud and haughty of his excellence, he would never grant that even an accident was possible.

It was not likely, then, that this man had any man milliner ideas in connection with the Andalusian dress, which might, as he held it up, be seen as intended for a figure much slighter than his own.

It was for his companion—the lovely Mercedes—the lady who trusted in his dexterity, and let him employ her as a target.

For a long time he had a colored boy to assist in his experiments. But this Louisianian died at Liverpool while he was at the Royal in a border piece, and he was obliged to have a holiday at London while looking out to replace him.

In going the rounds of the theatres, he dropped in at Spangler's Cirque, where he was struck by the beauty and cleverness of "Cibouletta." She was dancing her famous Bullfighter's Pas, on horseback, without the pad, and dashingly she wore the crimson velvet vest, very short and without flaps, laced with gold and hung with sequins and pearls. She had muscular legs if not fine ones, and Prof. Nocturne had painted her for the Academy in the celebrated olive tights, which made a sensation like Lady Chesterfield's paler ones in the Merry Monarch's Court. Her hair was very long, and of raven black with bluish gleams; her face was very small, with no brow to speak of, and a bang plastered down on that little, with kiss me quick curlets. Her features were dainty, and her eyes black diamonds, blazing in the dark—people said. Her lips were large and bright red.

So Spanish was she that nobody but would have laughed had she continued as Louise Pagot, daughter of the Salle Valentino flower girl. A Parisian? Pooh, pooh! So she "worked the Spanish racket" all over the continent—except in Spain.

Kaine fell in love with her, and, what was stranger, she liked him more than anybody she had ever met. The folks in the circus said that it was a fancy—but it threatened to last.

Moreover, on the anniversary of some event in her life, a few months hence, Mercedes promised to wed the American. That would put an end to his fits, for he was jealous and suspicious.

She would think it now could she see him the moment after he had drawn from the shield of the arm of the body a little note folded up small.

And yet it was not what he had expected—in other words, a love letter for the girl. Indeed, how would a lover rely on the note reaching her hands by this secret route? It was something stronger and more subtle than love—it was spite.

Thus ran the lines, 'n a scrawl with a bad pen in that vile ink, "mothered," and thinned with vinegar from the cruet, of barrooms:

"Lyttel Tonye ye Clowne is a very lucky fellow. Ask Mercedes. The other Jockied One."

Kaine turned pale; he dropped the dress, and uttered one of those extravagant oaths never heard in full beauty but from an American.

He crushed up the warning, which he believed completely, so far from exciting none had Mercedes been of late, and he rushed to the window to get a breath of air.

From the height he could see out on the Boulevard. By a strange coincidence, he commanded a view of the Varietes Cafe-Concert, where he appeared. In front of the two doorways were three life-size posters: Himself as the "Shootist" in the centre. He faced the right and seemed to aim at the figure on that billboard; a droll fantastic clown in mediæval jester's dress, a regular Triboulet of Hugo, with the name in affected Old English type, "Lyttel Tonye ye Clowne." The third poster represented Archie Gumpertz, the jockey, in his silver and azure barred jacket, waving his whip and singing his well known sporting song, "Winning with the Hands Held Down!"

Kaine had not a doubt that it was Jockey Archie who thus denounced the faithless girl.

But the portrait of himself, or the cool evening breeze, reminded him that it was not becoming in a dead shot to give way to hasty brutality.

In a country where the duello is still winked at he had more means than another to revenge his wrongs.

"It would be playing on a dead cert.," he muttered.

With his usual calm, he went down to the clerk's office.

The chief waiter, proud to address the great man for whom several press writers and sketch artists were hanging round, daunted to approach, advanced, and said:

"What shall I say when Madame comes in, as Monsieur is going out?"

Kane lighted a cigar before answering:

"I am going over to the tavern next to the thetre to dine. Then I have to stroll along the street so that I shall go straight to the 'shop' when I get through."

"Funny lot, these pro.'s," whispered the head waiter to his lieutenant, "him and that splendid Spanish gal are matched to travel in double harness, and I wager that they don't care as much for one another as he for the ace of hearts through which he puts a bullet any night with his back to it and aiming by a mirror."

Meanwhile the deadshot continued his walk. He had forgotten all about dinner in his brown study.

This woman might have been happy as a queen! He had a ranch in Montana to retire on, which, in its pleasant season, was delicious as a dream. He had lifted her out of the arena of hard work and an old age of misery, for she took no more thought of the morrow, while she was enjoying "agood screw" than a butterfly.

"But why has she preferred such a fellow as that little mugger, the paltry fantosh, the Little Clown, in short, to me, or to the Jockey who, at least, risks his neck every performance, in jumping on a speedy horse barebacked, in spurred boots? Why, why?"

He could find no answer.

A roar of laughter and a round of applause from a saloon, which he would otherwise have passed, caused him to look in. Over a screen, half way up the bar, he could, thanks to his stature, see a crowd of revellers, acclaiming the feat of one of their number.

At the lunch counter, for it was a place conducted on English lines, a man of slim and agile formation was getting down from his high stool, after having finished bread and cheese and a glass of ale, in a singularly novel manner.

Turning his back to the counter, which was guarded by a brass bar, standing out a few inches, he glided through with his hands first at this interstice; then bending round over the top of the stool, he snaked through it chair over the first rungs, and then once more turning, he came through between the last rungs and that above it, where he stood on his hands, while he drew the rest of his frame clean out; he had nothing more to do than execute a double handspring and alight on his feet.

The mob of admirers did well to applaud. Prominent among them, most noisy in begging the acrobat to have another drink on the strength of that "good bit of business," was a tall, dry, spare man, in a sportsman's ulster of tweed plaid, who wore under this dress a stage jockey costume; the boots appeared, and he had the silk cap in his pocket.

"It is the Jockey," muttered Kaine. "Ignoble hound, he claps hands in honor of Little Clown—he is just the one to write a letter showing up a drab—Pshaw! I cannot fight either of them."

As he turned away, indignant, but ashamed that he was wronged in favor of such insignificant rivals, the flash of his eye must have been caught by the Jockey, for he suddenly turned his eyes.

"Talking of 'histing in your pison,'" said Gumpertz, abruptly, as the filled glasses were pushed forward to the carousers, "if I were you, Little Tony, I should be on my guard."

"Against lush?" questioned Tony Parigot, "my doctor says I can stand any quantity up to my turn of life."

"Oh, I am not thinking of that kind of a doctor," replied Archie, sipping his hot cognac, and watching the effect of his shot with his steady grey eyes. "I mean the doctor who administers lead pills only—Old Deadshoot. Do not say that it is a slander, for I no longer believe you or her. I saw you with the Spanish girl in a cab, and it is not any good your denying it."

On the contrary, the clown gave a wink of intense meaning. The other knew that he was comprised among the defeated by this latest victor. But instead of replying to him bitterly, he locked arms with him and drew him towards the street door.

It was to show him in the front saloon a poster of the Deadshootist. The extended, but bent, arm held a revolver, and was taking aim at a young woman in tights who smilingly showed a card—the bullet had already sped and knocked the spots out of the pasteboard, literally.

"That differs from most of our show bill printing stuff," observed the Jockey," it is absolute gospel. He can shoot, and no glozing that over as the cook can fly specks on the cream cake."

"Have you been telling him ——"

"Me? I have quite enough to do to get away before he pills me. But my engagement terminates on Saturday next. I am booked for the Birmingham Crystal Star—and, honest, I am not weeping at going far from Spain! Have another?"

"No," said little Tony sharply.

A few minutes after, he went out alone, which was not an usual thing, on the main street, just in the twilight before the new suns, the gas and the electric light, blaze out, "whin most wanted," as the Irishman says.

It was chilly, but people were numerous and bustling. A dull clamor, mingled with cracking of whips, blowing of whistles, and the trumpeting of horse cars, made Tony miserable rather than lively.

"The Jockey is twice my weight," he mused, "and was a spider pugilist once. And if he slings his hook, it looks as if I was left to be pounded."

At the corner he stopped, from a jam of vehicles blocking the way. A crowd gathered, not wholly for that reason, and watched a man who hung something like a harp on a post, screwed it on here and there, sniffed at some joints in the pipes of which it was formed, struck a match on his trousers leg, and touched off the frame. In an instant it burst into jets of fire and in a scroll border shone:

"Dr. Deadshoot Will Shoot Tonight."

"Le Comble du Tir ce Soir—Au Ziguezague!" and a hand pointed to the Variety Theatre.

"Devil take him!" the clown was muttering when a sort of furry ball rolled up beside him and a pair of black eyes darted all their lustre on his own.

"Loulou?" he said, in mixed dismay and surprise. "You look like a Japanese tufty lapdog; all fur sticking out and nothing much good for anything inside."

"Eh? a nice return for my buying the only Thibetan puppy dog down mantle in the market to be compared to a vile cur! and a nice return for my losing my dinner to run out on the street to give you the tip. Look here, Tony, you will have to tread careful. I do not know what is up, but he is walking the boulevard like a lion loose. He, mind you, who is usually cool as iced cucumber. We ought to have dined together ——"

"Well, well?" for the young woman drawled, while glancing wistfully around.

"He went out without more than saying he was going to go to the theatre after a walk. Say what you like, I know he is upset. Thought, too, I should 'fetch' him with the new Spanish dress in which, you rogue, you attired yourself, at the costumer's to give a warning. Oh, Tony, if he does know, we will get all the warning we want this side of you know where ——"

She pointed with a finger, loaded with rings over her glove, in a downward direction.

"He has never said anything to—anybody," he said, suppressing the allusion to the Jockey. "Would he take it out of one?"

"Of both. Say, Tone, it is this way when whittled to a fine point, as he says; when he comes to the stage, if he looks risky to go near—I am going to step it."

"Step it?"

"Yes, quit—I can get right into Easy Rose's shoes as the Harvest Queen, in the pantomime for Easter, at Manchester Princess of Wales'—do you see—and it ain't good enough for me to stay and be shot, is it?"

Tony made a wry face.

"Lor, what a funny little chap you are!" and, forgetting her alarm, she gave a sweet and silvery laugh on the street, which warmed the cockles of the old passengers' hearts.

"You might keep your veil down," growled the clown. "Your picture is in all the windows, and somebody who sees us chumming like this will report onto us. But, as you talk about leaving me in the larch, how about our engagement? Mons. Forestier will haul you up before the police magistrate for breaking the contract, even in England."

"Haul up your granny!" said the little faced flirt, triumphantly. "Do you think I have been three weeks in the Zigzag, and not stringing old Forestier already?"

"Gracious! him too?"

The woman was no doubt about to deny this hint that she was providing a successor to the clown, if the tie were shot off by Kaine Tucke, but at this instant she saw somebody in the stream of passers to frighten her, and darted into a cab waiting with open door.

It was the American who came along, smoking an exquisite cigar and enjoying every inch of it. He did not see the monkey face, as Tony now thought it, in the disappearing cab window, but, seeing the clown, he just gave him the nod a comrade was entitled to as he strode on.

"All's serene," muttered Tony; "and yet she is not the jolly little incubus to be shook off for nothing. What can he do any way, if he is jealous and has been given the office? It was only gammon to put it out that he would marry her. I have it," he went on, "it is a piece of her cunning, to see if I have courage or not. If I am frightened, she will toss me over, as she did Archie, and has the shootist. Come to that, I will show her that courage is often contained in small packets, but the quality is not thereby deteriorated."

He was playing with his "family," in the last piece, a medley operetta, a burlesque "Hash of the Year's Events." So he had time before him.

And yet, he could not keep away to his own time, when, in the run of things, Kaine Tucke and the woman would be "done" and gone.

The first man to spy him at the stage door was the manager himself. He was a restless little red man, who wore gold rimmed, smoked glass spectacles, but he could hardly have recognized one of his "stars," for he barely bobbed his head.

"What's the matter with the Foxy One tonight?" asked Tony of the doorkeeper.

"Hush, Mlle. Mercedes has not come to call, and nobody dare tell M. Tuck that she is late."

"Sloped, by George," muttered the clown. "The sky is getting blue."

Nevertheless, as he went along the lobby, out of which opened the men's dressing rooms, he heard no particular riot in Kaine Tucke's.

"Why does old Forestier show so much distress?" meditated the clown. "I know; he fears he will be accused of helping her to levant."

Spite of his terror, he could not help laughing at this little woman, who wound all these strands round her little finger.

Clack! a weapon was going on cock. He hesitated, and then returned to the American's room, where he knew a peep hole commanded the interior.

The Shooter was arranging his guns while awaiting his confederate. He whistled a negro dance tune, while lovingly handling the arms of precision.

The one which he used for his great act with Mlle. Mercedes gleamed there on the table top. It was heavy, old fashioned in butt, at least; this was of ebony, incrusted with gold and silver inlay, worth much money, but the barrel was of plain steel, smooth and bright as glass—an instrument of mathematical exactness.

"A boy could not miss a nut chucked up at twelve paces with that beauty," thought little Tony, while a cold shiver crept over him.

At this moment Kaine vanished by another door. He was impatient at the delay of his consort. Besides, the uproar of the audience at the finale of an item in the programme showed him that his time was at hand.

Tony's face in the gloom of the corridor, twitched like an ape's, for he thought of palming himself off as a man of bravery and yet do it with assurance of incurring no risk.

It would pay him, too, in the way of notoriety when he let the truth out. His success was due to his inventing fresh tricks, something every day to keep his world talking of him.

He darted into the dressing room, snatched up the pistol with the ebony stock and examined it well though quickly.

"Bless us and save us," he thought, "it is a conjurer's barker. When cocked, the load falls into the breach and a prepared cartridge does the job. Why, this is my pudding!"

And with the glee of one squirrel finding another's hoard, he proceeded to open the hidden cartridge and substitute for its ball one of his own concoction, which would disperse in the air.

Hearing steps, he hastened to lay down the trick weapon re-"tricked" and steal away to his room.

Here he heard noise, the bell ring, the cry: "Clear the stage for Mons. Kaine Tucke!" while grinning, he went on making up his face as the antique "Father Antic."

On the stage there was a pretty to-do! No Mercedes, while the American, dressed in the European notion of a hunting dress, tan cloth with cartridge belt, white pith hat, leggins and heavy shoes, was looking at the array of his arms on tables and racks.

orestier was simply frantic. He had been sending messengers, cab drivers and private detectives out in all directions, and was rubbing his eyes with one hand while holding his spectacles, "damp with emotion," said the Jockey, in the other.

At this, while he looked for an outlet to his wrath, the manager, whose stage manager had prudently stepped aside, caught sight of Little Tony in the wing.

"Here, you are too soon! What do you in blank blanks want here 'on?'"

"I am going on for Mlle. Mercedes," was Tony's simple reply.

"None of your larks," began Forestier, when to his greater stupefaction he heard the American behind him gravely say:

"Do not disappoint the audience. All right. Let them ring up ——" and making a sign, the curtain flew up so rapidly that Forestier had to run for cover.

The round of applause was followed by a peal of laughter.

Instead of the dashing girl confronting the marksman, Kaine was faced by the comic fellow in his war paint.

The musical flourish ceasing, and a soft waltz movement following, the clown spoke as we give the speech, to its swing:

"Gabies and shentlemens, you know I am a very rum sort of a kind of unkind fellow indeed. Well, I have another good 'un for you tonight, none of your slack baked 'uns but hard to crack! There is a Grrrreat Shooter who is very fond of a proooty leetle lady whom he fires on before the public without hurting her, oh, no, sir! but you will see a difference on this occasion when Dr. Deadshoot will fire on the Lucky Clown and hit him where he hurt him most!"

He slapped one hand to his heart and the other upon that with noise, during his bow, as he drew back with a mock dancing master's step.

As if this was pre-arranged with him, the American, whose elevated gravity made the silly lines more funny, went on with his exercises. Tony, warming with the situation, assisted him like a blundering servant, with endless imitations, extravagant bows and contortions. Forestier was quite reassured, especially as Kaine had lately talked of a sensation in his quiver for immediate production. Nothing preposterous that the mimic did, upset his balance. He was unerring as ever.

At length came the time when the substitute of Mercedes was to face the music. He was at ease when he saw the expert take up the gun which he had "doctored" but his spirits dropped when he laid it down with a sinister smile.

"He sees it has been tampered with," moaned Tony, whose whitened face could not, luckily, show the emotion he felt. It was more piquant when, the next instant, the Shooter took up a revolver of another type, and bade him stand in the position to hold up the playing card to be perforated.

"He can't," hissed a spiteful voice at the wings, where the company, whose turn had not come, were transgressing from its being in the wind that the American knew the game Little Black Eyes was carrying on.

Kaine's smile broadened. At last he had his rival under the drop!

As for Tony, he was turned into a statue. He could not look at the man whom he had wronged, and he glanced into the house. In the depths of a box, but leaning forward in her fascination of fright, Mercedes was watching to see the resistless body at the end of the infallible pistol.

"The coquatrice!" muttered the clown, when the pistol went off.

To the horror of the spectators, while a scream from a woman among them resounded, the clown's white face was specked in the centre of the nose, with a ruddy blot, which expanded.

Down went the curtain, as Tony fell into the arms of Forestier.

Then the stage manager rushed before the drop; it was nothing; only a farce of the inimitable Mediæval Clown and Mons. Le Shootiste Americain!

As for the woman who screamed and ran round to the stage, she was received by M. Forestier, laughing grimly:

"Fifty francs fine for missing your call."

Tucke had scorned to kill the clown; he had not used the conjuror's pistol, but he had substituted a juggler's ball of capsuled liver and blood to make Tony think his brains were smothering him.

The jockey had fled when he saw the clown shot—and is still on the run!

Solemn as a stone statue, the American went up to Tony and the woman—solemnly he said:

"You wanted to face me, eh? if I shot you they would have had my head for murder; if I missed, the audience would waylay me at the stage door for being a chump. No, I return good for evil. Wherever you go, this story will go with you—I have made you ridiculous forever. As for you Miss, I shall pay your fine, and your fare to the Essy Rose's engagement. I hope you will be luckier in substitution than your mate."

This was all of Dr. Deadshoot's retaliation.

MISSOURI.

St. Louis.—Only two regular theatres are now open, and they will close this week, leaving the variety houses and the Summer gardens to amuse the public.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—"Sinbad" did a big business last week, and the company left for Chicago to rehearse another burlesque. Fanny Davenport will close the best season in the history of the house with "Cleopatra."

OLYMPIC THEATRE.—"Mr. Wilkinson's Widows" did a good business last week. The Liliputians will close the season May 14.

POPE'S THEATRE closed a fair season's business 7, "The Midnight Alarm" having filled out the week.

WINTER GARDEN.—Theresina Koska, Bertha Stead, Nelly Baker, Annie Leslie and the Ferenzie Sisters remain this week.

LONDON THEATRE.—O'Brien and Leslie, Onzo, Alf. Christie, Jennie Pearl, Billy Watson, California Four, Dottie Humes, Crawford and Bowers, Jennie Clayton, Ada Prescott and the stock. Business is good.

GRAND CENTRAL THEATRE.—Mat Schaefer, Jessie De Vere, Jessie Harvey, Millman Sisters, Mlle. Maretta, James McCarthy, Pauline Ames, Grace Hartland and the stock company, this week. Business is good.

FRANK & BRYANT'S THEATRE.—Laura Mortimer, the danseuse, made a hit last week, and has been retained. James and Marion Fitz, Chas. Palmer, Minnie Lee, Dickey Evans, Minnie Dwyer, Wm. La Clede, Sam Mayfield, Ed. E. Perry and Chas. Ellsworth this week. Business is good.

ESHER'S THEATRE.—Carroll and Lewis made a hit last week with their female impersonation and will remain. Allen and Scott, Mabel Sissons, Alice Scott, Mike Higgins, De Camo, and Lottie Thorne this week. Business is good.

PALACE THEATRE.—Leslie and Welch, West and Fowler, Tannier Family, Dora Goff, Jessie Howersoch, Wm. Martin, Denny McCarty, Annie Reynolds, Ida Gorman, May Richards, Carrie Le Vare and Harry Robinson, Geo. West is now stage manager. Business is good.

MCGINLEY'S MUSEUM.—Gardner Collins, Sig. Solomon, Indian Paul, B. Onsa, Dacao and Jier, Lady Baird, Pop Rogers, Tom Doyle, Fred Wilson and Museum stock this week. Business is good.

CHAT.—James McGinley, proprietor of the museum here bearing his name, is visiting Chicago. It is reported that he has sold the house here, and will open a Museum at Chicago, but the report has not been confirmed.....Prof. Poppen's comic opera, "Althea," was presented at Pickwick Theatre for the first time 4 to a critical audience. The leading vocalists represented the church choirs of St. Louis, and the orchestra was carefully selected.....C. W. Woodrow, assistant treasurer of the Olympic Theatre, takes his first benefit 16, when the Liliputians will present "Candy."....Chas. A. Spalding, of Saugerties, N. Y., proprietor of the Olympic Theatre, this city, is here on a visit. He expresses himself as delighted with the season's business, and says the gross receipts are the largest in the history of the house.....J. K. Crumbaugh, manager of the Hayden Opera House, at Columbia, Mo., has been in the city several days, making arrangements to open his opera house with a new company.

Kansas City.—In addition to the closing of the Gillis Opera House, of which mention was made last week, the boards go up at the Auditorium May 7, and other houses show signs of weakening. We are surfeited with out of door attractions, and the company that will house a crowd in this city now must present strong features. Every good attraction the past season has had excellent business, while every poor one has had a "frost."

AUDITORIUM.—The stock company the past week presented a repertory of all the plays given during this season, and closed to a highly satisfactory week. This closes the regular season of the house.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—The Carey-Learock Dramatic Co. will begin a two weeks' engagement 8, in "Wife for Wife" for the first week. Dan McCarthy's "Cruiskeen Lawn" had a fairly satisfactory week.

NINTH STREET THEATRE.—"Joshua Simpkins" 8 and week. The house was dark last week.

COATES' OPERA HOUSE.—Rhea 9, 11, "Gosstp" 10.

NOTES.—Lemen Bros. pitched tents in Shelby Park 3, and a large crowd gathered to see the performance, when officers stepped upon the scene and declared that their permit to show in this particular spot was in error, and no performance was given. Ground was secured in another part of the city, and uninterrupted performances were given to big crowds.....Will J. Shea, formerly with "His Nibs the Baron," appeared in the cast of "The Banker's Daughter" at Auditorium, as Brown, and took his audience by storm. R. L. Henry, owner of the Auditorium, came down from Chicago to witness the close of the stock season. He says there'll be music in the air this season if his negotiations with an opera company, now pending, do not fail.....Ringling Bros.' Circus comes 9.

St. Joseph.—At Tootle's Opera House, Rhea comes May 6, the Dodd Opera Co. 9 and week. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew appeared 5 to good business. "Ship Ahoy!" was given 2, 3, to fair business. At the Eden Musee, business is fair. Week of 9: Jos. D. Clifton's Co. in "Libby Prison," Annie Alvine, Goatano, Capaldi, Terolle Band and Mme. Giacoma.

—"The Police Patrol" leaves New York City week of May 16 for a supplementary season at 'Frisco, working their way East, and will reopen the regular season at Cleveland, O., week of Aug. 18.

"The Ivy Leaf" 13, 14. John Mayling, while taking tickets at the door April 30, got into a scuffle with a person who endeavored to pass without paying admission. Both were arrested, but Mr. Mayling was discharged and his antagonist fined $5 and costs.

Butte City.—At Maguire's Opera House, "Spider and Fly" played to big business April 28-30. Frank Daniels opened May 2 for three nights. Crowded houses were in order. The Kimball Opera Co. with Corinne commence an engagement of three nights 5.

The Theatre Comique reopened under a new management 2. A. L. Dowler is the proprietor, and he proposes to run the house on a new plan. There will be little burlesque and more specialty work. Larry Land is the stage manager.

UNDER WHITE TENTS

RINGLING NOTES.—"To your tents, oh, Israel!" cried the ancient Hebrews, and with similar impulse the clans of the Ringlings blew in on four winds to Baraboo, Wis., opening April 30. With big triple rings and twice double its once dimensions; with wagons red as a boy's new sled and acres of snow white canvas; with chariots newly gilded and wardrobe new fangled and spangled; with three booming bands and a prospect of booming business, the show—like a ship new launched—was a beauty of perfect appointments. The five Ringlings "came up smiling," with that look on the face which Western men describe as "the air of winners." The blue poles pointed up to a blue sky, but a drenching storm blew over the hills at high noon, with a howling hurricane wind provoked, so the jokers said, by the yard long whiskers of four high priests who form a processional feature. But, unlike the proverbial prophet, the Ringlings are honored at home, and tents were packed both afternoon and night, though rain fell in chunks and the mud was liquid and juicy. The parade was got up in the latest Spring style, and noticeably new. There were splendid new chariots carried with dolphins and dragons and griffins and hippo-griffins; the giant steam highway locomotive, Hercules, puffing wreaths of smoke and drawing a line of gilt vehicles, and the musical tower of massive Moscow chimed bells whose brazen tongues pealed forth sonorous music. Two swaying herds of elephants went by, and seven open carriages of African wild beasts. Six kinds of music thrilled the air with melody. Every stitch of parade regalia, composed of fiery plushes and vivid satins, was absolutely new. Entirely new also were the tents. The show began with a brand new edition of Ringling's spectacular pagent, "Cæsar's Triumphal Entry Into Rome," a many hued glad spectacle, unfolding and outspreading in kaleidoscopic manner on three rings and elevated stages. No back number wardrobe was visible here, and the new silver chariot of Cæsar, the new nickeled suits of armor draping both horses and riders, and the bevy of beautiful women in oriental costumes, who with palms in hand marched to rejoicing music, were noticeable features. The circus performance itself, of which a full review will reach you later, is by very large odds the best yet produced by the Ringlings. It is stronger than ever in equestrianism, while the leaping and tumbling lines are first class, the flying trapeze and aerial acts phenomenal, the six clowns comical, the many feats of the Japanese troupe remarkable, the exhibit of trained animals very large, and the hippodrome races swift and enthusiastic. There is a triple juggling exhibit, and surprising double exhibits of perch and ladder acts, brother acts, knife throwing, manege riding, etc. There are triple Japanese displays, two triple displays of trained animals, triple aerial acts and four double displays of equestrianism. The concert is most novel and attractive, while the sideshow did good business from the jump. At Madison, the second stand out, the local papers recorded the Ringling business as the largest yet done in that place by any circus. At the present writing the show has got on all its war paint. It will cover five States in the next seven days; will play large cities this season, and, increasing in size like a fast rolling snowball, its future career will be left for time to tell.

HARRY H. FOSTER has left the Oregon Medicine Co., and is resting at Hammondtown, Pa.

THE KICKAPOO INDIAN MEDICINE CO., No. 20, is made up as follows: Dr. E. H. Flagg Jr., manager; Dr. B. E. Patten, Prof. F. E. Peak, Will Kilroy, Harry Simpson, Harry Fellows, Plenty Horses, Black Horse, Squirrel, Red Woman, Running Fawn and the little pappose, Jim.

ROSTER of Blair & Blair's Star Electric Belt Medicine Shows: Drs. Blair & Blair, sole proprietors and managers; Chas. K. Burton, business manager; John C. Blair, stage manager; W. F. Blair, J. W. Blair, C. K. Burton, Bennett Charles, Billy Barlou, Master Jesse Blair, Dan Kibler, Millie Burton, Julia Blair, Mona Blair, Harry Morris and Wm. H. Green. They are touring Arkansas, using an eighty foot round top, with thirty-five foot middle piece, and traveling in their own Pullman palace car.

ORION SPRINGER, the clown, will not go on the road this season, but will spend the Summer with his family at Cincinnati. In a recent letter to this paper he mentions a pleasant visit to the Bartine Show.

MANAGER JOHN BERKLEY, of the Opera House at Cumberland, Md., writes in complimentary terms of the Umatilla Medicine Co., No. 18, which recently played a successful engagement there. Following is the roster: Dr. Hermans, manager; Allen R. Dury, Chas. S. Marton, George Nolen, Caral Swift and four Indians, Rain in the Sky, Running Wolf, Hole in the Day and Crazy Horse.

THE advance of Fred Locke's Monster Consolidated Shows is made up as follows: Cready Smith, contracting agent; Oliver Buss, boss billposter, with three assistants; H. Gilmore, lithographer, and Harry Cook, programmer.

KICKAPOO MEDICINE CO., No. 17, are now touring Northern Minnesota. Willim G. Cook, black face and Irish comedian, joined recently, as did Thomas Clannon. Business reported good. Roster: Harry Brady, W. G. Cook, Tom Clannon, Allie Walton, Chief Split Sky, Rain in the Face and Thunder Cloud.

WHILE the Barnum & Bailey Circus procession was passing along Broad Street, Newark, N. J., May 4, a painter at work on a windowsill on the third story of the State Bank Building dropped his pail of cream colored paint, deluging about fifty people crowded on the sidewalk, and ruining many dresses of women.

FOLLOWING is a list of the people with Umatilla Medicine Co., No. 29—this company reported as playing to an average big business in Illinois, and will open with a hundred foot round top and brass band the first week in May: Dr. L. Howard, dentist and manager; Dan Gracey, Fred C. Frink, Billie Barnes, Ora Reid, Big Horse, Little Eagle, Snow Flake, Billie Warner, Ed. Gorman, Mrs. Dr. L. Howard, Chief Long Feather, Little Bear, Bright Eyes and Falling Flower. Albert, infant son of Dr. and Mrs. L. Howard, aged 18 months and 14 days, died at Wyoming, Ill., April 28. He had been sick with pneumonia for five weeks.

ROSTER OF WALTER L. MAIN'S BIG SHOW BAND.—F. Mont Long, leader; Harry Legendre, Ira Loost, Geo. Bickel and Wm. Arnold, cornets; Harry Kennedy, piccolo; Chas. H. Bragg, Louis Brier, Chas. Brown and Albert Kadel, clarionettes; Josh Holbrooke and F. Ramos, saxaphones; Chas. Wetterman, John Maag and Manly Bush, altos; Kid Morris, Ed. Campion and Sam Bolton, side trombones; Philip Clarke, euphonium; R. D. Miller and Layton Stark, bassos; Bert Cole, Henry Von Wald and Archie Royer, drummers.

THERE was a notable gathering May 5, at the residence of Thomas E. Cooke, the veteran circus manager, who is living in retirement in a cosy cottage at 445 Union Avenue, Totowa, N. J. The occasion was the celebration of the veteran's ninetieth birthday. With the exception of occasional attacks of rheumatism, Mr. Cooke's health is good, and his mind is as bright and active as ever. Nearly three quarters of a century ago he was the most expert rider, wrestler, jumper and general acrobat in all Europe. Half a century ago he was the Barnum of England. The name of Thomas E. Cooke was a household word. He came from a family of circus performers and actors. Among those present were: His nephew, W. W. Cole; his sister, Mrs. Mary A. Cole; his daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Adams; Mrs. Frank C. Clouston, his granddaughter; his son, James E. Cooke, and wife; Frank Cooke Clouston, great grandson; Mary Etta Clouston, great granddaughter; Mrs. William H. Oldroyd, George H. Adams, grandson, and others. Mrs. Frank C. Clouston is better known as Etta Adams, the mind reader and second sight performer. She married Mr. Clouston, a Boston actor, and her two children are little Frank Cooke and Mary Etta, above mentioned. They live at Boston, where they own a handsome residence. Etta is still on the stage with her husband, and they will perform during the Summer at Atlantic City, in company with her brother, George H. Adams, the clown, "Humpty Dumpty" Adams. In a gathering like this, composed of men and women who have, from first to last, been in the theatrical profession for three-quarters of a century, and the most of them being actively engaged in it at the present time, it may be imagined what entertaining stories were told and what interesting reminiscences were related. The old gentleman was smothered with flowers.

ROSTER OF SCRIBNER & SMITH'S SHOW.—J. R. Tucker, general agent; A. J. French, contracting agent; Chas. Rowell, master of paper, with five assistants; J. E. Garvey, lithographer, with one assistant; Dennis Dildine in charge of stock; second brigade, four days in advance, Geo. W. Meyer and one assistant; two agents' buggies, one four horse bill wagon, one two horse paste wagon and one one horse wagon for second brigade.

JAMES TOTTEN, proprietor of a saloon at the corner of Washington and Academy Streets, Newark, N. J., on May 5 procured a warrant for the arrest of the "What Is It?" one of the curiosities of Barnum's Circus. He declared that the freak had assaulted him. While the circus was at Newark Mr. Totten visited it, and saw the "What Is It?" boxing with the "Leopard Boy." He thought the former was a colored man with whom he used to box, made up to mystify people as to what he was. He jumped on the stage, and in a friendly way put up his fists, just to let his old acquaintance see that the disguise was no match for his penetration. The "What Is It?" picked up a stick and struck him on the head, smashing his hat and cutting the scalp. Mr. Totten rushed off in search of a policeman, and insisted on having his assailant arrested; but the policeman was not satisfied that "It" was human, and declined to interfere. When Mr. Totten procured the warrant for "It" Justice Sommer accompanied him to the circus to see "It," and when he had done so he decided that "It" could not be arrested, and dismissed the case.

LAWRENCE SCOTT, aged thirty-two years, an attache of Forepaugh's Circus, is in St. Joseph's Hospital, Reading, Pa., with frightful wounds inflicted by a tigress in the parade May 5. He was inside the cage containing a pair of tigers, when the female, becoming enraged, attacked him. Harry Grim, a produce dealer, was the first to notice the encounter, and rallied a number of circus employes to Keeper Scott's assistance. He was rescued after the tigress had been beaten into insensibility. Mr. Scott was brought out of the cage with the blood streaming from numerous wounds.

SUN BROS.' UNITED SHOWS open at Tuxedo, O., May 23, for one week, after which they take the road, making three night stands at 10 and 20 cents admission. The Roster: Sun Bros., proprietors and managers; Gus Sun, general agent, with three assistants; Geo. Sun, main door tender; Will White, treasurer and ticket seller; James Howe, director of amusements; Prof. Tipton, leader of band No. 1, with ten pieces; band No. 2 will have six pieces. Performers—Geo. Sun, Gus Sun, Four Dashington Bros., Alvin Pink and Vida Wilson, James and Ida Moran, Chas. and Watson and Wm. Jenks, the Marlows, Jessie Lake, Cleo, Mlle. Lotta, Del Adelphia (Dacota Dell), Happy Dave Stafford, Lee Le Vant and the Barlows Bros., five clowns, headed by Mons. Alberta, Chas. Ray, boss canvas man, with six assistants; Fred Sanders, boss property, with two assistants. They travel by rail, and stop at hotels. Everything will be in fine shape for the opening.

N. T. OLIVER'S (NEVADA NED) BIG SHOW is playing at present through Southern Illinois, making week stands under a 100ft. round top, with a 50ft. middle piece. The roster: N. T. Oliver, Baker and West, Harry M. Helms, Jules Vernon, Fred Bargy Harry Childs, Jas. Moran, John Roberts, Ira Christy, Dan Allmann, Lorena, Lew Parker, Tom Harris, Marie Oliver and Georgia Ernhart. Joe Dokes and Tom Dolan have charge of the canvas. The show carries a band and orchestra.

ROSTER OF H. B. HICKS' INDIAN MEDICINE CO., No. 29: Dr. H. B. Hicks, lecturer and manager; Mrs. Hicks, treasurer; Texas Harry, scout and interpreter; Princess Nenetah, lady shooting star; Indian prima donna, War Eagle, Big Fred and six Indians, Harry Blake, English comedian, and brass band of ten men.

ROSTER of Stockley's Minute Oil Co.: Dr. Stockley, sole proprietor; Dr. Albert Stockley Jr., general manager; F. Walters, business manager; Chas. H. Hampton, master of transportation; Lon West, amusement director, with a band of eight mouthpieces, and 80ft. round top, with the following specialty people: Chas. Davenport, H. Hampton, Annie M. West, Lon West, Val. Witt, Chas. and Mar Smith, Otar Bros., Seiler and Burke, and Bros. Stockley. They travel in their own boats by water, showing the Mississippi and Bayous.

THINGS are fast assuming shape for the opening, May 21, of W. S. Wheeler's Show. The wagons loo bright and circus like. The advance started May 3, with F. W. George at the head. Sig. and Dot Harris, and the Grothe Bros., are among the latest additions.

DR. IRA E. NEWHALL, of Healy & Bigelow's Co No. 4, has exchanged with Dr. Don Donaldson. The roster: Coyle and Leonard, Jas. Prince, Chiefs White Cloud, Great Bear and Red Wing.

THE OREGON INDIAN MEDICINE CO., No. 24, opened their season May 2. They have an 80ft. round top with a 40ft. middle piece, stage and everything convenient. Roster: Capt. T. W. Mannion, proprietor; Billy and Jennie Stanford, George Weaver, Ida Mannion, Aggie Mannion, Chief Scar Face Bear, Fluttering Willow, We-Ne-Ma, Sunshine, Red Eagle and Prairie Flower.

THE MEXICAN CHICK MEDICINE CO. are now touring North Carolina. Billy St. Elmo closed May 1 and left to join Washburn's Circus in New Jersey. Harry F. West and wife joined 2. The roster: Dr. J. T. Chick, proprietor; Mrs. Annie Chick, Harry F. West, Mamie West, Chas. Lovell and Dick Harper. They are now playing in opera houses, but open May 15 under canvas with a band of seven mouthpieces.

CHAS. P. WATSON AND WIFE closed with the Publilones Circus in Cuba and returned to New York May 5. They are at present at their home, Jackson, Mich.

DR. PATEE'S ELECTRIC OIL CO., No. 1, includes: Geo. Scoble, Flora Scott, Lillie and Annie Ryan, J. Wood, Mr. Plamondon, Mr. Graves, Drs. English, Mme. Ryan, M. D., H. De Ford, Patre Staff.

PAWNEE BILL'S WILD WEST AND HIPPODROME SHOW have been doing a good business since they started on their travels at Burlington, N. J., April 29, and, although the performance is not running altogether smoothly, a few more exhibitions will bring it up to the usual order. The jumps through New Jersey were long, and the first week's travel made everybody feel rather tired. The show this season is larger than ever. They have fifty-six head of horses, two buffalos and two bucking steers. They are now touring New England, where the jumps are small and the attendance large. The programme consists of fancy shooting by Gordon W. Lillie (Pawnee Bill), a cremation scene by Brule Sioux Indians, steer and buffalo riding, pony express, in which some excellent riding is done by Mustang Walter, attack on the mail coach, riding jacks, picking up objects, fancy shooting by May Lillie while on horsback, the mountain massacre, horse thief, fancy roping, bucking horses, trappers, standing hippodrome, handkerchief race, ladies' racing, cowboy's racing and chariot racing. The company: May Lillie, Gordon W. Lillie, proprietor; W. D. Saphor, treasurer; Mat Gibler (old time clown), announcer; Col. Giles Pullman, general agent; D. B. Hodges, in charge of car, with twelve assistants; H. A. B. (alphabetical) Williams, railroad contractor; Jos. A. Lester, boss canvasman; James Donovan, assistant, with twenty men; Chas. Felbrook, stage coach driver and boss hostler; Thos. McGraw, assistant, with six men: lodine, trapper and scout; Ed. Adams, ammunition; Dave Lowe, porter; Edward Gaston, chief cook, with six assistants; Harry Pearsall, calcium; H. H. Sylvester, stereopticon and programmer; Harry Pullman, refreshment and concert, and Albert Reeves, in charge of soldiers. Cowboys—Mustang Walter, principal rider; Heck Quinn and Tom Webb, recently with Buffalo Bill's Show, ropers and bucking horse riders; Geo. Elser, Oklahomer Frank, Donziana, Mexican leader; Senor Francisco, Mexican Rufus, Antonio Billee, Senorita Rosales and Senlorita Rauss. Among the Indians are a few who have taken part in several skirmishes with United States soldiers, especially in the Custer fight and the battle of Wounded Knee. They are under the care of A. D. Shaw, the Indian interpreter, who is well known in the Sioux nation. The Indians include Iron Shell, Brule Sioux Chief, who took a prominent part in the Custer fight; Jump Down, second chief, at Wounded Knee fight; Walking Crow, second chief, at Wounded Knee and Custer fights; Takes the Blanket, Sioux, at Wounded Knee fight; Good Calf, Brule Sioux Medicine Man; John Long Wolf, Sioux; White Hawk, California Indian; White Wood, Falling Star, Red Fox, Single Man, Breaks Up, White Buffalo Robe, Big Woman and Highest Hawk, three Sioux woman who were at the Custer fight; Garnisher Woman, Indian girl rider, and a three months old pappoose, Runaway. After the regular performance a concert is given in the field in front of the grand stand. In the concert are Wm. La Rue, Dot Pullman, Prince Flotow and Senor Mitchell and his performing bear. Mr. La Rue also impersonates the farmer in the big show. Side Show: Hattie Bowen (fat woman), Sisters Zarretta (snake charmers), Deltino (contortionist), Prof. A. Bell (tattooed man and human pincushion), Princess Lulu (Circassian), Lamont (magician), Wm. Berry and a happy family cage. Five flat cars are used to transport the canvas and stakes, stage coach, caravans and ticket wagon, two horse cars and two cars for the people. Two cars are in advance, with fifteen horses. Every man in the advance brigade has his own horse, while everybody with the big show, excepting the canvasmen and cooks, rides. The performance is given in an enclosure 20ft. high and 500ft. in diameter. The sideshow tent is a 50ft. round top.

THE sensational report circulated by the Associated Press to the effect that Prince Kokin, of T. K. Burk's Shows, had been concerned in the abduction of a child, is absolutely false and altogether without foundation. Prince Kokin secured the consent of both parents, and the child joined the show with the knowledge and approval of all the officers of the Children's Home at Zanesville, O.

BUFFALO BILL'S WILD WEST SHOW opened at London, May 7, at Earl's Court, nominally as an adjunct of the Horticultural Exhibition, though in reality the Wild West Show is the attraction. The Duke of Connaught conducted the ceremonies of the opening, after which he presided at a luncheon, at which were present, aside from Col. Cody himself, United States Minister Lincoln, United States Consul General New, the Bishop of London, the Spanish, French, Turkish and Russian Ambassadors, and many other extraordinary persons. The show proper was received with the greatest enthusiasm. The company now numbers four hundred persons, thirty-five more Indians than ever before. It will be augmented in a week by twenty Gauchos from Uruguay, with their horses and trappings, when a competition will be held to decide whether the cowboy or the Gaucho is the better all round horseman.

G. W. ORRIN and family are stooping at Memphis, Tenn., temporarily.

NOTES FROM T. K. BURK'S SHOWS.—Business continues large, Barlow Bros. were visitors April 21 at Newport, and W. H. Link saw the show at Hamilton. We are using special paper and all lithographed.

SANTIAGO PUBILLONES arrived in town from Cuba May 5. He reports good business as the rule the past season. Companies No. 1 and No. 2 have closed and Company No. 3 is at present travelling through the Island of Porto Rico. Mr. Pubillones will leave in a few days for Europe. He is on the lookout for the best attractions to be found either at home or abroad for his next season in Cuba.

NEW JERSEY.

Newark.—At Miner's last week, Julia Marlowe presented a varied entertainment, but the houses were not crowded. We have an opportunity this week to bid farewell to Janauschek. Although rather a stranger here, her talents are well known, and she will no doubt receive good patronage. She opens May 10. Week of 16, Harrigan's "Reilly and the 400."

JACOBS'.—"Hands Across the Sea" last week received fair attention. Vernona Jarbeau winds up the season for this house 9, 10, 11. She opened well 9, and will probably do a nice business.

GRAND.—The pressure of light attendance was felt here also, last week, where "Gettysburg" was tried. This week, the same company play "49," which will likely please the fancy. The Leonzo Bros. week of 16.

WALDMANN'S.—Business fell somewhat below the average last week with Billy Lester's Show. This week, Reilly & Wood's Co. pay us their second visit this season, which assures good houses. The troupe are about the same as before, and their opening house was well filled. Week of 16, the Henry Burlesque Co.

GLOBE.—Billy Shepperd, May Madison, Bessie Melrose, Lillie Delmore, Jennie Linden and J. W. Dunn.

CASINO.—Dora Popper, Addie Livingston, Helen De Forrest and Allie Drayton.

GAIETY.—Viola Ray, Hattie Bennett, Jos

VARIETY & MINSTRELSY

HARRY SINGLETON and the original Siberian Quartet have signed with Young & Eaton's Minstrels.

AT THE MASCOT THEATRE, Missoula, Mon., last week: The Klines, Rose Kellogg, Oro and Manning, Griffith Sisters, Lulu Oro, Dyer and Buckley, Jessie Eldridge, Madge Heath and Jerry Gorman.

EDWIN R. LANG was made a Royal Arch Mason in Ancient Chapter, No. 1, this city, April 21.

THE MAY RUSSELL BURLESQUE Co. closed a successful engagement of thirty-seven weeks at Cincinnati, O., May 1. The company will resume the road next September, opening their season at the People's Theatre, Cincinnati. It will be larger and better than ever, and the bookings extend to June 1.

THE PARK PAVILION THEATRE at Cleveland, O. (C. L. Simmons, proprietor), opened May 9 very auspiciously. The people on the bill were Pete Shaw, the Two Bees, Stewart Sisters, Ida Jeffrys, Mabel Geyer, Chas. H. King, Effie Comstock, Lolo Surrell and Ida Dickery.

BEN LOEB'S THEATRE, at Leadville, Col., was burned to the ground May 1, immediately after the matinee was dismissed. The stage caught on fire, and the whole place burned so rapidly that the performers were unable to save their wardrobes. The theatre was an old landmark, and was formerly run by Laura Le Clair. It is not yet known whether the house will be rebuilt. Its destruction leaves Leadville, for the first time since its existence, without a variety theatre.

THESE people opened at the People's Theatre, Asthabula Harbor, O., May 9: Snow and Bond, Louisa Blake, Lew and Della Walters, Bessie Morton and Sadie Hart.

BOB RIANO was recently the recipient of a handsome umbrella cover from W. P. Fay, manager of H. W. Williams' Own Co.

DOT LATHROP presented her husband, C. C. Allen, with a gold watch and chain last week, at Chicago, Ill.

FRANK G. SCOTT, of Scott and Le Roy, was married to Minnie Garren at the bride's home at Chicago, Ill., May 5.

EDDIE G. EMERSON, formerly known as Ed G. Smith, and late stage manager of the Gem Theatre, Suspension Bridge, N. Y., is dangerously ill at St. Louis, Mo. He is anxious to hear from his sister, Lilly Emerson. This information comes from Harry Carroll, his partner, who is also at St. Louis.

CLAYTON AND JENKINS have just closed a successful season of forty weeks with Al. G. Field's Minstrels. They will rest a few weeks at their home, Columbus, O.

CHARLES MAYER, manager of the Wigwam Theatre at San Francisco, Cal., has lost his suit against John Payne, the "human flute," for breach of contract. It was shown that Mr. Payne gave the customary two weeks' notice, and the court dismissed the case.

WHITTEY AND LEONARD are going to take out a specialty company of their own, opening May 30 at the Lyceum Theatre, Philadelphia.

AT the Alcazar Theatre, Hurley, Wis., this week: Jennings and O'Brien, Dan Randall, Daisy Raymond, Thomas R. Ryan, Alice Porter, Billy McIntyre, Ed. Armstrong, May Cleveland, Jennie Mack, Fanny Prestege, Eddie Myer and Little Ella Ward.

MAMIE LA WALL and Lillian Barklew have signed with the Henry Burlesque Co.

BERT. A. LESLIE and A. C. Wallace have closed with Dr. Red Wolf's Medicine Co., and have signed for the Summer season with Seminole Medicine Camp, No. 29, under the management of Dr. H. B. Hicks (Texas Harry).

JOHN F. THRUM, editor of The San Francisco Music and Drama, was arrested April 28, charged with criminal libel, by Chas. N. Steen, the mind reader. M. B. Curtis furnished a bond for Mr. Thrum's appearance.

THE following people are at the Gaiety, Brockton, Mass., this week: Gus Mills, John and Nellie McCarty, Lowry and Evans, Fulgora, McCoy and McAvoy, McCoy Sisters, Harry C. Church, the Nawns and Burke, Henry and Gardner.

JAMES F. LAMB, the well known ventriloquist, closed his sixth annual tour April 30.

PARTY No. 21, of the Seminole Indian Medicine Co., report fine business through Michigan.

THE RHODA FAMILY CREOLE CO. opened their season May 10, at Excelsior Spring, Mo. The company numbers fifteen people, under the management of Will H. Davis. Harry A. Gray is traveling in advance.

ARRIVALS at Andrew's Museum, Wilkesbarre, Pa., week of May 9: Prof. Addy, Zingaraliyah, Leah Sherman, Signor Cordano, Burke Bros., Emma Bell, Geo. P. Watson, Le Page Sisters and Kenno.

MADELINE CRAWFORD, of the May Russell Burlesque Co., was the recipient of many handsome and valuable presents from Pauline Batchelor, Mlle. Mazetta, George Stanbridge and others last week.

AT Lavin's Casino Theatre, Parkersburg, W. Va., this week: De Regan, Dailey and Dailey, Lynda Floyd, Frank Graham, Maggie Lovenlt, Mamie Sullivan and the regular stock. A benefit will be tendered to Chris. Schutte, leader of the orchestra at the Casino, on May 27.

HARRY MCCLOSKEY, of 733 South Fourth Street, Philadelphia, one of the Central Theatre fire victims, who was considered in a critical condition, died about 2 o'clock A. M., May 9, as the result of his injuries. He had inhaled the flames, his eyesight was destroyed, and had he recovered he would have been a cripple. His case makes the twelfth fatality resulting from the fire. Since above was written the thirteenth victim has died. The inquest in the fire cases is to begin at ten o'clock A. M., 10, continuing until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and, if necessary, on 11, 12. About one hundred and twenty-five witnesses have been summoned and Coroner Ashbridge promises a thorough investigation. Great secrecy is being observed concerning all the details of the inquest, the names of the jurymen, witnesses, etc., being refused. William M. Singerly, proprietor of The Record, and president of the Chestnut Street National Bank, has consented to act as treasurer of the Fire Sufferers' Fund, and William DeHaven will be one of the committee for its disbursement. Zimmerman & Nixon have turned over to Mr. Singerly, as treasurer, these amounts: Benefits matinee and night, $1,534.25; George W. Elkins, $50; George N. Earle, $20; Benjamin Johnson, $10; Blanche Curtis, $5. Total, $1,619.25. Register of Wills Shields, on May 7, issued letters of administration to Mary A. Mitchell, of 1,250 North Eleventh street on the estates of her son in law, Thomas A. Ross, known professionally as Thomas Lorella, and her daughter M. Florence Ross, known as M. Florence Lorella, who both perished in the fire. Their estate was estimated to be worth $350.

SEELEY AND WEST, well known pair of musical comedians, are doing splendidly at London, Eng., where they are playing three and four music halls nightly. The team quite recently closed a highly successful tour of the English provinces. Young Billy Seeley, the nine months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Seeley (Bessie Bonehill), made his professional debut at the Star Music Hall, Liverpool, April 15. He made a howling hit. Miss Bonehill by the way, has finished her London season, and is now making a five weeks' tour of the provinces. Her success is greater than ever. She will sail for America July 23, under special engagement to Tony Pastor. Seely and West will also come over on that date to join Pastor's forces.

SHEA'S MUSIC HALL, at Buffalo, N. Y., is one of the most expensively fitted up vaudeville resorts in the country. Only men are admitted to the evening performances, and there is no wine or green room for the entertainment of the auditors. The house is very popular. No Sunday shows are given, and the best variety performers in the country appear there. The list for week of May 16 includes Lydia Yeamans-Titus, Harry Sefton, Morris Cronin, Grace Milburn, Alex Wilson and Fannie Bloodgood. Mlle. Noraly, the noted French serio comic and comedienne, will open there June 13. She comes from abroad, under special engagement to Mr. Shea. Peggy Pryde, Maud Huth, Sadie McDonald, Ida Fuller and many others are booked to appear at later dates.

FRANKIE HAINES, who made her debut at Philadelphia with Lester & Williams' "Me and Jack" Co. recently, will appear at the London Theatre, this city, May 16, with that company. Miss Haines is said to do a clever serio comic turn. Billy Jerome, the Bowery's favorite parody singer, will also be with the company when the troupe will be seen in New York for the first time this season. "Me and Jack" has been rewritten and considerably improved since it was last seen in this city, and the management promises a good performance. Clark G. Ball, the advance agent, was a CLIPPER caller May 9.

At the Wonderland Theatre, Fall River, Mass., this week: Wm. Jerome, Whittey and Leonard, Frank Kennedy, Dollie Howe, Blanch Andrews, Ryland and Golden, Prof. Gibbs and Whale Oil Gus.

E. LORRETT has closed with Kennedy's King Laughmakers, and will play dates during the Summer season.

GUY BROTHERS' MINSTRELS will close their twenty-second season in a few weeks. They intend to produce a new original first part setting, carrying, as they did this season, twenty-five people.

PROF HARRY PARKS, the aerial performer and funambulist, has signed a very advantageous contract to give his high wire and pyrotechnic displays at Bay View, near Baltimore, Md., for a period of eight days, opening on June 12. Prof. Parks says the wire will be stretched at an altitude of 1,200 feet, and he would do his act if it were higher still. He will use a wire 350 feet long, and will make a dazzling finish, descending on a sliding bar surrounded by fire, etc.

THE Common Council at Providence, R. I., has issued an order that no posters picturing females in tights will be allowed to be displayed within the city's limits.

THOMAS J. WEST (of West and Harrington), manager for several seasons of Bullock's Gaiety and Amphion, Coney Island, assumes charge of Parker & Valentine's Atlantic Opera House, Coney Island, May 18.

THE NASHVILLE STUDENTS will remain out all Summer. Joseph Becker has recovered his health, and is again acting as business manager.

KENDALL'S KOMEDIANS for the coming season will contain all new people, so we are informed by Manager Edward Kendall, who writes from his Boston, Mass., headquarters that all the arrangements are being very rapidly and satisfactorily completed. The prospects point to a prosperous tour.

LAURA GARLAND, who has been ill at the home of her mother at Detroit, Mich., has improved, and leaves for San Francisco May 15, to fulfill engagements on the Pacific coast circuit.

THE MORRISSEY BROS. have joined Lucier's Minstrels.

MARK OLDUS has joined hands with Frank Hope.

FOSTER AND LEWIS have been compelled to cancel their engagement with Billy Lester's Co. on account of Miss Lewis' disablement. She accidentally sprained her ankle last week, and is unable to walk.

BROCK AND STONE have joined Vertelli's Traveling Museum for the Summer season.

GORMAN'S MINSTRELS closed at Corning, N. Y., May 7. They have a trunk full of new ideas for next season.

JESS AND WARING have separated by mutual consent. Miss Waring will work alone next season, while Mr. Jess will take a male partner.

CLARENCE RUMMELL, interlocutor and stage manager, has closed with Barlow Bros.' Minstrels and will rest for a few weeks at Mt. Clemens, Mich. He has signed with George Wilson's Minstrels for next season.

HARDING AND AH SID have signed with Sam Devere's Company for next season.

THE THEATRE COMIQUE, Newburg, N. Y., which recently resumed business under its original management—A Laubenheimer & Son—was lately obliged to suspend business, pending the granting of a license. For the present it will be known as the Casino, with Frank Trippe as business manager. This week's bill: West and Harrington, Lilly and Minnie Nines, Jennie Somers, Lottie Sanford, Pearl De Vere, George Kidd and Willie Kelly.

OHIO.

Cincinnati.—The next twelve months are likely to be full of theatrical sensations. The first mine has been exploded. Heuck's Opera House will pass out of the hands of Hubert Heuck, and the theatrical firm of Brady, Garwood & Wilbur have contracted to assume its future management. Mr. Heuck expects to go to Europe. The plans of the lessees have not yet been outlined, but it is probable that the theatre will be a cheap priced house, one of a circuit including Cleveland, Detroit, Toledo and one Canadian city. A. L. Wilbur, whose ambitions have kept his eyes on Cincinnati for some time, will likely be the resident manager. Manager James E. Fennessy's partnership with Harry Williams, of Pittsburg, continues, and he is likely to devote his time to affairs at the People's Theatre, which will have a little fight on its hands in the shape of opposition from the Fountain Theatre. The Grand Opera House programme has not been announced. There will be a new rival card out against the Sunday theatres next season. Music Hall has been leased for every Sunday night during the Winter, and popular concerts will be given by the Bellstedt-Ballenberg Orchestra, assisted by the finest soloists and specialty people in the country.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—"Hoss and Hoss" comes May 9. Last week, Fanny Davenport attracted large audiences to see "Cleopatra." "Tuxedo" 16.

HEUCK'S OPERA HOUSE.—The doors were opened 8 for the Liberati Concert Co., assisted by Mabel Sutherland, the dramatic reader. Otherwise the house is dark.

HARRIS' THEATRE.—Frank I. Frayne presented "The Boy Ranger" 8. Little Goldie, in "A Rocky Mountain Waif," attracted good hot weather audiences. "Two Old Cronies" 15.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.—The Paris Gaiety Girls came 8, succeeding the City Club Vaudeville and Burlesque Co., which did a fair business. "The South Before the War" 15.

KOHL & MIDDLETON'S MUSEUM.—Mabel Gladys, Admiral Dot, the Gypsy Fortune Tellers and the Martin Sisters occupied Curio Hall 9 with Harmyer's "Crank Convention." Williams and Adams appeared on the Bijou stage, and Emory and Marlowe, J. J. Heffron, the Cowler Sisters, Jim and Gertie Hallie, Julia Reno and Cannon & Mack's shadowgraphs were seen in the Auditorium. Business is good.

GOSSIP.—Lea Feasley, of the City Club, was taken seriously ill during the early part of the week, and Carrie Fulton assumed her role in the burlesque. Florence Usborne, the balloonist's wife, is prosecuting her exhusband for failure to provide for his children. Will Sheldon has gone to New York. Mabel Hudson, who had been singing at Kissel's Garden, has disappeared, and John W. Holmes, her husband, is likewise missing. Frankie Jones, of the "Yon Yonson" Co., dropped in to see his mother. He will be one of Jacob Litt's Minneapo is stock this Summer, and joins Fanny Rice in the Fall. Will E. Jones and wife are home. "A Pair of Jacks" having closed the season. Dudie Tracy remained at St. Louis for a few days. Billy Mason, of the Exeter Minstrels, has joined the Ringling Brothers' Show. Tom McInnerney, who went to Cuba with the Stowe Brothers Circus, is home again. Several of the ushers at the Grand were caught in a check swindle. Jake Solomon was the principal offender. A half dozen of them did a thriving business selling the pasteboards that are given out between the acts. Fred Wright, of the Hoyt & Thomas staff, will assist O. E. Skiff during the run of "A Night in Pekin" at the Campus. Manager George E. Baker, of Harris' Theatre, is going to New York to spend his vacation. The house closes in four weeks.

Cleveland.—At the Euclid Avenue Opera House, the George A. Baker Opera Co. commenced a sixteen weeks' engagement May 9 in "Said Pasha." "Boccaccio" will follow. Stuart Robson closed the regular season 4. He played to "S. R. O." at every performance.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—The Wilbur Opera Co. commenced its third week 9 in "Nanon." "The Grand Duchess" will be given next week. The company played to the capacity of the house last week.

JACOBS' THEATRE.—"The Fast Mail" opened 9 for one week, to be followed by the Spencer Opera Co. 16 for three weeks. C. A. Gardner did well last week.

STAR THEATRE.—De Laur & Debrimont's Burlesque Stars came 9 for one week. The Creoles 16. Frank I. Frayne did well last week.

PARK PAVILION THEATRE.—This Summer theatre was opened 9. A specialty and musical performance will be given.

ABT'S WORLD'S MUSEUM.—Business is fair. A new list of performers is announced this week, and the entertainments are quite clever, thanks to the shrewd and liberal management of Prof. Abt.

MENTION.—The Lyceum Houses will be refitted with new scenery during the Summer season. Manager Garwood was in the city last week. Charles Stumm, who has been connected with the May Russell Company, will summer in this city. The May Russell Co. closed April 30. H. R. Jacobs' Theatre, so recently erected in place of the structure which was totally destroyed by fire last December, was the scene again of a call for defense by the firemen, May 6. The fire broke out at 8.15 o'clock. The curtain had not yet risen, and the orchestra was playing the overture. The most remarkable thing about the fire was the quiet and orderly manner in which the house was emptied. Before the audience fully realized that there was fire in the theatre the crowd was rapidly pouring into the street, without excitement and without so much as causing damage to a lady's dress. R. E. Davis, an usher, was the first to know that the theatre was on fire. He smelled smoke, and quickly found that it came from a storeroom under the second gallery. It was only a moment's work to notify Manager Frank, in the box office, and to hurry to the place with fire extinguishers. Some occupants of the gallery learned that there was fire in the building and raised a cry. After an alarm had been sent to the department and attaches of the theatre were hard at work with the hand extinguishers, Manager Frank and Thomas Scanlan, the ticket taker, looked after the audience. The coolness of Manager Frank and the force of ushers who stood in the aisles and urged the people to be calm had the desired effect. The orchestra kept on playing and rendered invaluable work in preserving order. In four minutes the house was empty. By this time the firemen had a ladder to the third story, had broken in the windows and had turned a stream on the fire. When the windows were broken a cloud of smoke poured from them, and caused the spectators to believe that the theatre was doomed. A stream of water and two streams from the chemical engines were all that were required to quench the fire, and in a few minutes it was over. The members of Charles A. Gardner's Co. made their way from the stage entrance quietly, some of them in costume. The fire was caused by a poorly connected electric light wire. The total damage will not exceed $2,000, and it was fully covered by insurance. The damage was mostly to draperies and furnishings in the store room, and to the frescoes, caused by water. A force of men was put to work cleaning the theatre. It was reopened 8 by "The Fast Mail" Co.

Canton.—At the Grand, "The Danger Signal" came to good business. Coming: Marie Prescott May 10, Charles A. Gardner 18.

SHAEFFER'S OPERA HOUSE.—The Hyers Sisters' Comedy Co. came to fair business. Week of 9, Gibney, Gordon & Gibney's Comedy Co.

NEW THEATRE COMIQUE.—Week of 9: Billy Swan and Frank Bambard, Lucy Swan, Pearl Rice, McIntire and Rice, and the Gannon Bros.

BAUSER'S MUSIC HALL.—H. Armin and A. Graefe continue.

Columbus.—At the Grand Opera House, Sam Jack's Creoles had a large house May 8.

PARK THEATRE.—The Baldwin Comedy Co. opened a four night engagement 8. Reilly & Wood's Co. had a good week ending 7. "Lieber Franz" comes 12 for three nights, followed 15 by the Holden Comedy Co. for a week.

Toledo.—At the Wheeler, the Kendals, in "A Scrap of Paper," May 16. At the People's, "The Pay Train" drew phenomenally good audiences last week. Ezra Kendall's "A Pair of Kids" 9 and week.

VIRGINIA.

Norfolk.—At the Academy of Music, the Elks' sixth annual benefit May 8. Wilfred Clark and the Henry Burlesque Co. played to fair business last week.

BIJOU THEATRE.—Opening 9: Wood and Beasley, and Melburn Sisters. Remaining: Reentz and Edwards, Eddie Ward, Nellie Ryan, Chas. West and Mamie Carton. Business is good.

NOVELTY THEATRE.—Opening 9: Hattie Palmer and Three and one-half Days. Remaining: Lulu and Maud Gorman, Vass Morris, Diamond Whitlock, Pearl De Maretta and John Lemuels. Business continues good.

CLIPPER POST OFFICE.

☞ A STAMPED ENVELOPE, plainly addressed, must be inclosed for each and every letter, and the line of business followed by the person addressed should be given, in order to prevent mistakes.

NOTE.—Professionals and others should bear in mind that all letters, etc., in transit between the United States and Canada must be prepaid, otherwise they are not forwarded.

The original scenery from Wallack's was used. Tony Pastor, with his variety troupe, commenced Oct. 4. Steff and Trepp, Viennese grotesque comedians, made their American debut. Oct. 11 "A Parlor Match" illumined the auditorium of this house for one week. Conreid's Opera Co. produced "The Gypsy Baron" 18, Laura Bellini, Lydia O'Neil, Jacques Kruger and Gus Hall in the cast. Genevieve Ward acted "Forget Me Not" 25, 26, 27, 28.

The Actors' Fund took a benefit matinee 29, the attraction was "Forgiven" (second act), by Frederic Bryton and his company. Conreid Opera Troupe in the march from "The Gypsy Baron," N. C. Goodwin and Maud Harrison in the third act of "The Hunchback," Genevieve Ward and members of her company in "Nance Oldfield, or Art;" Miss Fortescue and her company acted "Moths," Dockstader's Minstrels gave a short programme, and Wilson Barrett rendered the one act sketch, "Chatterton," supported by Miss Eastlake, George Barrett, Misses Belmore and Clarke. The house literally rose at Mr. Barrett, the applause was actually deafening, and Mr. Barrett was called out again and again. During a pause in the tumult he beckoned for silence, and in a short speech thanked the audience, which included nearly every actor of note in New York, for the warmth of his reception. "I have often," he said, "heard of the warmth of American audiences, but never until now could I believe such a demonstration as this possible." Mr. Palmer paid him the compliment of saying that on a like occasion Booth, Jefferson and Irving had not altogether received as much applause. This, of course, must have been very pleasing to Mr. Barrett, though not exactly so pleasant to the gentlemen named. This benefit netted the fund $2,725.

Genevieve Ward and W. H. Vernon acted in "The Queen's Favorite" evening 29; Gus Williams commenced, Nov. 1, in "Oh, What a Night!" 8, "The Silver King;" 15, "A Bunch of Keys;" Conreid's Opera Co. returned in "The Gypsy Baron" Nov. 22, "Shadows of a Great City" 29, Kate Claxton and Sara Jewett in "The Two Orphans" Dec. 6; the Kiralfy Bros., with their spectacular drama, "Around the World in Eighty Days," came 13; Oliver Doud Byron in "Inside Track" 20; Annie Pixley, with "M'liss," 27; "Saints and Sinners," by the Madison Square Theatre Company, Jan. 3, 1887; Thatcher, Primrose & West's Minstrels 10, Lillian Olcott in "Theodora" 17, Joseph Haworth and "Hoodman Blind" 24. "Alone in London" 31, Mme. Janauschek acted "Bleak House" Feb. 7-10, matinee 12; "Mary Stuart" 8-11, "Mother and Son" matinee 9, "Marie Antoinette" evening 9, "Macbeth" evening 12, "Lights o' London" 14, James O'Neil in "Monte Cristo" 21, "A Tin Soldier" 28, the Kiralfy Bros. presented "The Ratcatcher" March 7, Wm. Rice's Company in "Evangeline" 25, Vernona Jarbeau and George Thorne in the cast; Joseph Jefferson played "Rip Van Winkle" week May 2, Prof. Herrmann, magician, 9. Joseph Murphy acted "The Kerry Gow" 16, 17 and matinee 18, "The Donagh" 18, 19, 20 and matinee and evening 21. "The Black Crook" was seen 23, Rose Coghlan in "Masks and Faces," 30 supported by Osmond Tearle; "Streets of New York," June 6, with Geo. C. Boniface and his daughter Stella in the leading roles; Edwin Mayo commenced 13 in "Davy Crockett;" C. W. Couldock, 20, in "Hazel Kirke;" Henry Chanfrau, 27, as "Kit, the Arkansas Traveler," and with this the season closed.

Reopened Aug. 22, with Newton Beers, in "Lost in London;" "Jim the Penman," by the Madison Square Theatre Co. 29. Robert Downing acted in "Spartacus" week Sept. 5, Marie Wainwright and Louis James acted "Virginius" 12, 16, 17, "Ingomar" 13, "Hamlet" 15, "Gretchen" matinee 17. This house was again illumined by that attraction called "The Lights 'o London" week Sept. 19, "Harbor Lights" continued to add to the brilliancy of the auditorium, by commencing 26, for a fortnight; Mr. and Mrs. McKee Rankin did "The Golden Giant" Oct. 10, Clara Morris, in "Article 47" 17, 18, "New Magdalen" 19, "Renee" (Clinton Stuart's version of "Le Martyre,") for the first time in this city, 20, 21, and "Alixe" matinee and evening 22. Thatcher, Primrose & West's Minstrels 24, "A Bunch of Keys" 31, Annie Pixley, in "The Deacon's Daughter" Nov. 7; Fred. Warde acted "Virginius" 14. "Galba" 15, "Virginius" matinee 16, evening 16 and matinee 19, "Gaston Cadol;" evening 19, "Richard III;" "A Parlor Match" was again ignited for the frequenters of this house 21; "Held by the Enemy" 28.

One of the largest audiences that ever gathered inside the Grand Opera House assembled afternoon of Dec. 1, the occasion being the Actors' Fund benefit. The performance began at one o'clock, and for four hours the vast audience was delighted with one of the most noteworthy performances ever given in this city. Among those who took part were Henry Irving and his company, Ed. Harrigan's Co., Joseph Jefferson, Mrs. John Drew, Mrs. Potter and numerous others. The receipts amounted to $3,156.75, the largest sum ever received up to this date by the Fund at a benefit. Ellen Terry paid $100, Joseph Pulitzer $100 and Mrs. F. W. Vanderbilt $100 for seats or boxes.

Joseph Jefferson and "Rip Van Winkle" was the attraction week Dec. 5; Mrs. Langtry came 12, in "As In a Looking Glass" for two weeks; Nat Goodwin did "Turned Up" and "Lend Me Five Shillings" 26.

Gus Williams commenced Jan. 2, 1888, in "Kepler's Fortune." 9, the Florences commenced a week's stay, and acted in "Husband Hunting," "Dombey & Son," "The Mighty Dollar" and "The Flirt;" 16, Kate Claxton in "The Two Orphans;" 23, Oliver Doud Byron in "The Inside Track;" 30, Fanny Davenport in "Fedora," for the week, except matinee Feb. 1, when "The Lady of Lyons" was acted; Feb. 6, Richard Mansfield played "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" all the week, except matinee and night 8, when "A Parisian Romance" was presented. Cora Tanner and "Alone in London" filled week of 13; James O'Neill and "Monte Cristo" 20, Frank Mayo and "Royal Guards" 27, "Harbor Lights" March 5, W. J. TO BE CONTINUED.]

— Abbott & Teal's "Little Tippet" Co. left for Philadelphia last week, to begin an engagement of two weeks at the Walnut Street Theatre, May 9. The company will be seen later at the Park Theatre, Brooklyn, and will open at the Boston Museum, June 6, for a four weeks' engagement. George Henry has perfected a new rain effect for "Little Tippet." The company includes Charles Coote, Arthur H. Forrest, Charles Kruger, Sheridan Tupper, Charles Swain, Charles Throop, Mabel Bert, Grace Thorne-Coulter and Effie Germon.

— Annie Mitchell and Harry Knight will open their fourth annual season at Hudson, N. Y., Aug. 29. They will produce Mr. Knight's romantic play, "The Blind Slave." It was successfully performed at Boston in 1889. The scenery and mechanical effects will be a strong feature. Their repertory will include "Black Eyed Susan," "Under Two Flags," "Ivanhoe," "The Man from Pegley" and other plays.

— Frank E. Aiken is under engagement to open with Sol Smith Russell early in August, for the season of 1892-3.

— Henri Laurent has signed with the Sargent Aborn Opera Co., now singing at St. John, N. B.

WORLD OF PLAYERS:

— Geo. C. Staley, in "A Royal Pass," closed a highly successful season of eighty-nine weeks, May 7, at Philadelphia. The tour had embraced every important point between the Atlantic and Pacific. Mr. Staley has been before the public as a star for only three seasons, but is probably as well known throughout the country as any of the older attractions. Mr. Staley's next season opens the middle of August at Chicago, and, notwithstanding the coming election, both Mr. Staley and Mr. Parker, the manager, are sanguine that the fourth year will be even better than any of the previous ones. Manager Parker and Mr. Staley are in this city.

— Elsine Ellson will be a member of Charles Frohman's stock on its Western trip this Summer.

— Ethel Vincent has left the Deshon Opera Co. to accept the post of prima donna with the opera company at Manhattan Beach, Denver, for the Summer.

— "The Bottom of the Sea" Co. closed its season April 30.

— Frances Wyatt, who concluded her season's engagement with M. B. Leavitt April 30, sails for England May 14.

— Gus Mortimer, stage manager of Little's "World" Co., was presented with a diamond scarf pin and a cane by the members of the company, at the close of the season, at Baltimore, April 30.

— Charles F. Chatterton sails for Europe May 11.

— The Opera House, Hudson, O., was destroyed by fire April 28.

— J. Clinton Hall has joined Harry Lacy's "Planter's Wife" Co.

— Phineas W. Nares succeeds Henry Nelson as tenor of the Deshon Opera Co.

— Beatrice Tait, of the "Miss Helyett" Co., and George Foster Platt, of the Kate Claxton Co., were recently married at Philadelphia. Both will retire to private life.

— Louise Brooks, a society woman, of Portland, Ore., and sister of Mrs. Herbert Bradley, made her professional debut at the Marquam Grand, Portland, April 18, with Frohman's "All the Comforts of Home" Co.

— Helen Lamont has been engaged for the Summer season at the Park Theatre, Philadelphia, to begin May 23.

Charles B. Hanford has left the Julia Marlowe Co., having been notified by Manager Stinson that he will not need two leading men for Miss Marlowe's supplementary season. Mr. Hanford is busy with preparations for his tour next season as Marc Antony with the Booth-Barrett scenic production of "Julius Cæsar." He has engaged E. R. Spencer to play Cassius.

— Nettie Cortelyon Guion returned from Europe April 29. Her play, "A Modern Judas," was given a copyright production at London Feb. 25, at the Vaudeville Theatre. Miss Guion intends to have the play presented in this country. The novel of the same name will be published in August.

— Frances Rousseau has been engaged as second prima donna, for the six weeks' season of opera at the Empire Theatre, Philadelphia, this Summer. Herbert Holcombe, the baritone, has also been engaged.

— Joseph W. Shannon has signed for next season with W. H. Crane.

— Charles Jerome will open his starring season in "One or the Other" early in September.

— Hal Clarendon left "The Dear Irish Boy" Co. May 9.

— "The Black Thorn" Co. closed its season April 29.

— Kathryn Webster, of Fitz and Webster, joint stars in "A Breezy Time," is said to be ill. The company closed its tour last week.

— Leo E. Dougherty, the Barnacle Duff of the "Ship Ahoy!" Co., and Josie Hart, of the same company, were married at St. Louis April 19. Fred Miller Jr. was the best man, and Nellie Dunbar the bridesmaid. The entire company attended the ceremony.

— Myra Collins, the soubrette, has closed with the "American Hero" Co., and is visiting friends at Cincinnati.

— Lillian Stillman, the soubrette, is being starred by Moore & Livingston through the North and West. New printing has been prepared for this Summer's season.

— Arthur E. Seymour, proprietor of the Nicolett Hotel, St. Joseph, Mo., will, in conjunction with his business, act as press agent and manage the programme at Tootle's Opera House the coming season.

— Harry C. Todd became a happy benedict at Wellsville, N. Y., May 3. The bride was the daughter of Charles J. Stevenson. Mr. Todd closed season with the "Lost in New York" Co., at Marlboro, Mass., April 30, and, with Mrs. Todd, will join the Gertrude Andrews Co., May 16, at Findlay, O.

— Wm. Schrode, the clown, and the Schrode Bros., acrobats and pantomimists, have been re-engaged for next season with Hanlon Bros.' "Superba" Co.

— W. G. Gilbert's Dramatic Co. dedicated Metzler & Layton's Opera House, Covington, Ind., April 29, to a packed house in "Under the Gaslight." The following is the roster: W. G. Gilbert, Lee Harter, Geo. Port, Andy Wiles, Chas. Hull, H. Clawson, Will Schma, W. C. Wallace, Julia Ridge, Tiny Townsley, Lulu Diffenderfer, Isa Miles, Honta Gilbert. They carry special scenery.

— The Josie Mills Co. closed its season May 7, at Halifax, N. S.

— The "King Kerr" Co. closed a successful season of twenty weeks at Marion, O., April 23. Annie Kerr joined Ray L. Royce's "Tom's Vacation" Co. at Middletown, O., May 4. F. G. King joined Frank Mayo's Co. at Lima, O., May 7.

— The Laziola Sisters, May Lavarde, May Waldon, Lee Sisters, Lottie Hatfield and Miles and Barron joined the Grieves Burlesque Co. at the Central Theatre, Denver, Col., April 25.

— Manager Walter A. Livermore will visit this city shortly to arrange bookings for his Western circuit, which includes the cities of Marion, Kendallville, Bluffton, Kokomo, Union City, Hartfort City, Winchester, Tipton, Xenia and Frankfort, Ind.

— Cliff Dean, character comedian, has closed an eight weeks' engagement with "The Paymaster" Co., doing the Irish comedy part of Larry O'Brien. The company closed April 26 at Paducah, Ky., and Mr. Dean speaks very highly of the management in paying fares of the people to their homes.

— The Gotham City Quartet, composed of Messrs. Lang, Bryant, Wright and Putnam, closed with Mackie's "Grimes' Cellar Door" Co., May 7, and will play dates for the balance of the season.

— Manager F. H. Frost and Mabel and Flora Frost, of the Frost & Fanshawe Co., mourn the death of their father, Col. E. C. Frost, who died at their home, at Elmira, N. Y., Easter Sunday. Col. Frost was in his eighty-fifth year, and was at one time quite wealthy. He built the first and only street car railroad at Watkins, N. Y., where he also built and managed the Glen Park Hotel.

— The Baldwin-Melville Co., after filling a prosperous season through the South, opened a Spring and Summer season at Springfield, Ill., May 2, under the personal management of Walter S. Baldwin. This company has not lost a night since Aug. 28, 1890, and covered an area from Duluth, Minn., to Troy, N. Y., playing South to San Antonio, Tex., thence North to Springfield, Mo., thence up through Michigan, doing the Lake Country, and over the Northwestern Circuit to California.

— Reports of good business come from Kirk Armstrong's "Pete Peterson" Co., which includes the following people in its roster: Chris. Green, Chetro Pluesha, Ed. O'Connor, Prof. P. Cohen, Harry Willis, H. C. Coyle, Jed Williams, Alice Willard, Marie Gilbart, Della Delmore, La Tasca Sisters, Tillie Olson and Bertie French.

— Will E. Burton's "Tom Sawyer" Co. propose to play during the entire Summer.

— At Buffalo, N. Y., May 7, Stuart Robson closed the most successful and profitable tour that he has ever known. He arrived in this city Monday morning, 9.

— Sol Smith Russell ended his season May 7, at Chicago. He has arranged to play in that city during the entire season of the World's Fair, beginning May 1, 1893, and continuing six months. He will then produce three or four new plays.

— May Loranger, leading lady of the Labadie Co., has closed her season in Pennsylvania, and is spending a short vacation with friends at Flat Rock, Mich. She has signed for next season with Hubert Labadie in his special production of "Union Jack."

— Mamie Elizabeth Flake was married at her home, Rahway, N. J., May 3, to Wm. Van Rensselaer Reynolds. Mr. Reynolds was formerly the husband of Jessie Dean Glassford, who killed herself in this city about two years ago.

— The Redmond & Del Vecchio Co., now touring Minnesota, report big business.

— Katie Emmett will close her third successful season at Jacksonville, Ill., May 14. Her tour of the South has been one big ovation, and nothing but large houses have greeted her. Miss Emmett's next season will open at the Star Theatre, this city, Aug. 22, when she will be seen in Con T. Murphy's new comedy drama, "Killarney."

— "A Man Born in Missouri," a new play by Charles H. Hoyt, will not be sent on the road next season, as expected. This is owing to the success of "A Texas Steer." The success is in a great part owing to the clever company in which Flora Walsh and Tim Murphy are the shining lights, and, as "A Man Born in Missouri" was originally written for them, the new play will be held back, and they will both be seen in "A Texas Steer" next season. The busy brain of the clever young author has already evolved a skeleton for a new farce comedy which will satirize the bold warriors of peace who enroll themselves in the ranks of the militia in order to avoid jury duty. This new skit will be finished by Autumn, and be sent on the road to fill the dates already booked for "A Man Born in Missouri." Mr. Hoyt, who was in town during the week, left for his Summer home at Charlestown, N. H., where he will take an active part in the political contest that will wage throughout that State during the latter part of the Summer. Mr. Hoyt is said to have political aspirations.

— The New Orleans "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Co. closed their season April 30 at Piano, Ill. There has been no change in the company since the opening. The tour extended from New York State to California, covering every town of importance from St. Paul to San Francisco, with side trips to Winnipeg and British Columbia towns, playing sixty-two towns in California. Three jumps of over eight hundred miles each, viz., Missoula, Mont., to Farmington, Wash.; Eugene City, Ore., to Redding, Cal., and Reno, Nev., to Ogden, Utah. The shortest jump being from Fargo, N. D., to Moorehead, Minn., a distance of one mile. Next season the show will be managed by Pfaff & Goodman, Manager McDaugh going with his musical comedy company. This was C. R. De Wolfe's third season ahead of this company, and at the close the managers presented him with a good purse.

— In the London Bankruptcy Court the first meeting of creditors of Julia Wheelock has been held. The debtor, an operatic and concert singer, professionally known as Mme. Giula Valda, states that she made her debut in 1879, at Milan. In December, 1889, she obtained a divorce from her husband, E. S. Cameron, upon her own petition. The official receiver said the debtor was in attendance, but made no proposal, and consented to an adjudication. She returned her liabilities at £1,253, and there appeared to be no assets. No resolution was passed, and an order for summary administration having been made, the official receiver, acting as trustee, will wind up the proceedings.

— Whallen & Martell's "South Before the War" is reported to be meeting with success through the West. The play pictures the pleasant side of slavery, and gives the people an opportunity to introduce their specialties in the second act. The company: Charley Howard, Billy Golden, Ben Taylor, J. H. Boyle, Carrie Graham, Quianilla De Lorme, Sadie Harris, Dutchie Lewis, Katie Carter, Tag Washington, Dan J. Miller, James Carmenelli, Billy McClain, Mlle. Cordelia, Walker's Merry Makers, J. H. Boyle and Carrie Graham, the Twilight Quartet and others.

— J. W. Jennings calls his new play "Hosea Greenleaf, of Jerico, Vermont," a mono-como-dram. It is a comedy drama in which Mr. Jennings plays all the twelve parts himself. Mr. Jennings says also that his play is the evolution of our old respectable friend, the monologue, and that no play like it has ever been tried. Each of the twelve parts has a distinct individuality, and the story told is filled with pathos and humor. The play will be done this week at Watertown, Ct., after which it will be brought to this city.

— C. Hayden Coffin, the English baritone, arrived in this city May 3. He is to make his American debut 21, in "The Robber of the Rhine," at the New Fifth Avenue—provided that the house is ready on the date now assigned.

— Margaret Mather's regular season closed May 7, with her engagement at the Harlem Opera House. Her business manager, Jos. J. Levy, will make his Summer headquarters at the Imperial Hotel, this city. He reports a very successful tour. Miss Mather will fill a supplementary date under T. Henry French's management 16-21.

— Marcus Mayer, representing Mrs. Bernard Beere, has secured Maurice Barrymore as leading man for Mrs. Beere during her contemplated tour of the United States. It is said that Mr. Barrymore is to have his name apear in conspicuous letters on the bills. Mr. Barrymore is now with A. M. Palmer's "Alabama" Co.

— True S. James and Emeline P. Wallis (Dolly De Verne) were married at La Crosse, Wis., April 28.

— R. A. Russell closed at Norwich, Ct., April 30, with Ullie Akerstrom's Co. John E. Brennan is filling his place in the Mirror Quartet for the balance of the season. Mr. Brennan is engaged for next season with Miss Akerstrom.

— Mrs. G. W. Townsend, professionally known as Jennie Learned, will retire from the stage.

— Lizzie Ingles is playing with "The Two Sisters."

— The new comedy which Milton Nobles is writing for Roland Reed has been christened "For Revenue Only." It is a satire on politics and campaign journalism. There is, however, a dramatic story, cleanly interwoven, some dainty love scenes and a wholesome moral lesson. Mr. Nobles has promised to have the comedy completed and ready for Mr. Reed's approval by June 1.

— The Alba Heywood Co. opened the New Opera House, Lawrenceburg, Ky., May 3.

— Mr. and Mrs. Dan Mason mourn the loss of their son, Clinton, who died April 17, aged five years and ten months. The body has been placed in a vault at Salt Lake City. Mr. and Mrs. Mason are visiting at Galveston, Tex., where they will remain until Mrs. Mason recovers from the shock caused by her son's death. The body will then be brought East for burial.

— Max Hirschfeld, after a year's engagement with the Geo. A. Baker Co., has resigned his position, and accepted an offer as musical director with Jules Grau's Opera Co.

— H. C. Browning and wife have arrived at Peak's Island, Me., for the Summer.

— W. H. Hartigan is playing the character heavies with the Dean & Ketchum Co. this season.

— "Side Tracked," a new four act railroad drama, was originally acted at the Opera House, Muskegon, Mich. Walters & Rawson are the managers. The company includes: Horatio Xerxes Booth, Harry Sheldon, James F. Mackin, John A. Murphy, J. T. McEnary, P. H. Herman, S. J. Rawson, John Murphy, James Mackin, Addie M. June and Bessie Reynolds.

— John E. Ainsley, Annie Kingsley and Josh M. Chapman have been engaged for the Euchred Comedy Co. for next season.

— Edward N. Hoyt has played twenty weeks this season with Wallack's "Bandit King" Co., and since then has played ninety-three consecutive performances as Joe Morgan in "Ten Nights in a Barroom." Mr. Hoyt will Summer at Washington, D. C.

— The Gotham City Quartet, who have been playing with "Grimes' Cellar Door" and "The County Fair," is composed of Ed. A. Lang, John Bryant, Harry Wright and Harry Putnam.

— Julius P. Witmark has been re-engaged for next season by John H. Russell, making Mr. Witmark's third season with Mr. Russell. Mr. Witmark will have charge of the office of M. Witmark & Sons, music publishers, during Isidore's absence in Europe this Summer. Isidore Witmark was to sail for Europe May 11, but he is confined to the house by an abcess forming inside his left ear, and he has been forced to postpone the date of his sailing until 17.

— R. A. Simpson closed his thirty-eight weeks' engagement with the Woodward Theatre Co. May 4, at Sac City, Ia., and joined W. M. Paul's "Lucky Ranch" Co., at Wilber, Neb., 6, for the Summer.

— The "Uncle Josh Spruceby" Co. closed their tour May 3, at Jackson, Mich.

— Peggy Pryde closes her successful eight months' season with Reilly & Wood's Co. May 14 at Newark, N. J. Miss Pryde will be seen in comedy next season. She is considering several good offers from prominent managers.

— Minnie Landis, a graduate of the Paris Conservatory of Music, is the prima donna of "The Isle of Champagne" Co. The tenor is Channing Ellery. Both have appeared in grand opera.

— Mrs. James McKeon, of Boston (nee Hattie L. Richmond), sails May 11 for London, accompanied by her little daughter.

— George W. Lederer has purchased of the authors, Charles Dickson and Waldorf H. Phillips, a comedy entitled "Knight and Day," which he will produce next season with an especially engaged company.

— "The County Circus" Co., under the management of Klaw, Erlanger & Jefferson, open their next season at the Broadway Theatre, this city, Nov. 7.

— Roster of John Dorman's Dramatic Co.: John Dorman, Agnes Fuller, M. F. Phillips, E. M. Crane, Eunice Elmore, Mamie Elmore, Jennie Elmore, Jenevev Stanley, Fannie Ogden, Lizzie Freemont, Wm. Chapple, Clair James, Frank Wilber, Walter Levol and Will Swearingen.

— Daniel Sully and his wife will spend the Summer on their farm in the Catskills.

— The band and orchestra of Waite's Comedy Co. gave a concert at Allentown, Pa., May 8, for the benefit of the sufferers of the Central Theatre fire.

— Agnes Miller, of A. M. Palmer's forces, will sail for her home, England, immediately at the close of her engagement in "Alabama."

— At Denver, Col., May 7, the father of Clarence Dow, whose wife, Millie Price, is suing for a divorce, took his erring son to the Fort Logan military fort, and said that if the son could pass the necessary physical examination he would enlist in the United States army as a musician. After a satisfactory examination, Clarence was ordered to report to the first sergeant of the band, and from that hour he was a private soldier at $13 a month. Mr. Dow said that he would prefer that his son should not be stationed at Fort Logan, and the young man was assigned to the band of the First United States Infantry, stationed on Angel's Island in San Francisco Harbor. His instrument is a cornet, with which he has already made a local reputation.

— Judge Doherty, at Montreal, Can., May 7, in the Superior Court, gave a decision which will tend to put a stop to both local and American managers advertising attractions and performers in Canada and not producing what they advertise. The case on which the judgment was given was that of Mr. St. Louis, a lawyer, who sued Henry Thomas, manager of the Academy of Music, and Mr. Harris, a local promoter of operas and concerts, for the money that he had paid for tickets to witness an opera at which Mme. Scalchi was advertised to appear. When the opera came off the lady did not sing, the managers pleading sickness, but the next evening she sang at Boston. At the opening of the suit for recovery a commission was appointed to examine wit

NOTES FROM DOWNING'S CREOLE CO.—We closed two good engagements at St. Paul and Minneapolis recently, and are now touring the towns and cities of the far West. Manager Downing is now giving a minstrel first part, containing seven men and ten women. The olio opens with the Leonards' sword walking act. Hits have been made by Lottie Holmes, colored serio comic; Cole and Henry, knockabout comedians; Little Annie, buck dancer; and Le She, wire walker. A gendarme drill and march and chorus by Alf. White, with ten females and Gene. Smith as the captain, always receives an encore. The happy little mokes, Goggins and Davis, are popular everywhere, and the show closes with the new sketch, "Sweet Lavender." The company are all in good health. We close at Chicago about July 1. Mr. Downing has contracted with several of the strongest performers for next season, and time has been booked in many of the best vaudeville houses in the country.

BYRON J. TILLMAN, an attorney at Buffalo, N. Y., asks us to inform Eddie Fox, the violinist, that he holds an umbrella belonging to Mr. Fox, which, being a Christmas present, Mr. Fox will no doubt be glad to recover.

WELBY, PEARL AND KEYS closed with Gorton's Minstrels at Duluth, Minn., May 3, and are at Mr. Pearl's home at Buffalo, N. Y., to spend the Summer.

DAN GRACEY, late of Gracey and Reynolds, has recovered from an accident caused by a fall, and is playing dates through the East.

THE following were at the Mascot Concert Hall, Great Falls, Mon., last week: Rose Harper, Minnie Lamont, Blanche Stetson, Lillie Sheldon, Rose Kellog, Eva St. Clair, Viola Hayes and Saville and St. Clair.

W. W. DAYTON presented Ed. F. Slocum with a K. of P. badge at Norwalk, Ct., April 28.

NED THATCHER presented his wife, Eva W. Thatcher, with a handsome diamond necklace April 25, at the Mascot Theatre, Missoula Mon.

GEO. BROOKS, of Brooks and De Wilt, was taken seriously ill while fulfilling an engagement at Poli's Eden Musee, Troy, N. Y., and has been obliged to cancel several Boston dates. He is at his home, at Brooklyn.

MAY WORTHINGTON, late of the Parisian Folly Co., will be known hereafter as Josie M. Russell.

FROHMAN'S OLD TIME MINSTRELS are nearly booked solid for next season, which opens about Aug. 1, at Elmira, N. Y. The following people have already signed: Frank Clayton, Al. Austin, Billy Kent, Keystone Quartet, Breen and McMahon, F. D. Stevens, Charlie Gardner, Mikey Hollerand and Steve Van Zandt. The company will also carry a band of twelve pieces. A genuine old time minstrel show will be quite a novelty.

KELLY AND ASHBY have returned to England after a prosperous season of two months at Paris, Fr. They will soon introduce a new act. They opened at Manchester, Eng., May 2, for two weeks, thence to London for two months.

ANNIE RAYMOND and her husband, Gus Meehan, will work together next season, as Meehan and Raymond.

PROF. J. F. HART, the prestidigitateur, closed his season at New Cumberland, W. Va., on May 7. His tour extended over Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio and West Virginia. The trip had been financially a success. Prof. Hart is at home at Buffalo, N. Y., where he will pass the Summer.

CHAS. GARDNER, for several years musical director of Cleveland's Minstrels, is at West Superior, Wis.

BUNELL AND ADAMS close their season with the English Gaiety Girls Burlesque Co. May 21, and will go to Chicago to organize their minstrel company for next season, which opens in August.

A BENEFIT performance was given May 3 at the Grand Opera House, Atlantic City, N. J., in aid of the Hospital Fund. These people took part: Harry Long, H. L. Keen, Jas. Beckwith, John Boone, Dick Alexis, Jos. Murphy, Chas. Barstow, Chas. Dougherty, P. McKenna, the Three De Acos—John, Millie and Bertie—John Gage, Russell Sisters, Mabel Narbis, Billy Raynore, Harry Saunders and Lew Keen, the American Quartet—Gallagher, Ryan, Scanlin and McCabe—John Ingram, Gilmore and Edwards, John C. Risley, Nick Jeffries, E. W. Crowell, Mrs. E. W. Crowell, Griff Casto, Howard Stevens and H. B. Garrison. Profs. Keller and Braun led the orchestra. J. C. Jacoby was business manager, and Billy Raynore, stage manager. Mr. Raynore appeared at the benefit for the sufferers of the Central Theatre fire, Philadelphia, at the Chestnut Street Opera House 7. He is summering at Atlantic City.

JOHN E. HEALY, of Healy & Bizelow, writes as follows regarding the death of John Latour, which we mentioned last week: "Johnnie Latour had been in our employ for years. He was a peaceable, law abiding man. The Coroner's inquest proves that he was murdered by Mr. Beckman, who is now in Portsmouth (N. H.) jail, awaiting trial, until the October term of court. John Latour was an old time negro performer, and went under the name of Johnnie Leavitt. For years he was supposed to be M. B. Leavitt's brother, with whom he traveled. His specialty was end man and musical moke. His great burlesque imitations of Ole Bull. M. B. Leavitt, C. H. Atkinson, Joe Buckley and Johnnie Leavit composed the old time minstrels to the British provinces twenty-five years ago, and I believe were the first to introduce burnt cork business in Nova Scotia and the provinces, long before railroads were built."

SIM WILLIAMS, late stage manager of the Eden Theatre, New Orleans, La., is now in the stock at the Casino Theatre, Hot Springs, Ark. He will return to the Eden Theatre to resume the management as soon as it is rebuilt. It was burned April 13. The company this week: Bloomer and Stewart, Lena Hoffman, Josie Diamond, Bruce Dickson, Josie Flynn, Gertie Latour, Sim Williams, Clara St. John, Paulin Scott, Aggie Gress and Mons. Bruno.

MONS. FORBER, slack wire performer, is no longer with Prof. W. W. Dayton's Co., having left that show April 30. He has signed with W. S. Cleveland's Minstrels for next season. He is now at his home, Boston, Mass., practicing a new act.

STELLA MORTON has refused several good offers for next season, and has signed with Robert Manchester's Night Owls Co. Miss Morton and Ray Reynolds have joined hands, and will do an act together. After spending a few weeks at Baltimore, both ladies will be married to non-professionals, but will continue to work together next season.

THESE people were at Holland's Summer Garden and Theatre, Fort Worth, Tex., this week: Geo. Delmore, Will H. Stanley, John and Annie Estep, Dixon Bros., Frankie Clifton, Ellena Davis, Marshall and Leavesny, Prof. Bartalmes, Minnie Vincent, Maud De Orville and the Dotts.

THE WHEREABOUTS of Alberta and Billy Lee, or the Lees, are desired by James P. Grust, hospital steward, National Military Home, Dayton, O. John Wizener, Alberta's father, died at the home May 2, and was buried 4. He left a watch and chain, which he desired Mr. Grust to deliver to his daughter.

AT THE GLOBE MUSIC HALL, Niagara Falls, N. Y., last week: Maud Howard, La Page Sisters, McCoy and Francis and John Malone. Tearney and Mahoney are the proprietors. Joe Spaulding stage manager and Prof. Frank Tiebiger leader of orchestra.

WHILE Goggin and Davis, acrobats, were doing their turn at the Pence Opera House, Minneapolis, May 4, Ed. Goggin slipped and fell on some sand which the stage hands had neglected to sweep off the stage, breaking his nose and injuring himself in three or four different places. He is laid up at the Grand Central House (Minneapolis). The team will cancel all further engagements.

CLEVELAND'S MINSTRELS received a good addition this week, at Philadelphia, Pa., in Charles Kenna, banjoist and comedian. Harry J. Howard, the popular tenor; the Higgins Bros., dancers, and James Shults are the latest engagements effected by Manager W. S. Cleveland for his Big United Minstrels next season. It is Henry (not George) Lloyd, the English tenor, and brother of the famous Edward Lloyd, who has contracted with Manager Cleveland to head his singing forces next season.

BARLOW BROS. and their general agent, Al. Dolson, are at Cincinnati, attending to the details of their printing for next season. They have placed the following orders: One forty sheet stand (4x10), three twenty-eight sheet stands, two twenty-four sheet stands, one nine sheet stand, two six sheet stands, fourteen three sheet posters, one five sheet streamer, one fourteen sheet streamer and eighteen styles of lithographs. Every sheet of paper will be special work.

FRANK LEROY will remain at Phœbus, Va., until May 15, when he will go to Baltimore for two weeks.

CLAUDE LA MOTTE has joined hands with Thos. K. Shepard, and they will be known as Shepard and La Motte. They are reported to be making a hit with Wm. Jerome's parody, "He Didn't Split the Wood." They are now stationed at Sparta, Ill., with Healy & Bigelow's Medicine Co., No. 1.

ROSELLE is at Young's Concert Hall for eight weeks. He will join a minstrel company Sept. 1.

THE ACTORS' FUND FAIR.

A Brilliant Success from the Start, and the Receipts in Excess of the Most Sanguine Estimates—About $160,000 Cleared for the Splendid Charity — A Week of Notable Scenes in Madison Square Garden.

After six days and nights of unbroken and unsurpassed success, the Actor's Fund Fair at Madison Square Garden closed at midnight Saturday, May 8. The results surprised even the most enthusiastic promoters of and workers for the big exhibition. Victory had been achieved from the very first, alike in a pecuniary and in a social sense. There were absolutely no drawbacks and no unpleasant features connected with the fair. All the arrangements had been made wisely, and there was so little friction in any of the details that the visitor marveled at the cunning and energy which characterized the conduct of the exhibition. The attendance, which was large enough for comfort on the opening night, May 2, steadily increased, until on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings the big Garden was simply packed. The admission price was doubled on Saturday night, yet even that shrewd move did not prevent a crush. There is no need now to give a minute description of the week's scenes and incidents. It will suffice to record that there was an unceasing activity on the part of the actresses and their friends who were in attendance as saleswomen, share solicitors, vote peddlers, etc. Their persuasiveness can hardly be denied, in view of the nightly receipts, which, starting on Monday at a figure slightly in excess of $11,000, increased handsomely and steadily, until Saturday's grand total reached the sum of nearly $28,000. The total receipts for the week were $101,561.31. Before the fair had opened at all Treasurer Sanger's accounts showed that over $78,000 had been donated, so that the grand total foots up about $180,000. The expenses, it is estimated, will be about $20,000, reducing the net profits to $160,000—truly, a handsome nest egg for the Actors' Fund.

The voting contests were both profitable and (to the outer public, at least) exciting. The contest for the diamond sun to be given to the most popular actress closed at half-past ten Friday night. During the early part of the week Georgia Cayvan led in the contest, and it looked as though she would be the lucky winner. Estelle Clayton started in on Wednesday to loom up on the bulletin board, and quickly went ahead. She held a comfortable lead until late Friday afternoon, when a gentleman walked up and asked that Johnstone Bennett's name be placed on the board for 1,000 votes, handing over at the same time $500. This put Miss Bennett in the lead, but she only retained it a short time. Miss Clayton's friends kept piling up her votes in tens and twenties, until at nine o'clock she had 1,002 votes. Miss Cayvan's friends seemed more numerous, but they apparently had less money than Miss Clayton's, and when the sealed votes were handed in at ten o'clock, a half hour before the contest ended, she had but 700 votes. A big crowd collected around the board, and it was treated to a sight of Miss Clayton sitting above the board in Mrs. Palmer's headquarters, recovering from a fainting spell. Miss Cayvan apparently took little interest in the contest, and remained at work in her booth. Promptly at half past ten the sealed votes were opened, and they advanced Miss Clayton's score 1,000. This gave her 2,480 votes and the diamond sun. Miss Cayvan had 722 votes and Fay Templeton 140 votes. The contest for a gold watch to the most popular actor was won by Charles S. Dickson, whose only rival was Edwin Booth. There was no excitement over this contest, however, as Mr. Dickson's friends had sailed in to win from start. He received 511 votes. On Saturday night three other contests were decided. Georgia Cayvan defeated Mrs. Agnes Booth-Schoeffel in a vote for the most popular lady at the fair, winning a handsome diamond star by nearly one thousand votes in a total of about seven thousand. The most popular prima donna was declared to be Mme. Laura Schirmer-Mapleson, who was voted a $500 prize, while the Hoffman Club defeated "Our" Club in the contest for the $1,000 punch bowl contributed by Lotta. Thos. W. Hindley won the orchestra leaders' contest, getting a gold cornet. Mrs. A. M. Palmer, chairman of the Women's Executive Committee, and to whose earnest and brilliant work the success of the fair is in large share traceable, was presented by the ladies at the various booths, with a diamond star valued at $1,200. Mrs. Booth made the presentation speech. Mrs. Palmer had declined to enter in any of the above contests, and this gift was a fitting token of the friendship and admiration felt for her by the workers. Mrs. Mapleson generously turned over her prize to Manager Palmer. Charles W. Thomas managed a theatre at the eastern end of the garden. It had two stages, one some six feet wide and deep out of all proportions, and the other about two feet wide and of unknown depth. The first was used for trained birds, singers and other parlor entertainers, and the other for the classic drama of "Punch and Judy." The price of admission to the theatre was ten cents, and it was crowded chiefly with children. During the week there were many solid cash donations, Maude Harrison, Mrs. E. E. Kidder, Miss Cayvan and others collecting generous amounts from various political and civic magnates. The flower booth was very profitable, as were the lemonade well and soda fountain. During several afternoons popular actors aided the actresses in selling at the various booths, De Wolf Hopper, Burr McIntosh, Marshall P. Wilder, R. C. Hilliard, Charles Dickson and others specially distinguishing themselves. Manager H. C. Miner, Edwin Booth, Joseph Jefferson, Al Hayman, Mrs. Agnes Ethel Tracy and others were among the week's "big spenders," each opening his purse to the extent of $1,000 or more. Society men of note, political leaders and others well known to the public were also credited with helping the fair by purchases ranging from $200 to $2,000, while $100 visitors were too numerous to mention. A large quantity of things contributed to the fair were left over, and they will be put on sale in one of the rooms of the Madison Square Garden during this week. Even at very low prices, the managers expect them to bring several thousand dollars.

At the Russian booth the sales during the week were as large almost as at any other booth. One of the prominent figures in this booth has been Clo Hart, a granddaughter of William E. Burton, the old actor and manager of long ago; and she was very successful in her sales. Mrs. Frank Mayo is enthusiastic over her success in the Old Globe Theatre. The art sales averaged $500 a day. One of the immensely successful booths at the Fair was the one presided over by Georgia Cayvan and the actresses of the Lyceum Theatre. The sale of photographs at this booth amounted to $3,000. A lady who feels deservedly proud of her work is Mrs. E. E. Kidder, vice president of the women's executive committee. Since the Fair opened she received $1,276 in subscriptions. Estelle Clayton, who had charge of the lamp booth, did a rushing business all the week, and she said just before the Fair closed that she had made so much money that she gave up counting it some time ago. Her sales on Friday night footed up over $900. Miss Clayton had charge of the "Golden Book," and David H. King, Robert L. Cutting, Sr., A. M. Palmer and ex-Judge Dittenhoefer paid her $100 each for the privilege of placing their names in it. The sale of souvenir spoons and plaques was enormous during the week. It was estimated that two thousand large spoons had been sold and three thousand small ones. The sale of plaques containing photographs was also very large. Mrs. Booth is particularly happy over her success in her quarters in the Shakespeare booth. She sold more bonnets and millinery goods probably than any professional milliner in New York during the week. Her sales during the week footed up over $1,000. The receips turned in by Ray Rockwell, the Rebecca at the well, and her tastefully costumed assistants, who were all the week in the big well, amounted to nearly $1,000.

The crowd around the Cleveland diamond during the week was great. The honor of selling the greatest number of chances at the booth belongs to Mrs. Harry Mann. She sold nearly two thousand chances on the gem. After her came Dora Goldthwaite. She sold over fifteen hundred chances, and following her came Mrs. Benson Sherwood, wife of the superintendent of the Garden. Minnie Tittell, who was at the booth two afternoons, sold five hundred chances. At Mrs. W. J. Henderson's booth over $2,000 was taken in during the week from the sale of sheet music and musical instruments. The one booth in the Roman colonnade that did more business than any other was that presided over by Mrs. Fernandez and "Aunt Louisa" Eldridge. The children who assisted at this booth were all features, and turned in as much money as their elders. "Aunt Louisa" on Saturday received a big box through the Custom House from Mr. and Mrs. Osmond Tearle, who are acting in England. It contained a painting of Evangeline, a handsome silver gong mounted in buffalo horns and twenty-five photographs of Mr. Tearle containing his autograph.

An offer was received from a syndicate of Boston early on Saturday, offering to take all the material in the Garden and to give a fair in all of the big cities, the syndicate to pay all expenses and to give the Actors' Fund fifty per cent. of the gross receipts. Mr. Palmer promptly wired back his refusal to entertain the offer. In speaking to Mr. Palmer during the afternoon he took occasion to thank the press, public and profession for the aid they have given the fair. "I want to especially thank the press," said he, "for the magnificent manner in which it has treated this matter all the way through. The aid it has given us has been invaluable. We owe the entire press a deep debt of gratitude that we can never repay. The merchants, too, were more than good to us. The way in which they answered our appeals is simply bewildering. The women who came in at the last minute and worked for us all deserve the greatest credit in the world. As for the women of the profession, I cannot find words good enough to utter in their praise. They have worked nobly, giving up everything for us." As regards the Actors' Orphanage, Mr. Palmer said it would be established in the fall on an unpretentious scale, but that he expected that it would be a credit to the fund in a short time. He added: "We want to wait until the fund reaches $350,000, and then we shall establish a modest orphanage, which shall also be a home. Then, if an actress is left with three or four small children, and is obliged to travel from Maine to George, she can have the privilege of leaving her children at the home during her absence, and feel at ease."

JOHN F. CORDRAY.

One of the best known and most successful theatrical managers on the Pacific Coast is John F. Cordray, of Portland, Ore., whose portrait we gave last week. He is a native of Lancaster, O., and was born on St. Patrick's Day, 1851. He was educated at Columbus, O. In 1866 he entered the employ of Manager John A. Elsler, as property boy. While in this capacity he formed a strong liking for the theatrical business, and finally determined to follow it as a life occupation, hoping eventually to become a manager. His experience in minor capacities admirably fitted him for theatrical management, and in 1876, at the age of twenty-two, he became the manager of the Opera House—the old Town Hall—at Somerset, O., and demonstrated his ability to fill such a position. Two years later he was in the employ of Col. Theodore Morris, who had remodeled the old Athenæum, Columbus. In 1879, Mr. Cordray—who, by the way, is a practical jeweler, and something of an electrician—invented and built for public exhibition a remarkably clever and ingenious machine, which became known as "The Electric Clock." It had over a hundred moving figures, all operated by electricity. It represented the twelve apostles, gave instructive illustrations of astronomy, and played numerous fine musical selections. This entertaining machine was exhibited in almost every city of the United States during the Summer seasons for several years, and brought many thousand dollars to Mr. Cordray's pocket. The Winter seasons Mr. Cordray devoted to theatrical enterprises of every description, and in almost every instance he was successful. During 1885 he was associated with Eugene Robinson's enterprises at New Orleans, and, at the close of the World's Fair, he went to Denver, Col., and took the management of D. T. Keiller & Co.'s Theatre, where he remained two years. In 1887 he started out on the road with his own company, arriving at Portland in 1889. His first entertainments, including the exhibition of his electrical clock, were given in a tent. He met with wonderful success, and, becoming convinced that Portland was a good show town, and was bound to be a great city, he concluded to set his permanent stakes there. He decided to build a theatre for the purpose of maintaining a first class stock company, and giving performances at popular prices. The building of this theatre was a remarkable stroke of enterprise, and proved to the people of Portland that Mr. Cordray was a business man of indomitable will and push. The theatre—a substantial and commodious structure—was built over the tent, and was completed without interfering with a single performance. This house has proved a success, a performance being given every day in the year. The best plays are produced—comedy, tragedy, melodrama, and spectacular—with all the accessories that go to make up a first performance. Some of the plays have run three weeks, the usual run at this house being one week, the idea being to produce a different play every week. Mr. Cordray pays good salaries, and stands very high among professional people. As a business man he has an equally good reputation in Portland, and he is negotiating for the purchase of another site for a theatre and business block combined, a handsome five story brick structure, to cost, with the ground, about $350,000. He hopes to be able to carry out this plan within the next two years, as his present theatre is hardly large enough to accommodate the rapidly growing business. In addition to his Portland enterprise, Mr. Cordray has a theatre in the beautiful and prosperous city of Seattle. It was built by Mr. Cordray in 1890. Both houses are equipped with the latest improvements, and both are conducted on the same plan. They are stock company theatres, and are open all the year 'round.

GRACE FILKINS.

Of the younger actresses on our stage, few have had experience so varied as Grace Filkins. Born at Philadelphia, Miss Filkins made her debut at six as a child singer, and later appeared as the original Josephine of the Juvenile Pinafore Co., organized by J. H. Haverly. Season before last Miss Filkins was leading lady to Sol Smith Russell, winning golden opinions from the critics for her work in "A Poor Relation," both in the metropolis and throughout the country. While with McKee Rankin she played in "The Golden Giant" and "The Runaway Wife," creating the juvenile part in the latter play. With Modjeska, Miss Filkins essayed such roles as Phœbe, in "As You Like It;" Marianne, in "Measure for Measure;" Donna Fenisa, in "Donna Diana," and Mme. Olympe, in "Camille." Miss Filkins appeared in comic opera in "Josephine Sold by Her Sisters," when Col. J. A. McCaull first produced that novelty at Wallack's Theatre, and later she appeared in the original production of "The Crystal Slipper," creating the part of Fairy Graciosa, at the Chicago Opera House, under the management of David Henderson. Aug. Daly engaged Miss Filkins in 1886, and while at his theatre she appeared in "Nancy & Co.," "The Taming of the Shrew" and "Love in Harness." When Mary Shaw first produced "Mary Lincoln, M. D.," by Charles Barnard, at Proctor's Theatre, this city, Miss Filkins was especially engaged to play a dialect character part. When Otis Skinner first produced "The Red Signal" at Chicago, he selected Miss Filkins for leading juvenile business. At the beginning of this season Rosina Vokes engaged the auburn haired actress, and while in her company Miss Filkins played in "Barbara," "The Old Musician," "The Light that Failed" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal." On one occasion, at San Francisco, when Miss Vokes was indisposed, Miss Filkins stepped in at short notice, and played the English comedienne's part in "A Pantomime Rehearsal," dances and all, so well that the papers remarked upon the fact. Her recent work in "The Trumpet Call," produced by Eugene Tompkins at the Boston Theatre, was favorably commented on as refined and artistic. In view of this record Miss Filkins, if she continues in her chosen profession, seems likely to arrive at metropolitan histrionic honors.

Notice to Correspondents.

Our theatrical correspondents are hereby notified that the credentials now held by them will expire on June 1 next. They must be returned to this office at once, for renewal for 1892-3.

— Manager Henderson has engaged Bessie Cleveland for the title role of "Ali Baba," at the Chicago Opera House. He has also retained Ida Mulle, Eddie Foy, Emma Mulle, Henry Norman, Dan Hurt, Arthur Dunn, Babette Rodney, Bessie Lynch, Frankie Raymond, Annie Dacre. Ada Deaves has also been engaged. Martha Irmler will be the premiere danseuse.

— Eugene Robinson's "Paul Kauvar" Co. closed a highly satisfactory tour of thirty-five weeks May 7, at Providence, R. I.

— W. T. Bennette, of the Boston Comedy Co., writes from Canada that Chas. Townsend's new play, "The Woven Webb," is taken from "Neck or Nothing," a military drama by Conquest and Pettit. We are not in possession of the plot of either play, and can say nothing therefore of the soundness of Mr. Bennett's charge of plagiarism against Mr. Townsend, who, by the way, has not produced his work as yet.

— "The Fat Men's Club" having closed its season, Prof. H. Schloss, the musical director, has been appointed to the same position with "The Two Johns" Co.

NEW YORK CITY.

Last Week's Doings.—It was not a wholly prosperous week for the metropolitan managers. They had a powerful counter attraction in the Actors' Fund Fair, which closed May 7 with the record of a success that will probably stand unsurpassed for many years to come. But no manager in town begrudged this deserving charity its triumph, even though it was achieved in part at the cost of the theatres.....Digby Bell's first week in New York as a comic opera star was attended by all the signs of success. PALMER'S was well filled May 2-7, and the new opera, "Jupiter," was received with many marks of favor. It is to be regretted that legal troubles between Harry Askin and his former partner, S. E. Rork, rather disturbed the engagement. On the opening night there were deputy sheriffs in the house, as well as in the box office and behind the scenes. Mr. Rork had levied an attachment on the box office receipts. He obtained his attachment from Judge McAdam. It was directed against his former partner, Henry Askin, who is a part owner of "Jupiter." The amount sued for is an old claim against "The Tar and the Tartar" for $7,000, which Mr. Rork says is owing to him by Mr. Askin. The trouble, however, arises from a complicated matter. "The Tar and the Tartar" was purchased recently by J. J. Rosenthal, who intends to go through the provinces with it next season. Mr. Rosenthal paid the money for "The Tar and Tartar" to Rork & Askin. However, the deed of sale had to be signed by Askin, Harry B. Smith, the librettist, and Mr. Itzel, the composer. Of the signatures transferring the property those of Messrs. Smith and Askin had not been obtained. An attachment for $5,000 was placed upon the scenery and costumes and property of "The Tar and the Tartar" Co., which played at Miner's Theatre, Newark, up to April 30. This attachment was obtained by Mr. Askin, the owner of the play, who asserts that Samuel E. Rork, the manager, owed him that amount for the use of the play. Later in the week, we believe, the tangle was satisfactorily straightened out.....Rosina Vokes' initial week in her welcome Spring visit to DALY'S was devoted to a triple bill, consisting of "The Rose," "That Lawyer's Fee" and "A Double Lesson." The audiences throughout the week were of good size. Flora Clitherow, who made her New York debut with Miss Vokes at Daly's, 2, is not an English novice, as has been reported. Miss Clitherow had Mrs. Kendal as a teacher, and many of that capable actress' methods are noticed in the pupil. Miss Clitherow has also played with Wilson Barrett and E. S. Willard.....The unchanged attractions up to 7 were: "The Lion Tamer" at the BROADWAY, "Incog." at the STANDARD, "A Trip to Chinatown" at HOYT'S MADISON SQUARE, "The American Minister" at the STAR, "The Grey Mare" and "White Roses" at the LYCEUM, "Child of Fortune" at the CASINO, "A Jolly Surprise" at the BIJOU, "Reilly and the 400" at HARRIGAN'S, "Across the Potomac" at PROCTOR'S TWENTY-THIRD STREET, "Polly Middles" at the FOURTEENTH STREET, "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows" at HERRMANN'S and Cora Tanner, in "Husband and Wife" and "Drifted Apart," at the GARDEN. Harrigan's closed its second remarkably prosperous season night of 7, "Reilly and the 400" having been revived since April 18. Charles S. Dickson and his company played "Incog." for the one hundredth and last time in town at the Standard 7. Souvenirs marked the occasion. Francis Wilson's engagement at the Broadway closed 7, having lasted since Oct. 5, 1891. "White Roses" was withdrawn as the curtain raiser at the Lyceum 7. Georgia Cayvan was not in the cast at the Lyceum evening of 2, and "White Roses" was omitted from the bill in order to allow her to participate in the opening exercises of the Actors' Fund Fair. Miss Cayvan was seen 3, and for the rest of the week, going from the theatre, after the performance of "White Roses" to take charge of the Lyceum booth at the Fair. Week stands were ended 7 by Nellie McHenry, in "A Night at the Circus," at the GRAND OPERA HOUSE; Daniel Frohman's Co., in "The Charity Ball," at the COLUMBUS; Margaret Mather, in "The Egyptian," at the HARLEM OPERA HOUSE; J. B. Mackie, in "Grimes' Cellar Door," at H. R. JACOBS'; Dore Davidson and Ramie Austin, in "Dangers of a Great City," at the PEOPLE'S; the Columbia College Dramatic Club, in "Blue Eyed Susan," at the ACADEMY, and Janauschek, in "The Harvest Moon," at the WINDSOR. The New Park on 7 passed from the control of W. M. Dunlevy back to that of Hyde & Behman, its owners. Vernona Jarbeau's week in "Starlight" had been quite profitable, and her manager desired to stay longer, but Mr. Dunlevy could not arrange it with Hyde & Behman. Manager Dunlevy, whose health is not robust, informs us that he will take a two years' rest in the West. Mme. Janauschek's tour closed 7 at the WINDSOR. It is understood that her formal farewell to the stage will be made in this city later, when she will receive a benefit that promises to be notable. J. B. Mackie's season closed 7, at H. R. Jacobs'.....The UNION SQUARE was dark all the week save on Saturday night, 7, when a concert was given by a company under the management of A. Farini, and comprising Mme. Deserio Plato, George Boardley, Mary Hoyt, W. Yanton, M. Friedberger, Mlle. Isbelli and a chorus.....THE THALIA, NIBLO'S GARDEN, HARLEM THEATRE and the METROPOLITAN were dark..... Hebrew performances continued at the EIGHTH STREET and the ROUMANIA, while variety maintained the even tenor of its way at the LONDON, TONY PASTOR'S, the HARLEM OLYMPIC and MINER'S EIGHTH AVENUE and BOWERY THEATRES.....The AMBERG'S week was chiefly one of benefits, the attaches and favorite actors appealing to their friends with generous results. Night of 7, however, there was a novelty in the first American performance of "His Best Friend." This four act farce ("Seine Bester Freund") is by Carl Tellheim and Fritz Brentano, and was originally acted at Vienna and Berlin some time ago. At the Amberg the chief roles were assumed by Herren Rank and Lube. The piece was not very successful.

DE WOLF HOPPER and his merry company opened a month's engagement at the Broadway May 9, to a crowded and enthusiastic audience. The troupe had rested in this city last week, their long tour (of fifty three weeks) having closed April 30; therefore, they were in fine form for their supplementary season. "Wang" was revived, to the delight of all its hearers. There is no noticeable change in the cast. Della Fox, Samuel Reed, Alfred Klein, Marion Singer, Jeanette St. Henry, Anna O'Keefe, Edmund Stanley and Camm Mauvel still render excellent assistance to the popular Hopper, whose admirers on Monday night gave him a great reception. At the close of this engagement Mr. Hopper will go to Europe, returning in ample time to direct the rehearsals of his new opera for next season, and opening Aug. 15, at the Broadway. The libretto is by J. Cheever Goodwin and the music by Woolson Morse. On June 6 "King Kaliko," by Fred. Solomon and Frank Dupree, will be sung at the Broadway for the first time on any stage. It is expected to run about two months.

ROSINA VOKES' second week at Daly's opened May 9 to an excellent house. The triple bill of last week—"The Rose," "That Lawyer's Fee" and "A Double Lesson"—was repeated, and there will be no change in the programme until May 12, when "A Game of Cards" "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal" will be acted for the balance of the week.

HARRIGAN'S THEATRE, it is understood, will start its next regular season (1892-3) with an elaborate revival of "Squatter Sovereignty." Later in the season the celebrated Mulligan series will be reproduced.

DARK.—Niblo's Garden (which is still to rent), Harrigan's, the Union Square, the Thalia and the New Park are dark for the season.

THE boxes for the benefit to be given for the widow of Capt. William M. Conner were sold at auction in the Metropolitan Opera House May 5, by William Easton, and the fund was swelled to more than six thousand dollars. The first choice of boxes was knocked down to Lotta for $500. J. H. McVicker, of Chicago, secured the next choice for the same amount. The Coney Island Jockey Club paid $500 for the privilege of picking another box. Edward S. Stokes, James H. Breslin and Joseph Brooks paid $250 each for three boxes on the first tier. A number of boxes were knocked down at $100 each to the following gentlemen: H. C. Miner, J. F. Caldwell, H. S. Bloodgood, John Chamberlain, Stephen Sanford. Lucien Appleby bid $100 for one seat, and Al. Smith followed suit. Several New Orleans friends set $650 for one seat. Friends of the late Capt. Conner at St. Louis, Washington Baltimore, San Francisco, Chicago, Louisville, Boston, Philadelphia, Nashville and other cities were represented at the sale. Rosina Vokes, Robert Dunlap, Aug. Daly and Joseph Reynolds all secured seats at fancy prices. The benefit will occur afternoon of 12 at the Metropolitan. Volunteers for the performance have appeared from nearly every company now in the city. The list includes Digby Bell and company in an act of "Jupiter," Hoyt's "A Trip to Chinatown" Co., Russell's Comedians, Alice Shaw, the whistler; E. H. Sothern, De Wolf Hopper, Wilton Lackaye, Robert Hilliard and Harry Kernell. The reverses of Capt. Conner during the latter years of his life left his widow and children almost penniless, but the committee hope to realize a substantial fund in their aid by means of this benefit.

JAMES BLACKETT, known professionally as "Quebo, the Zulu," was a complainant in Jefferson Market Police Court May 4 against Prof. Johnson, superintendent of Huber's Museum, and Prof. O'Reilly, a tattooer, connected with the same establishment. Quebo's specialty is to walk on razors. He is chocolate colored, and claims to be a scion of Zulu royalty. He was slightly disfigured 4, his head being swollen and both eyes inflamed. He told Justice Divver that recently he had been performing at Huber's Museum, but terminated his engagement April 30. On May 2 he went to the show as a visitor, wishing to chat with a few of his old "freak" associates, and was surprised when Prof. Johnson told him to take a walk. He protested, and Mr. Johnson called Mr. O'Reilly, who is as skillful with his fists as with his needle, and together they proceeded to pummel the Zulu. Kiki, a freak, who dances on broken glass, and Kaffir Joe, who walks on redhot iron bars, joined in the fracas. For a time it looked as though there would be a wholesale slaughter of freaks, but Quebo gave up the fight, and the others were driven back to their perches. Johnson and O'Reilly swore that Quebo was drunk, and interfered in the management of the museum. The Justice dismissed the case.

THROUGH his counsel, Baron Frederick N. Blanc has begun a suit for absolute divorce from Elizabeth Lawrence Blanc. The papers in the case were served May 3, and name Frederick G. Yuenglaug, a young son of the brewer, as corespondent. Baroness Blanc will have twenty days in which to file an answer to the charges. Deputy Sheriff Carraher took possession of the office and property of the Litolage Manufacturing Company, at No. 62 John Street, of which Baron Blanc is president, 3, on an execution for $46,511 in favor of Baroness Blanc. The amounts named $24,000 salary due the Baron as president, and $22,000 for advances made to the company by him. These claims were both assigned to the Baroness, and judgment was obtained by default, Feb. 4, 1891. Baroness Blanc was on the stage some time ago, in "The Mystic Isle."

THE temporary injunction obtained by Alexander H. Ford, restraing Louis Davidson from producing the play, "Bernice," has been dissolved by Judge Lawrence, of the Supreme Court. The play is founded on the earthquake at Charleston in 1886, and was to be produced in this city before next November. Mr. Ford alleged that he was the author, and was about to produce the play. Mr. Davidson declared that he wrote the play, calling Mr. Ford in to assist him in the dialogue. Judge Lawrence says that there is such a conflict of authorship that Mr. Ford must prove his claim on the trial. Mr. Davidson now has a right to bring an action against Mr. Ford for damages on account of the temporary injunction.

IT IS REPORTED that several well known persons interested in musical matters have subscribed a liberal fund for the maintainance of Anton Seidl's orchestra, which has been about to break up. The amount contributed is said to be $60,000. Mr. Seidl says a proposition had been made looking to the continued and possibly broadened existence of his orchestra.

AN EFFORT is to be made by the Hahneman Hospital, at Park Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street, to have an endowed room for sick actors, where they may be taken care of in beds specially fitted up for the purpose, and surrounded by more quiet and comforts than are afforded to general patients.

AT THE BIJOU, the last week of Fanny Rice's engagement in "A Jolly Surprise" started quite promisingly May 9, the audience being large and demonstrative. Bobby Gaylor will open 16, in "Sport McAllister"—its first New York performance.

THE FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE has as its continued star lively Annie Pixley in her new opera, "Polly Middles." This is the final fortnight of the engagement, which, to the surprise of the company, who had counted upon a much longer date, will close on May 21. Miss Pixley will then go to Europe on her annual vacation. "Imagination," by Sydney Rosenfeld, will follow Miss Pixley.

W. H. CRANE'S long stay at the Star will end in two weeks, on May 21. "The American Minister" will be retained as the play for the balance of the engagement.

ADELINA PATTI will sing at the Metropolitan Opera House evenings of May 10 and 12, and at a matinee Saturday 14.

"MR. WILKINSON'S WIDOWS" is in its fourth and last week at Herrmann's. "Elysium," adapted by Wm. Fleron from the French of one of "Gyp's" works, will be produced next week, for the first time in English. It is expected to have a run of several weeks.

"A TRIP TO CHINATOWN" is not far from its two hundredth consecutive performance at Hoyt's Madison Square. It has broken the farce comedy record in this or any other city.

THIS is the last week of Cora Tanner's engagement at the Garden in "Husband and Wife." The continued curtain raiser is "Drifted Apart." The Bostonians will open May 16, in "Robin Hood." Henderson's "Sinbad" Co. comes to the Garden next month.

"ACROSS THE POTOMAC" continues to enthuse good sized audiences at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, and is booked to hold the boards two weeks longer, Richard Golden following in "Old Jed Prouty."

THE buildings on the Fortieth Street lots, where Sanger & Hayman's new theatre is to be erected, have been torn down. The new house will be called the Savoy.

HERBERT KELCEY and Eugene Ormonde, of the Lyceum Co., intend giving a special matinee performance Tuesday, May 17, of "The Parvenu," which was produced some years ago by Lester Wallack. In addition, they will present a new one act play, by C. Haddon Chambers, entitled "The Pipe of Peace."

DORIS' EIGHTH AVENUE MUSEUM.—In Manager Doris' lexicon there is surely no such word as fail, and, if continued good business be any criterion, his enterprise is steadily bringing him under the radiance of smiling fortune. The curio halls for this week contain many strong features in German Rose, Lilliputian songstress; Texas Ben and Ann, Western expert shooters; an Ethi

THE HENRY BURLESQUE CO., with boxers and wrestlers added, opened an engagement at the Academy May 9 to a fair sized house. The show is practically the same as at Niblo's.

"THE ORGANIST," a one act play, by Henry Arthur Jones, was done for the first time in America May 9, at the Lyceum, where it replaced "White Roses" as the curtain raiser for "The White Mare." In the cast were Bessie Tyree, W. J. Le Moyne, Augustus Cook and Fritz Williams.

THE NEW FIFTH AVENUE. it is certain, will not be ready to open on May 16, the date at first set for the performance of "The Robber of the Rhine." The company were notified last week that salaries would commence 21, and that the house would probably be in readiness by that date. There is considerable grumbling among the people, as they have been rehearsing several weeks.

GAIETY MUSEUM.—The female boxing tournament proved such an attraction last week that Manager Bernstein will continue it this week. Other features in the curio hall—White Eagle Bill, Anna Lyons, Dayton, Prof. Thos. Edwards, Prof. Davis, Mlle. Luciene and Campbell's Punch and Judy. Stage—Harry T. Stewart, supported by the stock, in "The Ranchman's Love."

BECKY HAIGHT AND JOHNNY DONOHUE, performers in Fanny Rice's "Jolly Surprise" Co., went out together between the second and third acts of the matinee performance May 7, for the purpose of buying something in a drug shop in Sixth Avenue. They wore their stage costumes, and looked proportionately picturesque. As they left the drug shop three men on a neighboring truck said to Miss Haight, "Ah, there, baby," or something of the sort. Donohue jumped on the truck and assailed the men. One of them used a whip on him, and he was badly battered, but he gave as good as he got until a policemen appeared and arrested him and one of the truckmen, named George Johnson. The other two drove away. Donohue subsequently got bail, but Johnson was locked up in the Thirtieth Street station. On 8th both men were discharged.

SUNDAY NIGHT ENTERTAINMENTS AND BENEFITS.—Prominent among the Sunday night entertainments, May 8, was the benefit to Treasurer Edward J. Rice, of the Standard. A large audience passed a delightful evening listening to such capable professionals as Mabel Stephenson, J. B. Radcliffe, Master Leon, La Regaloncita, Loie Fuller, Dutch Daly, Emma Pollock, Robert C. Hilliard, Harry J. Connor, Johnnie McKever and Ada Lewis.....At the Academy of Music, Mme. Sisseretta Jones, the colored soprano, was welcomed by a good sized audience. The lady had the assistance of other colored entertainers, whose efforts the audience seemed to enjoy, while the dusky singer's notes were received with rapturous applause.....The benefit to Wood and Shepherd, at the Park Theatre 8, packed the house. Among the volunteers were Harry Kernell, George F. Marion, Otis Harlan, Lawlor and Thornton, Conroy and Fox, Sadie Kirby, Ada Lewis, Eleanor Cleary, Emma Pollock, Jennie Joyce, May Yohe, Bonnie Thornton, Mark Sullivan, Brooks and Denton, Imro Fox, Rita Selby, Laura Russell and many more. The Llecester Square Quartet was well received. About $800 was realized.....At the Grand Opera House, Jules Levy and his band, together with several popular singers, appeared to a large audience, and at the Union Square William Ludwig and the Gaelic Society gave a concert of Irish music.

ELDORADO PARK, on the Palisades at Weekawken, N. J., just across the Hudson from Forty-second Street, was opened to the public on Sunday, May 8. A sacred concert was the inaugural attraction. The Eldorado Band, under the direction of Nahan Franko, played pleasing selections at regular intervals, and Theodore Hock gave concert solos. The regular season will begin the first week in June, when the spectacle, "Egypt through Centuries," will be produced.

MINER'S EIGHTH AVENUE THEATRE.—Bob Fitzsimmons, at the head of a company of vaudevillers of more than ordinary merit, opened here on Monday night, May 9, to a crowded house. Fitzsimmons will meet all comers in his class during the week, and, when no one volunteers to meet him in a bout with the gloves, James F. Carroll, his sparring partner, will wind up with him. The following people are in the company: The Julians, Theo, Conroy and Fox, Vanola, Edwards and Kernell, Frank Moran, Rowe and Rentz, R. M. Carroll, Donovan and Lee, and Rentz, the wizard. Next week, Reilly & Wood's Co.

KOSTER & BIAL'S.—This week's programme presents Carmencita in two new dances, the "Caballero de Gracia" and "La Jota," which she performs to the music of a full chorus, dressed in Spanish costumes, and accompanied by the Spanish Students. This new departure has aroused an entirely new interest in the fair dancer. The balance of the bill includes Dagmar and De Celle, duettists, in a new repertory; Jules Keller, a really wonderful gymnast; James F. Hoey, eccentric comedian and burlesque ventriloquist, and Samuel Dearin, in a unique musical act. The travesty on "Fra Diavolo" remains a good drawing card. On May 16, Mons. Dufour and Mlle. Hartley, two famous dancers and singers from the principal vaudeville theatres of Europe, and who come to this country direct from the Eldorado Theatre, Paris, will make their American appearance.

MANAGER M. W. HANLEY, of Harrigan's Theatre, has concluded negotiations for a three weeks' extension of the Spring tour of Mr. Harrigan's company. They will therefore open June 13, at the Columbia Theatre, Boston, and will play there until July 2, when their season will cease. "Reilly and the 400" will be the play for the Boston date. Meanwhile, Manager Hanley is pushing forward very rapidly and completely the final arrangements for his own venture, "Inspiration," a new comedy drama by Howard P. Taylor (based upon the ideas of John Walsh, of Mr. Harrigan's forces), which will be acted at the People's Theatre May 23, for the first time on any stage. The cast has been completed by the engagement for the leading role of R. A. Roberts, who has been kindly loaned for the purpose by Hoyt & Thomas, whose stage manager he is. The company will be known as "Mart Hanley's Inspiration' Co.," and the genial manager has high hopes that a distinguished success will be achieved. The scenery and effects will be elaborate and novel.

COMING BENEFITS.—The air is generally thick with news of benefits at this end of the amusement season, and, though not in all cases fully warranted, they nevertheless are well patronized by a public that thoroughly realizes the charity which abounds in this most noble of professions. Of benefits which have been announced to come Manager J. M. Hill has tendered the use of the Union Square Theatre for the night of May 29 to Robert A. Duncan, the efficient press representative of that house and also of Mr Hill's Standard .....On Thursday, 12, an extra matinee will be given at Tony Pastor's for the benefit of the family of Patrick Haman for twenty years previous to his death engineer of Tammany Hall and the theatre.....Arrangements are under way to give a benefit to Ernest Hutchison, Lydia Thompson's manager, at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, on May 19. Mr. Hutchison has not recovered from the assault made upon him at the theatre by Charles De Forest. The assault caused the abandonment of the company's plans for the rest of the season. De Forest was to be tried for the assault on 10, before Recorder Smyth .....Chas. A. Welch is to benefit at a Broadway theatre on Sunday night, 22.....Lou F. Shaw, of the staff of H. C. Miner's Bowery Theatre, will be tendered a benefit on Sunday evening, 15. Mr. Shaw has been under the weather for several weeks with a severe attack of pneumonia, but is recovering .....Edward Bull will be the beneficiary at a special matinee at the London Theatre on Thursday, 12.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.—A new play and a star who, judging by the cordiality which greeted his efforts on Monday night, May 9, is a too infrequent visitor to our city, opened the week to a well filled house. The play is an interesting and well told tale of Irish domestic life by James A. Herne. This is a new departure for Mr. Herne for, though a writer of several dramas, this is the first time he has taken his scenes and characters from Ireland. Except to give the star an opportunity to display his proficiency in an Irish character, there was no necessity to locate the story of the play upon Irish soil, for the perfectly natural chain of happenings would appear entirely in harmony with any locality. It is a pretty story, full of good comedy, with never an attempt at the rough hurly burly scenes of Irish life to which we have too long been accustomed. Tony Farrell made his stellar debut in this city in the character of Jerry Doyle. The part fits him to a nicety, giving him the usual opportunities afforded to similar characters. He sings better and with more expression than many more noted performers of Irish roles. His delivery, though at times rather rapid, is always clear and distinct. Three and four encores were demanded and given to each song. The supporting company was in every way capable. Mamie Ryan, with a pretty face and a peculiarly sweet voice, played the character of Mary Doyle with intense earnestness. Jennie Deland (Mrs. Farrell) made a winsome Celia Hay, and Louise Arnot and Lorna E. Atwood gave due prominence to the characters assigned to them. There is the usual precocious child, and in this case deserving of more than a passing notice, while the support in the male line is in the main fully up to the requirements, especially in the part of Long Denny, played by G. K. Henry. There were times when the star role was subordinate to the comicalities of this elongated performer. The play was finely presented. There were horses, a sleepy donkey, an Irish piper who actually plays the pipes and a clever bit of low comedy as well. Following is the full cast: Gerald Ashley, Clarence T. Arper; John Doyle, W. J. Hurley; Martin Coyne, Seth Smith; Jerry Doyle, Tony Farrell; Long Denny, G. K. Henry; Rody, George Earle; Paddy Carr, James Brown; Jemmy Lawlor, T. Edwards; Thady Murphy, Billie Shields; Alick Russell, John O'Neal; Anne Grady, Lorena E. Atwood; Mrs. Mary Doyle, Louise Arnot; Mary Doyle, Mamie Ryan; Celia Hay, Jennie Leland; Little Honor, little Ollie Jones; Lizzie Kelly, Clara Grey; Alice Gorden, Martha Murphy. Executive staff—E. A. Higgins, general agent; Chas. E. Ross, advertising agent; Clarence T. Arper, stage manager; William Loraine, musical director; R. W. Jones, machinist. Next week, Mattie Vickers, in "Edelweiss."

LONDON THEATRE.—After a series of combinations follows a house show this week. The list has been judiciously selected. Lorrenia, the magician, opens the olio, followed by Nellie Daly, the vocalist, her New York debut. Daly and Pearl, in a black face act, did well, and gave way to Anzo and Lee, in a good head balance and posturing act. Felix and Claxton's act gained approval. Collins and Welch, warblers, singers and dancers, were rewarded, as usual, for their efforts. Duncan, ventriloquist, and Roger and Belle Dolan made a hit. Binns and Burns were well received in their musical act. Armand and Raymond introduced some new features, and Robi and Siegrist, in their act, "Excitement," closed the show. Next week, Lester & Williams' "Me and Jack."

MINER'S BOWERY.—The company this week is booked as "Frank Bush's Congress of Vaudeville Stars." It includes the Marions (Frank and Clara), Isabel Ward, Allyn and Lingard, Emma Lee, Weston Brothers, Mamie Huth, Imro Fox, Frank Bush, Baldwin and Daly. As easily seen, the programme is a good one, and all the favorites received hearty encouragement. The specialties were followed by an amateur sparring contest, which form of amusement is all the rage at present, it seems. Next week, Bob Fitzsimmons' Co.

WINDSOR THEATRE.—The first performance in this theatre of "The Nabobs," and the New York reappearance of John E. Henshaw and May Ten Broeck, occurred at the above house May 9, to a good sized audience. The piece is of the farce comedy order, and is filled with music. It might be said that the entire performance is made up of singing and dancing. Some of the people could be better, notably in the quartet. Quartet singing, as a rule, is always in favor, especially when the four are all good singers, but in the quartet in "The Nabobs" there are only two who are at all pleasing. Alfred Fairbrother, one of the quartet, has a splendid voice and sang with perfect ease. John E. Henshaw made quite a hit with his songs, especially his medley. Carrie Ezier "got there" in great shape as a rough Irish singer. Among the dancers are Kitty Beardsley and Nettie McConnell, very clever girls, known on the programme as "Bella and Della." There are two other excellent dancers, also down on the programme as "Bella and Della," but who, we believe, are Nellie and Minnie Blande, who take the parts of Ella and Vella. May Ten Broeck, as Clara Jolly, was well received. The company, so far as the speaking parts go, is composed of good people. The music is all catchy. The cast: Wood B. Good, John E. Henshaw; Phillip Dropanickle and Scraps, Montjoy Walker; I. Bragg George H. Carr; Will I. Crash, Barney McDonough Mons. Antoine, Alfred Fairbrother; O. B. Neat, John Brighter; Spinage, by Himself; Clara Jolly, May Ten Broeck; Ella, Nellie Blande; Vella, Minnie Blande; Bella Kittie Beardsley; Della, Nettie McConnell; Stella Blanche Henshaw; Rella, Tillie Jardynne; Mella, Alice Veazie; Nella, Zeda Wilson; Waxey, Carrie Ezier. Executive staff Henshaw & Ten Broeck, sole owners; Leon Mayer, manager; E. C. Undener, business manager; Walter A. Philips, musical director; V. D. Hudson, stage manager; John W. Maguire, properties. Next week, H. T. Chanfrau, in "Kit."

H. R. JACOBS' THEATRE.—"The Burglar" is the attraction this week, and the opening, May 9, was enjoyed by two large audiences. The company is composed of good people, who played the parts with such force that those in attendance were not slow in bestowing their applause. Next week, Tim Cronin in "U and I."

THE Summer term of the Lawrence School of Acting will commence June 1. The building has been thoroughly renovated, new scenery placed in the finest class room and all necessary arrangements made for the comfort and convenience of the new students.

STANDARD THEATRE.—"Friends," a four act comedy drama by Edwin Milton Royle, a young Western author and actor had its first New York hearing May 9. The play was originally produced at Salt Lake City, U., Aug. 7, 1891, under the title of "Out of Darkness." A good cast was secured for its Eastern presentation, and a large and friendly audience was constantly vociferous though not always discreet in bestowing approval. Just before the curtain rose, Manager George A. Homan made an announcement from the stage of a disappointment in the cast. E. J. Henley, who had been engaged to play one of the principal roles, sent word that he would be unable to appear on account of sudden sickness due to a severe cold. Mr. Royle, the author of the play, stepped in and filled the vacancy. The plot of "Friends" has already been published in detail in these columns. The theme is conventional, but the story is fairly well told, and the literary style is tolerably good, while one or two of the climaxes are quite impressive. The episodes are generally bright and sometimes original. Verbosity is the worst weakness of "Friends," and this is a fault easily remedied. A judicious slashing of the dialogue would probably prove highly beneficial toward making the performance brisker and more agreeable. Long speeches dotted with ancient axioms, grow tiresome, and quickly overshadow elements of success; and the sooner Mr. Royle awakens to this fact the better it will be for his essays. While the young author displays a deal of tact and considerable experience and sound judgment in the construction of his initial work, he seems to have "searched all through the directory," to use one of his own lines, before he struck a theatric description for it, and even then he shot wide of the mark. He culled from nearly every bed in the garden of amusement. "Friends" is not a comedy drama in the true sense of the word. Lurid melodrama wrestles with giddy farce and the next moment sensation grapples with emotion. Yet it is not altogether unlikely that the conflict may result in profit to its promoters. "Friends" will be whipped into shape as a road attraction for next season. An exceptionally good cast helped no little toward any favor gained for "Friends" on Monday night. As Marguerite Otto that always admirable actress, Selena Fetter, gave a capital impersonation, while a positive and thoroughly deserved hit was scored by Edmund Lyons in the role of a besotten old guardian. Mr. Royle and Lucius Henderson, as two impecunious, struggling young men, respectively poet and musician, were generally forceful and capable. Mr. Henderson, by the way, created quite a surprise in the exhibition of his skill as a pianist, executing several solos excellently. John Glendinning played the villian with his usual intelligence. Mrs. Sol Smith, Theodore Hamilton and Abi Stange had meagre roles with which they did as creditably as circumstances permitted. The costumes and scenery were correct and handsome. The cast: Marguirite Otto, Selena Fetter Hans Otto, Edmund Lyons; Harold Armand, John Glendinning; John Paden, Theodore Hamilton; John Paden Jr., E. J. Henley; Adrian Karje, Lucius Henderson; Mrs. Merryweather, Mrs. Sol Smith; Jennie Merryweather, Abi Stange; Miss Wolf, Marion Giroux; Miss Hartman, Fanny Jackson; Marie, Louise Wakelee; Henry, Augustus Hildreth; Gertrude Perry, Glen Rivers, Helyn Whiting, Pauls Rehne. Alvin Burton, Caryll Miller, William de Wolf and Jaques Carlyle, Geo. A. Homans is Mr. Royle's business representative, and Edmund Lyons stage director. "Friends" is booked for a three weeks' run.

HUBER'S PALACE MUSEUM.—The chief curio hall attraction for week of May 9 is a Maori albino, called Unzie. Instead of being black, like his race in general, his skin is pink, his eyes a brilliant purple, and, for a further wonder, snow white hair stands straight out from his head in all directions, being uncommonly heavy and coarse. He looks like the ordinary albino in museums, but comes of Maori parentage, which makes him unique. Unzie is an educated man, considerable of a linguist, and quite polite in manner. Among the other features this week, Jo Jo, the famous dog faced boy, and some wrestling grizzly bears. The usual stage show is in vogue, and business continues very satisfactory.

TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE.—Novelty is the watchword here, and this week's bill is chuck full of it. To start with, a singer and dancer of much repute in metropolitan amateur circles made her professional debut on Monday night. Her name is Amy Swain, and she is the daughter of Excise Commissioner W. S. Andrews, an ex actor himself. Miss Swain has a sweet voice, of limited range, and she dances gracefully and well. Her costumes were handsome and elaborate. Miss Swain scored an honest success. Her Spanish dance was cleverly executed and she was the recipient of some very pretty floral tributes. She bids fair to become a favorite serio comic in the vaudevilles, though it is said her aspirations tend toward comic opera. Another new thing on Pastor's bill was the initial production by Chas. J. Ross and Mabel Fenton of their skit lifted from Chas. Dickens' celebrated story, "Oliver Twist." Mr. Ross impersonated Fagan and Bill Sykes, and Miss Fenton appeared as Nancy Sykes, in a highly entertaining murder scene, called "The Death of Nancy." The sketch was a decided go, and this clever pair can justly add another triumph to their long list of successes. Harry Watson and Alice Hutchins also lent something of newness to the programme. It was their first appearance here this season. Popular and talented Lydia Yeamans Titus, assisted by her accomplished husband, Fred J. Titus, still hold the fort as tiptop entertainers, while little Bonnie Thornton has every reason to feel proud of her triumphs. Other clever and capable entertainers for this week include Rouclere, necromancer; Frank Riley, comedian and dancer; Petrie and Elise, sketch team; Mildred, mind reader; Montague and West, instrumentalists; Dutch Daly, comedian, and Harding and Ah Sid in their amusing specialty.

GRAND MUSEUM.—This museum will close for the season next Sunday night, May 15, and reopen about Aug. 15. On 16, the Lowenwirth Family Opera Co., who have leased the lower theatre for twelve weeks, will open a Summer season of opera, with "Joseph and His Brethren." The attractions in the curio hall for this week are Annie Bell, Maj. Atom, Eugene Feralto, Mollie Wood, George Lippert and Schlam. The variety company is unusually strong. Clara Bell, Mabel Rice, Major Atom and Scotlan and Osbord, all do good turns, and the performances are wound up by Sebastian, Keene and Mabel Rice, in the ever popular old sketch, "The Mischievous Monkey." The employes of the house have been tendered a benefit today (Wednesday), and volunteers are numerous. Col. Milliken will manage the opera company during the Summer.

"THE STRUGGLE OF LIFE," with its clever scenic effects and sensational situations, attracted a large audience May 8, at the Grand Opera House. Frederick Paulding appeared to advantage in the principal part, and was well supported, the cast including Guy Lindsley, Colin Varrey, Ellis Ryse, Frank M. Kendrick, Walter Stuart, Thomas Maguire, Wm. Bently, R. E. Vance, Adelaide Fitz Allen, Ethelyn Friend, Clara Baker Rust, Mollie Ravel and Lillie Sinclair. On 16, Margaret Mather opens here in "The Egyptian."

MANAGER JOHN H. RUSSELL, of Russell's Comedians, and dainty Amelia Glover, "The White Fawn," are to be married in this city next week, so Dame Rumor hath it "on the Rialto." It is said that the happy couple will immediately sail for Europe on their honeymoon.

ARNHEIM, the tailor, opened his handsome new building at 767 and 767 Broadway on May 9. The entire six floors were open for inspection to all who called, and there was a unanimous verdict of approval for the enterprising firm.

Harlem.—Nellie McHenry, in "A Night at the Circus," opened to a crowded audience at the Harlem Opera House May 9. Next week, Vernona Jarbeau.

COLUMBUS THEATRE.—Packed to the doors was the order of things at this house 9, when "The Little Tycoon" began a week's engagement. Next week, "The Police Patrol."

OLYMPIC THEATRE.—Holmes' Continental Vaudevilles is the name given to the company here this week. Geo. W. Gallagher is the manager. The people: Murray and Aldien, Clark and Williams, Daly and Devere, Polly Holmes, Conners and Quigley, the Sheerans and Zamora, the Mexican daredevil. Next week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties.

HARLEM MUSEUM.—Business is good here. This week's bill: Scott and Wyman, Wm. Ferry, Giovani, Razoretta Zamasso, Floretta, Olive, Elmourne, Punch and Judy, Harry Fielding and Maggie Walker, Geo. Scobie, Geo. W. Wood, Annie and Lillian Trevallie, Cora Ernest, John F. Welch, and Devere and Carll. Manager Toovey sails for Europe June 12 on pleasure.

JUDGMENT for $5,805 was entered 9 against Ferdinand W. Hofele, manager of the Harlem Theatre, and Jannie C. Hofele in favor of the Twelfth Ward Bank on promissory notes made by Jannie and indorsed by Ferdinand.

NEW YORK STATE.

Brooklyn.—Although there is nothing startlingly new in the bills of this week, the offerings are such as should command good patronage. The list is short, one house, the Lee Avenue Academy, being dark on account of the collapse of "The Golden Ladder," which occurred too late to make substitution.

PARK THEATRE.—Drama takes a week's rest and gives way to black art, mystery and illusion. A large audience faced Herrmann May 9, and allowed their faculties to be deceived with evident satisfaction. "Dr. Bill" had many patients last week, and furnished allopathic doses of fun. Next week, Aug. Pitou's Co., in "A Modern Match" and "Geoffry Middleton."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Robert Mantell will appear in three of his favorite roles at this house during the week, opening 9 in "The Corsican Brothers." He was welcomed by a fair and appreciative audience. The play was well staged, and its strong points of scene and stage mechanism were given due emphasis. The changes of the week will be "Monbars" and "A Marble Heart." "The County Fair" did the usual good business last week. "Zig Zag" 16.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.—Well heralded as a mirth provoker, "The City Directory" opened 9 to large attendance. The admirers of farce comedy were out in force, and the excellent company gave them what they wanted, plenty of fun. The dancing of Amelia Glover, as well as the other strong specialties were warmly encored, and the entire troupe was given a curtain call. Business took an upward jump last week, and full houses applauded E. H. Sothern after the opening date. "Incog." 16.

STAR THEATRE.—"The Planter's Wife" moved from the Eastern District and began a week at this house 9. Harry Lacy and Emily Rigl are seen in leading parts, and the first audience was of fair size. Mattie Vickers in "Edelweiss" pleased good houses last week. John A. Sullivan and Duncan B. Harrison 16.

HYDE & BEHMAN'S THEATRE.—Another house bill is seen this week, and played to good attendance at both performances 9. Composition of the troupe: The Clipper Quartet, Le Clair and Leslie, Three Judges, Dutch Daly, Press Eldridge, Ryland and Golden; Adams, Casey and Howard, Johnson, Riano and Bentley, Guyer and Goodwin, and Shedman's Kuno drome. The strong array in the home company of last week drew full houses and was acknowledged the best bill of the season. A selected company will follow 16.

HUBER & GEBHARDT'S CASINO.—Another good bill has been provided by Manager Gebhardt for this week. The people: Stirk and Zeno, C. W. Williams, Mlle. Carrie, Tom McMahon, Frank Gay, Helen Conklin and Minnie Schult.

AMPHION ACADEMY.—After a successful week at Mr. Knowles' Western District Theatre, E. H. Sothern opened here 9, what gives promise of being an equally successful week. He appeared in "The Dancing Girl" before an audience that taxed the seating capacity of the house to its utmost. During the week "The Highest Bidder" and "Lord Chumley" will be put on. The Kendals closed a big week 7. "The Two Sisters" 16.

LEE AVENUE ACADEMY.—"The Golden Ladder" was to have been this week's attraction, but, owing to its disandvantage too late last week for Mr. Berger to fill the date, the house will be dark in consequence. It will reopen again 16, when "Bewitched" will be put on. The house attaches will benefit that week, and the following Monday Manager May and Treasurer Alberry will have a benefit.

NOVELTY.—Manager Robbins this week gives his patrons a spectacular performance in "Around the World." Although seen here pretty frequently in years past, it still retains an interest for theatregoers, and will, without doubt, prove a good drawing card. The opening house was good. Coming 16, "The Black Thorn."

LYCEUM THEATRE.—"The Great Metropolis" will bid for favor here this week. It ought to do well. Business last week was good. Coming 16, "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

BEDFORD THEATRE.—This is the closing week of the season. Boby Gaylor, in "Sport McAllister," is the attraction.

NOTES.—Brooklyn Lodge, No. 22, B. P. O. E., will hold a ladies' social session at the Bedford Avenue Theatre, Sunday evening 15 ....A delegation of fifteen or twenty from Brooklyn Lodge will accompany their delegate, Exalted Ruler Wm. H. Friday, to the session of the Grand Lodge of Elks, at Buffalo, June 15-18 ....Mme. M. Sissieretta Jones will be heard in concert at the Academy of Music 18, when Ernest Jarrold (Mickey Finn) will make his first Brooklyn appearance as a public entertainer.

Buffalo.—At the Star Theatre, "The Isle of Champagne" will be produced May 16-18.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—"The Voodoo" began 9, for three nights. Aug. Pitou's Co. has the balance of the week, which finishes the season here. "Natural Gas" and Stuart Robson fared excellently.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—"One of the Bravest" started for a half week 9. "The County Fair" 12-14. Baker Opera Co. closed a successful fortnight 7.

ROBINSON'S MUSEE-THEATRE.—Luciano Galletti's trained birds and monkeys, Hungarian Band and Alf. Sydney are Lecture Hall attractions this week. Stage—Symonds, Hughes and Rastus, Lucian, Emma Berger, Pearl Raymond, Bebe Riel, Ward and Vokes, and Lottie and Charles Fremont. Business keeps up to the high pitch here.

SHEA'S MUSIC HALL.—This week: Harriss and Walters, Mazuz and Abacco, Kittie Wolf, Sadie McDonald, Grace Milburn, John Simons, Mollie Thompson and Jessie K. Giles.

NOTES.—Many concert halls will not receive new licenses here, as strict regulations have been put in force. Louis Damphier, proprietor of the Buffalo Theatre, was shot by his wife 6, and death is probable.

Forepaugh comes 16, 17 ..Irwin Brothers' Circus opened splendidly .....Manager Edward Madigan, of the Star, is in your city.

Rochester.—At the Lyceum, "Tuxedo" comes May 10 for two nights. The last half of the week the house will be dark. "Natural Gas" played to large receipts 5, 6. Due 19, Cleveland's Minstrels.

ROBINSON'S MUSEE THEATRE.—This week: Curio halls—Valentine's Italian Band, Ventian Pottery King, Howe and Scully and Wilford. Theatre—Fitzgibbon Family, the Lorretts, Little Chip, Lang and Sharpe, Lanra Bennett and Morris and Cronin.

IRWIN BROS.' NEW RAILROAD SHOW give two performances here 10.

Troy.—At the Griswold Opera House, T. W. Keene May 13, 14 will be the only engagement of the week. Gus Hill's Co. had a big house 5. "Held By the Enemy" entertained three good audiences 6, 7.

RAND'S OPERA HOUSE.—Aug. Pitou's Co. did well 2, 3, 4. N. C. Goodwin Jr. had a good house 7.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Mrs. Manager Hearne is visiting relatives at Boston. Mr. Hearne has opened books for next season. He will play house companies exclusively after election.

ALHAMBRA GARDEN.—May Clifford, Carrie Scott and Lillian Melbourne.

Syracuse.—At the Wieting Opera House, May 10, 11, Aug. Pitou's Co.; 13, 14, "The Old Homestead." "Tuxedo" was presented 6, 7, to big business.

H. R. JACOBS' OPERA HOUSE.—May 9, 10, 11, "The County Fair;" 12, 13 14. "The Soudan." Tony Pastor's Co. drew its usual large houses 2, 3, 4. Charles McCarthy's "One of the Bravest" was well attended 5, 6, 7.

NEBRASKA.

Omaha.—At Boyd's Theatre, Francis Wilson comes May 12, 13, 14. Marie Frohman, in "The Witch," 19, 20, 21. Rhea played to good audiences 2, 3, 4. The Miller Opera Co., in "Ship Ahoy!" had good houses 6, 7.

FARNAN STREET THEATRE.—"The Fast Mail," No. 1, comes 8-11, Dan McCarthy 12, 13, 14, "The Two Johns" 15-18, Duff Opera Co. 19, 20, 21. Henry Lee did a fair business the past week.

WONDERLAND.—May 9: J. W. Coffey, Billy O'Day, Sherman and Mann, Dollie Williams, Richard Griffin, the Gleason children, Leona Vanira, Willis and Halpin and Catulle's illusion, "Vanishing Cupid." Business is good.

MANAGER LAWLOR had a voting contest at Wonderland last week for the most popular policeman, the prize being an ebony club gold mounted. There were ninety contestants and the excitement ran high.

WISCONSIN.

Milwaukee.—A successful season of thirty-seven weeks closes at the Bijou Opera House this week, with "The Limited Mail." Mark Murphy's "O'Dowd's Neighbors" drew fairly last week.

DAVIDSON THEATRE.—"The Lost Paradise" pleased fair houses last week. The house is dark this week. The Duff Opera Co. next week.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Dockstader's Minstrels 8, Effie Ellsler 15, 16, 17.

STANDARD THEATRE.—Ada Gray opened 8 for four nights. "The Blarney Stone" 15.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.—Sam T. Jack's Lilly Clay Co. began a week's engagement 9. The Adah Richmond Folly Co. had good houses last week. The Outlaw Burlesque Co. next week.

SLENSBY'S ALCAZAR.—Week of 9: Annie Schaefer and Lila Monte, Cuponti, Sadie Catley, Lillian Williams and Bessie Milton. Business is good.

NOTES.—George H. Nicolai, manager of "A Barrel of Money," spent several days in the city last week. He reports a successful season. He will manage the same attraction next season .... Harry M. Farren, manager of "The Dear Irish Boy," will be married at Chicago next Fall to Lou Miller, a non-professional.....Manager Jacob Litt has changed the title of his new play, in which Annie Lewis will star next season, from "The Nutmeg Girl" to "The Nutmeg Match."....E. J. Holland's Circus exhibited here 9, 10, 11.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia.—The early closing movement is not in vogue this season. This time last year several local managers, who have not as yet made announcement of winding up, were preparing to ring down the curtain. So far the only houses to withdraw have been Kellar's Egyptian Hall, Carncross' Opera House, the Palace, Germania and Arch. The season at the latter theatre expired May 7, when the last performance during Mrs. John Drew's continuous management of thirty-one years was given. The Arch is now in the market, but will probably soon find a lessee. No acting in the Arch Street Theatre ever moved the feelings of an audience more than that event which took place after the performance of "The Love Chase" 7, and which was not acting, although it was the act of an actress. When the last curtain fell, the audience made no motion toward leaving. It was not a very large audience, but it had been very appreciative and enthusiastic during the play, and now it remained seated and applauded with the greatest earnestness. Once was the curtain lifted upon the whole company, and then it rose and revealed only Mrs. Drew, in the eighteenth century finery of the Widow Green. The curtain was dropped, through an error which Mrs. Drew endeavored to arrest by a feminine gesture; but it was raised again. Then Mrs. Drew spoke to the audience, slowly and simply, with a gentleness and an emotion both real and deep and greater than she had ever simulated. She said: "The time has come for me to say farewell. We meet now for the last time as auditor and manager. This is much worse for me than it is for you. It is a wrench for me, I confess it. After a most successful thirty-one years in this dear old theatre (Mrs. Drew's voice trembled here and she paused, unable for some time to regain control of it). I don't know exactly what to say. This week has been a very happy one for me. The only drawback was it was the last. To hear these walls resound with applause for simply acting and nothing more—the acting of an old comedy, merely acting—is something to make an actor's heart almost burst with joy. [Long applause.] I thank you sincerely, you representing the public, for your attendance and for your kind appreciation. I must also thank the entire press of this city. Their notices and criticisms of this play have been more than generous. I should feel proud if I deserve half that the press has said of me. And now let me add the undying gratitude which I feel for the owners of this theatre for thirty-one years of unswerving courtesy and substantial kindness, which I can never repay, but which I am glad of the opportunity to acknowledge publicly now. There is nothing more. I think, to say (again the actress' voice faltered), but farewell, and, as Dickens' Tiny Tim says: 'God bless us, every one.'" The actress bowed her head, her eyes glistened with tears, the audience applauded and slowly rose to depart, and the green curtain descended and hid from view the most remarkable and memorable figure in the history of Philadelphia theatrical management.

CHESTNUT STREET OPERA HOUSE.—"Love in Tandem," presented 9, ushered in the annual Spring engagement of Aug. Daly's Co., which this time will continue, as usual, during a fortnight. Speculation as to the result is a waste of time, since a liberal advance sale invariably indicates the prosperity of the Daly engagements. With the exception of three nights, occupied with profit by the University Mask and Wig Club with a revival of "Mr. and Mrs. Cleopatra," and a matinee and evening benefit performance, 7, in aid of the Central Theatre fire sufferers, the house was dark last week.

CHESTNUT STREET THEATRE.—The Chestnut is dark this week. The season will be resumed 16, when "The Little Tycoon" will be put on for a run, at the expiration of which the shutters will be put up for the Summer. "Rory of the Hill," locally introduced by James Connor Roach, was enjoyed by medium audiences last week.

BROAD STREET THEATRE.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal reappeared 9, opening with a local novelty, "Katherine Kavanagh." "The Disciple," to be presented 13, is also new here. Otherwise, the repertory is familiar. Lillian Russell and "La Cigale" departed 7 after a fortnight of good receipts. H. Grattan Donnelly's new comedy, "Her Ladyship," will be produced by Helen Barry 16 for the first time on any stage.

PARK THEATRE.—"Dr. Bill" made its uptown debut 9. Robert Mantell gave a varied repertory to good attendance last week. What ought to be a prosperous season of light opera begins 16, with a revival of "Genevieve De Brabant." At the head of the company collected by Manager Frank Howe Jr. is Fay Templeton. The roster includes Helen Lamont, Delia Stacey, Leah Van Dyck, Rose Figman, Blanche Howard, Eloise Mortimer, Ida Van Osten, Leona Amrose, Peter F. Daly, Ignacio Martinetti, Charles Kirke, William H. Haddon, Saal Stetson, and T. J. Grady. New scenery and costumes have been provided. There will be a chorus of forty-five voices, and an augmented orchestra under the direction of Adolph Leisegang.

WALNUT STREET THEATRE.—"Little Tippett," an Americanized version of Bisson's comedy, "Les Joies des Paternites," adapted by Harry and Edward Paulton, was produced 9 under the management of Abbott & Teal. The story deals with a case in which Tippett and Newton, two young lawyers, are involved in a series of complications over the rightful ownership of various babies, which are always bobbing up when they are not wanted. The cast includes Charles Coote, Jacques Kruger, Arthur Forrest, Grace Thorne, Effie Germon, Mabel Bert, Master Charles Thropp and Sheridan Tupper. "Little Tippett" is on for a fortnight. After two weeks of excellent business "Imagination" went its way 7. The season at the Walnut expires 21.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—"The Police Patrol" was seen 9. Lewis Morrison's "Faust" drew good audiences last week. May 16, "The Danger Signal."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—The first week of the annual season of grand opera was attended with success, both financially and artistically. "Il Trovatore," "La Gioconda," "Tannhauser" and "Faust" were given during the week to large and delighted audiences. "Cavalleria Rusticana" started off this week's repertory, which includes "Marriage by Lantern," "Tannhauser," "Faust" and "The Bohemian Girl."

NATIONAL THEATRE.—John L. Sullivan and Duncan B. Harrison came 9 with "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands" to close their season. Edwin Arden's "Night and Morning" drew fair houses last week. May 16, "The Struggle of Life."

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.—W. S. Cleveland's Consolidated Minstrels opened 9 for a week. "A Royal Pass" did fairly last week. May 16, "My Colleen."

FOREPAUGH'S THEATRE.—"A Wife's Peril" was revived 9. Isabel Morris leading, supported by Maurice Drew, Claude H. Brooke, Byron Douglas and Carrie Radcliffe. "Guilty Without Crime" was well patronized last week. May 16, "The Creole."

GIRARD AVENUE THEATRE.—"Moss Roses" was staged 9 by Manager Holland. "Fogg's Ferry" was revived to moderate business last week. May 16, "Forget Me Not."

BIJOU.—"Princess Toto" was revived 9 by the Gaiety Opera Co. In the variety bill: Hines and Remington, Glen Magee, Nellie Parker, Silver Bells Quartet, Foden, Prof. Burk's Dog Circus, Sheridan and Flinn, and Tambourine McCarthy. The house was crowded last week.

KENSINGTON THEATRE.—Flynn & Sheridan's City Sports' Co. arrived 9. A vaudeville bill, diversified by fistic exhibitions by Bob Fitzsimmons, drew crowds last week. The season here closes 14.

LYCEUM THEAT

ILLINOIS.

Chicago.—At Hooley's, "Alabama" began its three weeks' stay May 2 to a crowded house. Such was the case each night during the week, and it promises to continue during the entire engagement. "The Broken Seal" will be given week of 16.

McVICKER'S.—Rose and Charles Coghlan's appearance last week, in "The Check Book," was before houses of good size. Admirable stage setting and a well selected company assisted in the success of this mixture of farce and comedy. Although the plot is trivial, the author, Mr. Coghlan, has worked in some effective bits of dialogue and amusing incidents. The play was well received. "The Check Book" will be given week of 9, repertory week of 16.

GRAND.—Sol Smith Russell continues at this house. His audiences last week to witness "A Poor Relation" testified to the popularity of the star, for the house was frequently crowded. "Peaceful Valley" will be given during the fourth week, beginning 8. The engagement closes 21.

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE.—Herrmann was the attraction last week, although after the opening the houses were not over crowded. His entertainment has not undergone any essential change since it was last seen here. "Natural Gas" 8. Fanny Davenport 16 for two weeks.

COLUMBIA.—"The City Directory" was witnessed by large houses last week. "The Lost Paradise" 9, for two weeks.

HAYMARKET.—The Hanlons disported to the edification of West Siders last week in "Superba." Some new mechanical business has been introduced in the piece since it was last seen here. The Bostonians 8, "Ship Ahoy!" 15.

ALHAMBRA.—"The Soudan" pleased fine audiences of South Siders last week. Eva Mountford 8, Tony Pastor 15.

WORLD OF PLAYERS:

— Edgar Selden's friends will be glad to know that fortune continues to smile upon him. His clever farcical comedy, "McKenna's Flirtations," which has been for several seasons a very valuable medium for the drollery of Barry and Fay, is to be produced in England. Mr. Selden received the contracts last week. The bright play will be toured through the thirty principal cities in England and Ireland by two companies, both under the management of James M. Hardie and Frank A. Gordyn, whose success on the other side with "On the Frontier" is well known here. The young author-actor will receive handsome terms, and should profit substantially. One of the companies will open Aug. 11 (Bank Holiday) in London. Mr. Selden will sail from this city for England June 18, to stage the piece, and with him will go two well known comedians for the principal roles. Mr. Selden will return about Aug. 20, in ample time to resume his starring tour in this country. The deal was arranged through Manager Frank W. Sanger, of this city, and G. Edwards Minor, of Chas. J. Abud's Agency, London.

— George D. Melville, who during his recent engagement as clown and acrobat in "The Circus" at the Thalia Theatre, this city, was arrested in the suit of his wife, Anna M. Melville, for absolute divorce, has been directed by Justice Patterson, of the Supreme Court, to pay her $25 a week alimony for the support of herself and their three children, and $150 counsel fee.

— Mr. and Mrs. George M. Kimball mourn the loss of their infant son, who lived only one day.

— The following is Manager Jacob Litt's staff, as far as completed, for next season: Sol Litt, manager of "The Nutmeg Match;" Melville Stoltz, business manager; A. W. Dingwall, manager "The Ensign;" Jo Paige Smith, business manager; John Hogarty, manager "Yon Yonson;" Bert Gonden, business manager; Val Boshell, advertising agent; George Kingsbury, advance of "The Stowaway." C. P. Dearing will again act as treasurer of the Bijou Opera House.

— Thomas Jordan, of McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, Ill., was presented with a diamond stud by the Lilliputian Co. last week, as a token of esteem.

— "The Voodoo" Co. will cease their travels May 14 at Albany, N. Y.

— Daniel Sully closed his regular season at Jersey City May 7. He will open again at Milwaukee, Wis., July 17 and play west to San Francisco, Cal. He will add to his repertory his old plays, "The Corner Grocery," "Daddy Nolan," etc., and also a new venture from the pen of Alex. Sweet, of Texas Siftings, entitled "Tammany Hall," a political satire, and if the Western dog survives it, it will be brought East with Mr. Sully Dec. 1. Rose Watson, all the season with "The Millionaire," will again be with him next season. Business Manager James Galvin, for the past two years with Mr. Sully, will again look after his interests next season.

— C. E. Eldridge will go to Chicago, Ill., this week, for a six weeks' engagement with "Capt. Hearne."

— Manager A. Y. Pearson, of "The Midnight Alarm," etc., will assume the management of the Lee Avenue Academy, Williamsburg, N. Y., Aug. 27, the opening date. The time has been nearly all filled, and the attractions are of the best. Mr. Pearson will remain East with "The Midnight Alarm," Co. A., which closes its season at Pittsburg, June 4, reopening again at Boston, Aug. 13, while Charles Young, who left Jersey City March 4, will take charge of "The Midnight Alarm," Co. B., at St. Louis, and work to the Pacific Coast, staying out all Summer. Mr. Young took a number of new people with him.

—Manager Sam M. Young, of the Melville Sisters, has leased the Star Theatre, Cleveland, O., for a Summer season, and will open it June 27 with popular plays at popular prices. His "Zeb the Clodhopper" Co. will open at Havlin's, Chicago, June 20, with a strong company and new scenery.

—Will K. Hamilton has signed for next season with Ferris' Comedians, to play dialect and character parts.

— Manager John Clark has secured an Irish drama that he will place on the road next season.

— "The Fire Patrol" closes at Newark, N. J., June 2, and will resume again at Philadelphia Aug. 29.

— Jerome H. Eddy informs us that he will next season place on the road for a long tour his new comedy drama, "The Country Postmaster," which will contain many realisms never before put forth. The story is based on fact, and deals with the adventures of a New Hampshire country postmaster during the time of President Franklin Pierce. Mr. Eddy is making extensive preparations. Several noted comedians are being negotiated with for the title role. It is, by the way, worth while noting that a play of the same name was produced in the Winter of 1890 by Arthur L. Fanshawe. THE CLIPPER published the plot at the time. There is no similarity between the stories of the two dramas, however, and only in one scene—the country postoffice—are they at all alike.

— "Hands Across the Sea" Co. close their season May 14, at Scranton, Pa.

— James H. Reilly, the German dialect comedian, will produce a new play next season, "A German Soldier," by Harry W. Emmett. The play deals with the Franco-Prussian war, and tells a pleasing love story. The dialogue is short and crisp, the comedy is neat and quiet, and there is just enough pathos to carry it along smoothly. Mr. Reilly's part will give him excellent opportunities to introduce his songs. Mr. Reilly furnished the situations, around which Mr. Emmett wrote the story. The season opens late in October. Mr. Reilly's present tour in "The Broom Maker" will not close until July 2.

— The Sherman, Tex., Opera House Co. have leased the house for a term of two years, commencing May 1, to A. W. Neville, of Paris, Tex. Mr. Neville has been manager of the Paris Opera House for number of years.

— Clair Tuttle, who is reported to have done well this season in her comedy of American life, "Her Sister," intends to continue in the same play next season. Manager Lew Gleason is making strenuous efforts, and the play will be produced with special scenery, properties and music by a selected orchestra.

— Manager Thos. H. Davis, of Litt & Davis attractions, was among last week's CLIPPER callers. The title of the new play in which Annie Lewis is to be starred by Litt & Davis has been changed from "A Nutmeg Girl" to "A Nutmeg Match." Manager Davis may go to St. Paul to witness the premier next month. He reports a thoroughly successful season with "The Hustler," "The Stowaway" and "Yon Yonson."

— M. E. Howorth's Comedy Co. will not close their season until the end of June.

— Emma Sinclair and Master Eddie joined the Isaac Peyton Co. May 2.

— Alf. G. and Editha Herrington's five months old baby girl made her professional debut at the Worcester, Mass., May 7, with Charles Frohman's "Jane" Co.

— May Louise Aigen's Co., by special request, gave a return performance at Deadwood, Dak., May 5, for the benefit of the Russian relief fund, to a crowded house. Fred Marsh, who has been back with the company during the past three weeks, is again in advance.

— Carstensen and Johannsen closed a very successful season with the Felix A. Vincent Co., at Clinton, Ia., April 30.

— Vera Evans (Mrs. Will McRoble) has presented her husband with a fine baby boy. Mother and child are doing well.

— G. M. Faith has retired from the stage management of "The Castaways," and is now visiting his home at Frankford, Pa.

— At the expiration of their engagement with Stetson's "U. T. C." Co., May 3, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gifford returned to Chicago, where Mr. Gifford will have the stage management of Pain's "Pompeii."

— Charles L. Davis, of "Alvin Joslin" fame, and the owner and manager of the Alvin Theatre, Pittsburg, Pa., was in town all last week with his wife, attending the Actors' Fund Fair. Mr. Davis made liberal purchases at the Fair. He was looking the picture of good health, and a warm greeting was extended to him by his many friends in the metropolis.

— N. S. Wood's Co. close a highly successful season of thirty-six weeks at Montreal, Can., May 7. Their next tour commences Aug. 29 and is booked solid. G. C. Francis, the popular, energetic advance representative of the company, was a CLIPPER caller May 9.

— "Roger McFee, M. P." is the title of the new musical comedy in which John T. Kelly will star next season. It will be Mr. Kelly's first effort in legitimate comedy. The company's tour will be under the management of J. H. Springer.

TENNESSEE.

Nashville.—Both theatres are closed May 2. .....John P. Reilly's Bijou Opera Co. closed a six weeks' engagement April 30. They will play four weeks at Louisville, and there is a probability of them returning here in June.....Manager W. A. Shultz, of the Vendome, is on the road with Capt. Andrew Melville's "Battles of the War." He also has with him the California Quartet, composed of W. B. Atchison, John Consadine, Ed. Inman and Hiram Hooper, and the Hartwell Bros. They will be at the Theatre Vendome May 10 ..... "The Naiad Queen" will be given at the Theatre Vendome week of 16.

CANADA.

Montreal.—Proprietor W. W. Moore, of the Lyceum Opera House, was a visitor in your city last week. He took in the Actors' Fund Fair, and also transacted considerable important business. He has engaged Fred White, a well known professional of many years' experience, to manage the house, which will open on June 1 for a season of straight variety. A vaudeville stock company will be engaged, and there will be weekly changes in the olio. The best people will be played, and the design is to have a high class vaudeville. Proprietor Moore is confident of meeting with success.

No Replies by Mail or Telegraph.

ADDRESSES OR WHEREABOUTS NOT GIVEN. ALL IN QUEST OF SUCH SHOULD WRITE TO THOSE WHOM THEY SEEK, IN CARE OF THE CLIPPER POST OFFICE. ALL LETTERS WILL BE ADVERTISED ONE WEEK GRATIS. IF THE ROUTE OF ANY THEATRICAL COMPANY IS SOUGHT, REFER TO OUR LIST OF ROUTES ON ANOTHER PAGE. WE CANNOT SEND ROUTES BY MAIL OR TELEGRAPH.

Theatrical.

U. B., Norfolk.—The number varies. Write to J. A. Bailey, who will give you accurate information.

E. A. F., Toronto.—1. Smith, Waldron, Lester and Allen comprised the original team. If you read the paragraph carefully, you would have seen that it did not say otherwise. 2. This team originally included Pettengill, Gale, Dailey and Hoey.

"PHARISEE."—It is accepted.

M. H., Williamsport.—The Park Theatre, Cleveland, O., was burned on Jan. 5, 1884.

G. C., Detroit.—They will appear in THE CLIPPER during August next.

READERS, Roseville.—In the Spring of 1871.

THEKLA, Boston.—He has not yet recovered, and there seems to be no likelihood that he will ever reappear on the stage.

C. J. F., Pittsburg.—We should say it would be worth from $50 to $100, according to its merits. The act has been done before, in one form or another.

E. A., Philadelphia.—Write to Mr. Bush himself, as per the notice at the head of this column.

G. M., Cleveland.—There is no published book covering that subject, so far as we are aware.

PROF. E. S., North Adams.—1. See the notice at the head of this column. 2. We cannot supply the recipe you seek. You had better consult with other balloonists.

J. P. G., National Military Home.—See the notice at the head of this column. We have made a note of Mr. M'a death in another column.

W. A. Q., Philadelphia.—See the notice at the head of this column.

"HAND OUT."—1. From $40 to $150 or $200 a week, according to the merits of their act. 2. The Stage Novelty Co., No. 9 Hayward Place, Boston, Mass., may supply you.

GEO. H., New Orleans.—Write to any of the dealers in those goods who advertise in THE CLIPPER. We cannot spare the space for a full description of them.

H. G. McL., Haverhill.—Try R. H. Mayland, Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

READER, Pittsburg.—That company is not as yet booked in your city for next season. You might write to its manager, who will doubtless be glad to tell you whether he intends to play there.

R. L., Pittsburg.—Either form is business like and to the point. There is no established rule for the wording of such applications. Say what you mean to say as briefly and as succintly as you can.

B. F. T., Boston.—Neither is dead, so far as we know at this writing (May 9). J. M. was quite ill some time ago, but we have never heard that he died, and we believes he lives.

R. & H., Washington.—Last season.

FELIX MCG.—1. The price would depend altogether upon the play's merit. 2. Advertise it in THE CLIPPER, read it to such managers and stars as may care to listen to it, and also consult the agencies who deal in plays. Meanwhile, be patient and persevering.

MRS. E. H., St. Joseph.—We do not care to give advice in such matters. Undoubtedly the house is of value as a curio. You had better advertise your want in our columns.

C. VAN D., Northampton.—1. They generally carry a treasurer. 2. From $25 a week upwards.

"CREMATION."—She was born Feb. 19, 1843, at Madrid, Spain, and first appeared in opera in August, 1862, at the Academy of Music, this city.

B. P. D., Huntington.—It seems to be a paraphrase of Richard's line: "My kingdom for a horse!" We do not know who originated it.

G. R. A., Philadelphia.—The route of that show is published in another column. See the notice at the head of this column.

J. F. P., Albany.—Yes, they starred jointly in that play all one season.

Cards.

G. E. W. C., Boston. H gets the third prize. L was fourth on the list, having been thrice beaten.

M. J. F., Louisville.—You must make a more explicit statement. Specify the respective points made by each player.

CONSTANT READER.—D could draw down his ante. There was no pot. All the players passed.

D. D.—The six-ten straight flush is the superior hand.

J. W., Titusville.—J was entitled to a sight for the amount he had up. L had no right to withdraw any of his money covering J's bet.

S. B.—A hand is dead.

Aquatic.

E. E.—There is such a work in existence, published by a firm in Boston, Mass., but we do not remember the name of the book. By writing to the American News Company, of this city, you could doubtless obtain the desired information.

H. E. W., Hartford.—Joey Nuttal is the fastest man who has yet shown in the ranks of swimmers. So far as "championship of the world" is concerned, there is no champion.

Baseball, Cricket, Etc.

T. H. S., Marietta.—Yes. The St. Louis Club won the championship of the American Association four successive seasons, viz., 1885, '86, '87 and '88. No answers by telegraph.

B. F. J., Brooklyn.—The Cincinnati-Boston game last week is not the only one, as several other extra inning games have been played in which neither club scored a run. The list includes one of twenty-five innings, one of twenty-four innings, two of fifteen innings each, and another contest of fourteen innings between professional teams.

E. B., Altoona.—It is a matter of opinion merely, and we prefer not to express ours.

C. S. H., Philadelphia.—One of the most remarkable bowling records in America was made by Jungkurth, a Philadelphia amateur, on May 30, 1882, he then capturing eight wickets for no runs. G. S. Patterson, however, is credited with a comparatively better record in a first class match, May 25, 1889, when playing for the University of Pennsylvania against Harvard College, he bowled five wickets, without a run being obtained off him.

A. M. R., Knoxville.—A wins, his guess being nearer to the total score made in the contest.

Billiards, Pool, Etc.

C. H. E., Lenox.—"Modern Billiards," issued by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., this city, is considered the most complete and instructive work upon billiards yet published. It contains over seven pages of useful information, besides three hundred diagrams of shots.

ST. DENIS CLUB, Montreal.—Your diagram shows that one player in the tournament won six games, finishing with a clean score. That fact should certainly entitle him to the credit of being the best player engaged in that tourney.

Ring.

J. V. H., Harrison.—In the glove contest between John L. Sullivan and Paddy Ryan at San Francisco, Cal., the latter was "put out" in three rounds.

A. S., Fleet.—John L. Sullivan was born on Oct. 15, 1858, at Boston Highland.

T. S., Trenton.—The first man with whom Charley Mitchell sparred in public after his first visit to this country was Mike Cleary, whom he met at the American Institute in 1883, the latter being beaten.

H. A., Hanford.—1. Which of their fights do you refer to? They have met twice in the ring, once with gloves and once without. 2. See THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1892 for answer to question.

D. C. H., Albany.—The Olympic Club, of New Orleans, La., own a piece of ground measuring 224ft. in width by 179ft. in depth. The club house, or arena, as now arranged, measures 129ft. by 140ft. in depth. The building's seating capacity is 4,600, but the club can easily reconstruct the building and make it seat from eight to ten thousand people, as they own quite enough ground to do so.

READER Bellaire.—The first fight between Sam Collyer and Barney Aaron took place at Pohick Landing, Va., and was won by the former. They met again at Acquia Creek, Va., when Aaron was declared the winner.

M., Cincinnati.—The fight between Joe Coburn and Mike McCool for the championship of America took place at Charleston, in Cecil County, Md., May 5, 1863, and was won by Coburn.

J. J. B., La Rue.—Charles Mitchell was born at Birmingham, Eng., of, we understand, Irish parents, although that is in dispute.

Miscellaneous.

MRS. S. D. P., Brooklyn.—Address Clark, bookseller, 34 Park Row, New York City.

M. E. O., Cohoes.—We do not know of any publication of that kind.

L. B., Boise City.—1. Never. 2. No.

H. C. B., Tacoma.—We keep no record of such matters.

C. F. H., Canton.—No. It is a distinction without a difference.

J. R., Seattle.—B wins.

S. G. S., Denver.—All such records are contained in THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1892, which we will forward on receipt of the price, twenty-five cents.

W. J. L., Troy.—1. THE CLIPPER did not declare all wagers off. We held that bettors won or lost, according to the nature of their bets. 2. No replies by mail or telegraph.

J. P. AND P. W., Cohoes.—Dawson loses. He erred in his assertion.

J. K. O., Chicago.—Sept. 24, 1876.

J. R.—We do not possess such a recipe. Consult a chemist.

J. H., Baltimore.—Answer next week.

CHESS.

To Correspondents.

W. WRAY MORGAN JR.—Thank you heartily for the additions; may The C. P. C. flourish per omnia!

JAS. RENNIE, Toronto.—We are always pleased to further your views.

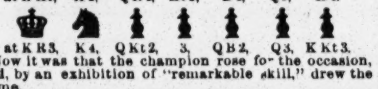
C. O. JACKSON.—Thank you very much for present favors and future suggestions.

S. LOYD.—Please favor us, or spur your secretary up to do so, with an account of your new Problem Association, of which we hear some fragmentary rumors.

Lipschutz-Showalter.

The match for the American championship is now under way, and the outlook is for a long and severe struggle, to abound in long and hard fought games. In the first, Showalter offered an "Evans," which Mr. L. declined by 4..K B to Kt 3. After several well defined turns in the tide of battle, the fiftieth move showed this remarkable position, White having rather the laboring oar:

at K Kt, K 2, Q K4, Kt5, B4, Q5, K 4.



at K R3, K4, Q Kt2, 3, Q B2, Q3, K Kt3.

Now it was that the champion rose for the occasion, and, by an exhibition of "remarkable skill," drew the game.

The second game, a "Queen's P Opening," was about as uneventful as a game could well be. But Mr. S. again displayed masterly power and resource in drawing a difficult position. This result was reached in thirty-five moves.

The third, a "Hungarian Defence" by Lipschutz, was a tremendous battle of seventy-seven moves, Mr. L. having much of the time a rather up hill struggle. But Mr. S., seeing clearly no better result, offered a draw.

We shall give the fourth game, a win in twenty-seven moves for Lipschutz, probably next week.

AGENT the Canadian correspondence tourney, our correspondent, JAS. RENNIE, discourseth: "The divisions desiring it may send moves direct, otherwise I will print and send all moves free of postage and all other trouble. Of course I could only do this weekly; but if sent individually, two or three moves a week are quite possible. If not addressed individually, address 'Chess, 117 Mutual Street, Toronto.' Competitors should send at once six preferred openings, carried to the sixth move pro forma, then I could more probably give each the game he likes—provided any others desire a similar game. Thus I expect something worth publication from week to week, to offset any monotony in giving the same games for a long time."

(a) A novelty deserving analysis; it not only defends his own centre P, but threatens to break up the hostile P's by P to K R 3. The routine move is 10. K to his B 2.

(b) Good play, we believe, if correctly followed up.

(c) He should here, we suspect, have taken the other Kt, compelling an exchange of all the pieces except the Rooks. R could then x Q Kt P, with at least an equal game. * * * For his next move 22..Q × Kt appears stronger.

(d) However hazardous this may seem, the menaced advance of the centre P perhaps rendered it imperative.

(e) After this the adverse K Kt P can scarcely be maintained (unless by submitting to a somewhat servile defence); still, unless we are mistaken, it would have been sounder to play to defend his own K B P by 34..R to K B sq.

(?) Prof. A. subsequently admitted that this was a mistake, and thought that he would have obtained the advantage by first moving P to Q R 4. But this may be doubted; as Herr S. observed, he would simply rejoin P to Q B 3—not R to K B 7, for this attempt Prof. A. would meet with Q R to Kt 6 +, and force mate in a few moves. As it is, his attack is over, and it does not matter much what he does.

Interesting Corollary.

In the Indiana State tourney, W. H. Ripley vs. our contributor, C. O. Jackson.

Notes by our contributor.

(f) Weak; Black might reprise at once and get the best of it.

(g) Should have played 10..P to Q B 3; and Q B to K 3 was stronger than the text move. * * * His 13..was simply loss of time.

(h) Here is where Black gains valuable time, and hence believes the exchange unwise for White.

(i) It would seem that 20..Kt × Q P +, P × Kt; 21..Q × Q, etc., was better for White than the text; but from this on Black wins.

(k) We fail to find any really satisfactory move for White at this juncture.

(l) 26..Kt to Kt 6 +, followed B × R, would have made a very difficult ending for Black; as it is, the reply is the key of Black's final combination.

H. L. Wright has been in this city, and showed up in splendid form. He had his pocketbook with him, and was prepared to play any of the resident players for money as high as $100 a side. In a scrub match for a small stake with Berry Mittchell, he won by the score of Wright, 2; Mittchell, 1; drawn several.....The World says that "Mr. Wright beat D. H. Daley by the score of Wright, 17; Daley, 1; drawn, 23." As Mr. Daley has aspirations for State championship honors, it will be necessary for him to take a few more lessons in the game before he is proficient..... J. P. Reed will shortly issue an analysis of the "Cross" opening in pamphlet form. The best lines have been selected, and all desirable known corrections of Bowen's Cross will be incorporated. It will comprise, with notes, one hundred and twenty-five variations, and will be sold at a popular price.....In the Chicago tournament, Messrs. Starkweather and Crowell divided first and second prizes. Hefter and Baldwin third. They expect to inaugurate a ticket tourney in order that they may improve their cross board play..... Mr. McKelvie, in speaking of Searight, says that there will be a match between Searight and Barker, as one gentleman alone offered to find the whole of the former's stake.....There is considerable talk in Glasgow about organizing a national tourney.....During Wyllie's visit to Edinburgh he was defeated by Jordan by the score of 1 to 0 and 3 draws. Hence the coming match.....Harvey L. Hopkins has presented the Chicago Club with "Lyman's Book of Problems."..... A restricted match of twenty games is being played between Messrs. Slocum and Reilly, of the Chicago Club. The score at present is Slocum, 3; Reilly, 1; drawn, 4.....H. L. Wright's total score with the Coxsackie players was as follows: Wright, 2; Van Loon, 0; drawn, 8. Wright, 2; A. J. Collier, 1; drawn, 7. Wright, 1; Fairgrieve, 2; drawn, 7. Fresh Lacrosse Rulings.

A meeting of the Lacrosse Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union was held in this city on May 4, at which the following letter was adopted:

TO AMATEUR LACROSSE TEAMS: At a meeting of the A. A. U., held in New York April 30, the Board of Governors directed the Lacrosse Committee to withdraw the championship circular issued and to make arrangements for the lacrosse championships, as follows:

The A. A. U. recommends to the Board of Managers of each of the associations that they institute a lacrosse championship, open only to teams residing in their territory, and whose schedule shall be decided before Sept. 10. Then the Lacrosse Committee will arrange a schedule for the championship teams of each association.

If any of the associations do not announce before June 1 its intention to hold the contests, the committee will receive entries from any club in the association's territory and arrange a schedule for such club or clubs. If there be only one entry it will be the association champion.

DIAMOND FIELD GOSSIP.

Latest Doings and Sayings of the Baseball Fraternity.

A dispatch from Butte, Mon., says: "Recently grounds were secured and the Athletic Association commenced erecting a fence. An injunction was secured by the Johns family preventing the continuance of the work on the grounds, alleging that the property belonged to them on a Northern Pacific homestead grant. The ball players secured another injunction preventing the interference of the Johns contingent, stating that the ground was leased to them by parties having a prior claim to the property. Fifty men went at once to work, when the shotguns again appeared, but the Johns were arrested. As soon as they were out on bail they had the fifty men and the principal members of the athletic association arrested on a charge of trespassing. The Johns contingent then went home and made kindling wood of as much of the fence as had been erected. Mrs. Johns and her son Frank were arrested, charged with malicious mischief. Mr. Johns promised not to interfere with the baseball team's plans, but Mrs. Johns and her son went out and with axes knocked down 540ft. of the fence. The baseball people have taken measures to place Mrs. Johns and her son in prison on a charge of malicious mischief."

In the championship contest between the New Haven and Buffalo Clubs, of the Eastern League, May 3, at New Haven, Ct., Blansfield, of the home team, made a safe hit for one base each of the five times he went to the bat.

The Binghamton and Albany Clubs, of the Eastern League, commenced a game May 3, at Binghamton, which was forfeited to the home team at the end of the third inning. Field, of the Albany Club, attempted to steal a base, but was declared out. After considerable "kicking" Umpire O'Brien fined Field $25 and ordered him from the field. On his refusing to go the game was declared forfeited to the Binghamton team.

James Wolf, recently released by the Louisville Club, of the National League and American Association, has signed with the Syracuse Club, of the Eastern League. The later has released Sales, who played second base on its team.

Foutz is pitching in as fine form for the Brooklyn Club as he did for the St. Louis Browns. It is remarkable for a man to cease pitching for several seasons and then go into the box again regularly with good effect against some of the strongest teams ever organized.

Eleven innings were necessary in the championship game between the Columbus and Minneapolis teams of the Western League May 4, at Minneapolis, the former then winning by a score of 6 to 7. The home team made four runs in the first inning, and held the lead until the last half of the ninth, when the visitors batted out two runs and tied the score.

George Meakin, one of the pitchers of the Chicago Club, has been given a ten days' notice of his release. Pitchers Viau and Shearon have also received similar notices from the Cleveland Club.

The Bristols were shut out by the Camden Club May 5, at Camden, N. J., the latter then winning by a score of 10 to 0.

Manager Bancroft, of the Cincinnati Club, recently said: "That Sunday games hurt the week day attendance. On Saturday I believe we would have had a much larger crowd if our patrons hadn't been waiting for the Sunday game with Cleveland. Then it hurts the Monday attendance."

Harry Sterne, formerly treasurer of the old Cincinnati Club, is quoted as saying: "I am of the opinion that the Brooklyn team will win the pennant. I like Ward's men better than any other team in the National League and American Association. It is an evenly balanced team. It is strong in everything, batting, base running and fielding, and barring accidents will finish high in the race. I can't see any team that will shut them out."

The Franklins defeated the Johns Hopkins University team May 6, at Baltimore, by a score of 14 to 11. Eighteen men went to the bat in the first two innings of the Franklins, they then scoring eleven runs.

John M. Ward, captain of the Brooklyn team, is quoted as saying: "The impression prevails that Anson can pick up players anywhere and make first class men of them. Pfeffer's absence from the Chicago team is an irreparable loss, and I don't think Anson and his team will rank very high this year. Hutchison held him up among the leaders last year."

Catcher Hess, who was recently released by the Louisvilles, has signed with the Macon Club, of the Southern League.

The St. John's College team had the Trinity College boys for opponents May 6, at Fordham, this city, the former then winning by a score of 19 to 1. The visitors made only two safe hits off Carmody and Smith, who alternated in the box, while no fewer than eighteen struck out off these two pitchers.

The three championship games of the National and American Association scheduled for May 3 between Pittsburg and Brooklyn, at Pittsburg; Chicago and Boston, at Chicago, and Louisville and Baltimore, at Louisville, resulted in the home team twice and the visitors once being shut out without a run. The other scheduled games on that day were postponed by rain.

The Pennsylvania League failed to secure York as the eighth city in its circuit. The Schedule Committee will meet May 12 at Harrisburg, and during the interim efforts will be made to secure the eighth club.

The opening game of the American College Association was played between the Williams and Dartmouth College teams May 6, at Williamstown, the former then winning by a score of 3 to 0. J. Hollister pitched for Williams and O'Connor for Dartmouth. Only one safe hit was made off Hollister, while four were scored off O'Connor. The game was called in the last half of the eighth inning on account of rain. The same result marked the game played May 7, Williams winning by 5 to 4.

It is announced that Howe, one of the change pitchers of the Harvard College nine, is "on probation" by the decree of the faculty. The penalty prohibits him from representing Harvard in any athletic event, so that the baseball team will be unable to use him, unless the decree is removed.

F. B. Nichols, manager of the Colby University team, was tried May 5, at Waterville, Me., for an assault upon a boy. The testimony showed that the boy got too frisky on the ball grounds, and that Nichols twisted his ear. The Court found Nichols guilty, and fined him $2. He appealed.

Van Dyke, an outfielder, who was released by the St. Louis Club, has signed a Western League contract.

The University of Pennsylvania team defeated the Georgetown College nine, May 4, at Philadelphia, by a score of 12 to 3. Thomson's three safe hits were home runs, his hard hitting being the feature.

The Boston Herald credits Charles Flack, of the Woonsocket nine of the New England League, with saying "that there is no doubt about O'Connor, the pitcher of the Dartmouth College nine, being a professional, as he played in the same league with him in New York State, and as he saw him pitch in Cambridge last week there can be no question as to the identity of the man."

Nines of the Pennsylvania Railroad and Schuylkill Navy Athletic Club played May 4, at Philadelphia, the latter winning by 6 to 5. Fifteen of the winners were retired on strikes by Denny, many at critical points.

The

A dispatch from Pittsburg, dated May 8, says: "Shugart and Raymond, of the Pittsburg ball team, were fined for careless playing in yesterday's game with the Washingtons. Raymond was fined for not running to first base on his fly, which was muffed, and Shugart for not staying at third base when he was told to."

Charles Briody, the ex professional catcher who was reported to be dead, and of whom elaborate obituary notices recently appeared in Boston, Philadelphia and other contemporaries, is alive and well. Our Troy correspondent writes us that Briody had a severe spell of pneumonia a few weeks ago, but he has fully recovered from that and is enjoying life quietly at his home in Lansingburg, N. Y.

Ryan's two excellent throws from centre field in the tenth and twelfth innings had much to do with accomplishing Chicago's victory over the Baltimores May 4, at Chicago. In the tenth Ryan got the ball to Schriver just as Schoch was about to cross the home plate. If the ball had been one second slower or a few feet to either side of the plate the game would have been lost. In the twelfth he got the ball to Dahlen in time to retire one of the visitors who was trying to steal third.

The Cuban Giants made ten runs in the ninth inning of the game between them and the Passaics, May 7, at Passaic, N. J., thereby securing a victory by a score of 14 to 6.

The Amhert College team unexpectedly defeated the Yale College nine May 7, at New Haven, by a score of 12 to 8. The score stood 8 to 2 in favor of Yale at the end of the seventh inning. Bowers then weakened, and the Amherst made ten runs in the last two innings.

A dispatch from Easton, Pa., dated May 7, says: "The University of Pennsylvania and Lafayette College teams did not play today, owing to the former's non-arrival, the reason being that their catcher was sick. Manager Dare, of Lafayette, telegraphed that the game must be played, but Pennsylvania refused to come." A majority of the University of Pennsylvania team witnessed the Harvard-Princeton game on that day.

The standing of the clubs in the Illinois-Indiana League to May 6, inclusive, is as follows: Joliet, won 8, lost 0, per cent. 1.000; Peoria, won 4, lost 1, per cent. .800; Evansville, won 3, lost 3, per cent. .500; Jacksonville, won 3, lost 3, per cent. .500; Quincy, won 1, lost 2, per cent. .333; Terre Haute, won 2, lost 5, per cent. .285; Rockford, won 1, lost 3, per cent. .250; Rock Island, won 1, lost 6, per cent. .142.

The Cornell College team defeated the St. John's College nine, May 7, at Fordham, this city, by a score of 9 to 4.

The Harvard and Princeton College teams played May 7, at Princeton, N. J., the contest resulting in a victory for the former, by a score of 11 to 5. Young pitched for the Princeton team, and was batted hard throughout the game, Hallowell and Hovey each making three hits. Highlands pitched for the visitors, and only three safe hits, including, however, a home run by King and a triple bagger by Mackenzie, were made off him.

We give above the portrait of Frank De Hass Robison, the well known and popular president of the Cleveland Club, of the National League and American Association. He was born Nov. 16, 1855, at Pittsburg, and commenced his career as a baseball legislator at Cleveland, where he took up his residence some years ago, and where he is now regarded as one of its most prominent and influential residents. He was induced in 1886 to assume the position of president of the Cleveland Club, which was then a member of the American Association. He always took an interest in out door sports, especially in the national game, which he believed if properly conducted would become very popular in his adopted city. Mr. Robison has since remained a staunch friend of professional baseball, and the National League and American Association is indeed fortunate in being able to have in its ranks such an efficient legislator. His genial disposition renders him a great favorite with all, and his treatment of the professional players who have been connected with the Cleveland Club has been of a nature that proved successful in getting out their best work and affords an example that would pay other magnates to copy. As a legislator he has certainly achieved considerable renown, it being mainly due to his clever work that the differences which existed last season between the National League and the American Association were so agreeably adjusted and resulted in the consolidation of these two great professional organizations. Some idea of the busy life of Mr. Robison can be formed from the long list of the different offices he holds, and the many clubs and business enterprises of the Forest City that he is connected with. Besides being president of the professional team that represents Cleveland in the National League and American Association, he holds the same position with the Athletic and Kennel Clubs, as well as of the Cleveland City Cable Railway Company. He is also connected in one capacity or another with various other institutions in and about the Forest City, and is in business circles equally as well known and esteemed as he is in his position of presinent of the Cleveland Club.

Small Scores and Extra Innings Marked Many Contests Last Week.

Pittsburg vs. Brooklyn.

Two games for one admission were played May 3, at Pittsburg, the first, which was played under protest by the Brooklyn Club, having been prevented by rain on the preceding day. Baldwin was in fine form in the opening contest, keeping the Brooklyns from making more than seven safe hits, which were widely scattered through five innings. The visitors had three men on bases in the seventh, Baldwin purposely giving Brouthers his base on balls, and thus saving the day. Corkhill closed the contest by throwing out Daly at the plate. The home team batted Hart only in the fourth and sixth innings, when they scored three runs off five safe hits. The lead thus gained proved sufficient to win. Ward made three costly errors. O'Brien was sick, and Foutz filled the vacancy at right field.

Inks' pitching proved too much for the Pittsburgs in the second game, he shutting them out with a solitary safe hit. The Brooklyns batted Galvin out of the box at the end of the fourth inning, having then scored six runs off a like number of safe hits. Camp pitched, and Earle relieved Mack during the remainder the contest. Griffin hurt his thumb while at the bat in the fifth inning, and gave way to Hart. The game was called at the end of the eight inning on account of rain. Collins and Inks led in batting.

Chicago vs. Boston.

These clubs contended for the second time this season, May 3, at Chicago, the Boston team then reversing the result of the game on the preceding day. Kittridge was the only one of the home team to do any batting and he made a double and a single. Staley was very effective, the three hits made off him being scattered through as many innings, and failing to yield a run. Hutchison held the Bostons down to six scattering safe hits and one earned run, the lattar being the result of a double bagger by Quinn, followed by two outs. Lowe took Nash's place, the latter being sick. The visitors fielded faultlessly.

St. Louis vs. New York.

The initial contest of the series took place May 4, Louis, the home team then scoring a victory. The spectators warmly welcomed Boyle, Fuller and King, formerly of the St. Louis. Hardie Richardson made his first appearance with the New York team taking the place of Bassett at second base, where he accepted all of five chances in the field and drove in two runs by a timely double bagger. Rusie and Gleason each had a costly inning. The former was wild in the fourth inning, giving four men bases on balls, three of whom scored. This gave the St. Louis team a lead which the New Yorks could not overcome. Wild pitching by Gleason gave the visitors two of their three runs. Rusie let up at the finish, the home team then getting four safe hits in the last two innings. Tiernan made two of the four scattering safe hits scored off Gleason. Caruthers made two difficult catches, one of which started a neat double play.

The New York team won by timely hitting May 5, thus reversing the result of the preceding contest. The St. Louis batted King freely in the first three innings, when six safe hits brought in four runs. King kept the home team from making more than two scattering hits during the remainder of the game. The St. Louis team led up to the seventh inning, when Tiernan won the game for the visitors by a home run after Fuller and Ewing had hit safely. Brodie made a home run and distinguished himself by five difficult catches at centre.

Louisville vs. Baltimore.

The Baltimores were shut out May 3, at Louisville, being unable to bat Stratton. He held them down to four scattering singles, two of which were scratches. Browning in the ninth inning caught a hit that would have gone into the left field seats, and he saved at least three runs. The Louisvilles batted Buffinton freely, especially in the fifth inning, when they bunched five hits and scored three runs. Jennings did the best batting, his three hits, including two double baggers. Schoch's short stopping and batting were the redeeming features of the visitors' play. Several showers during the day put the grounds in bad condition and caused a small attendance.

Chicago vs. Baltimore.

No fewer than twelve innings were necessary to decide the contest May 4, at Chicago, the home team then scoring a victory by timely batting at the finish. McMahon pitched in fine form, the first seven hits made off him being scattered through as many innings. He was, however, poorly supported in the second inning, when the Chicagos secured three unearned runs, and the lead. The Baltimores bunched three safe hits in the eighth inning, and the same number in the tenth, and thus twice tied the score. Welch lost a chance to win the game by being caught napping at third base in the tenth, and Schoch was thrown out at the plate in attempting to score on a single in the same inning. Three successive singles gave the home team the two winning runs in the twelfth inning. McCrum's umpiring was unsatisfactory, especially his calling of balls and strikes. The weather was very cold, and the attendance small.

Louisville vs. Boston.

These clubs met for the first time May 4 at Louisville, the Bostons then winning after a close and exciting contest. Nichols was wild at the outset, but proved afterwards effective, being batted only in two innings, when the home team scored three runs off four safe hits. Jones did good work in the box with the exception of one inning. The Louisvilles led up to the sixth inning, when the Bostons bunched five safe hits and tied the score. Errors by Grim and Taylor helped the visitors to the winning run. Quinn and Brown excelled in fielding.

Another close and exciting contest took place May 5, when the Bostons batted out a victory at the finish. Meakin held the visitors down to three scattering scratch hits up to the last half of the ninth inning, when, after two men were out, a single by Tucker and a double bagger by Stivetts sent in the winning run. An attempt by Browning to capture a fly that could have been caught by Jennings proved costly, as McCarthy, who was on second, scored. Stivetts also pitched with telling effect, three of the hits charged against him being scratches. Brown made two of the finest assists ever seen on the local grounds, twice cutting off runs at the plate by great throws from deep centre.

Cleveland vs. Washington.

The Washingtons won the opening game of the series May 4, at Cleveland, the home team then having a narrow escape from being shut out. Kilroy kept the home team down to four safe hits, two of which were credited to Virtue, who brought in the only run scored by Cleveland. Wild pitching placed three men on bases in the fourth inning, and McGuire followed with a double bagger that brought in three runs and won the game for the visitors. Both teams fielded finely, the Clevelands playing without an error, while the Washingtons were charged with only one. A splendid throw by Burkett to the plate cut off a run in the seventh inning.

The Washingtons won again May 5 when the contest was marked by faultless fielding. The home team outbatted their opponents, but Killen kept their eight safe hits so widely scattered through six innings that only one run was the result. Radford saved the game for the visitors by capturing a hot liner over second, on which he completed unassisted a brilliant double play. Larkin made two of the four hits credited to the visitors, and his double bagger in the the first inning brought in both of their runs. The weather was very cold, and rain fell during the latter part of the game.

Pittsburg vs. Philadelphia.

The Philadelphias won the opening game of their series May 4, at Pittsburg. Ehret was very wild, sending eight men to first on balls, six of whom scored. Camp was substituted as pitcher in the seventh inning, when the Philadelphias made four successive safe hits, Cross leading off with a home run. The Pittsburgs pounded Weyhing freely, bunching four safe hits for four runs in the sixth inning. Hallman did the best batting. Corkhill made several difficult plays, including a great jump ing catch, the fielding feature of the contest.

The above result was reversed May 5, when the Pittsburgs won by their superior batting. The visitors scored only four safe hits off Baldwin, two of which were credited to Thompson who had made a home run in the third inning, and a timely single in the fifth. Carsey kept the hits well scattered except in the second inning, when the home team bunched three scratch singles after Mulvey missed a chance to retire the side for a blank. Cross made a remarkable running catch, sliding five feet in a mud puddle with the ball in his hand. A curious play occurred in the fourth inning. With Clements and Cross out, Mulvey made a safe hit. Then it was claimed he had struck out of turn, according to one score card, but he was all right according to another. However, Gaffney, after Manager Wright's protest called Mulvey out and let Cross bat again. Shugart led in batting for the home team.

Louisville vs. Washington.

The opening contest of the series between these clubs took place May 8, at Louisville, and resulted in a victory for the home team. Meakin was batted freely, but kept the hits widely scattered. An error by Pfeffer in the first inning gave the visitors two runs, but he played in great form afterwards, accepting all of twelve chances, besides leading at the bat with four successive singles. Kilroy started in to pitch, but was taken out after the second inning, although only one scratch hit had been made off him. Dolan pitched during the remainder of the contest, and was batted freely only in the ninth inning. The Louisvilles lost several runs by poor base running. McGuire gave way to Milligan in the third inning. Jennings's work at short stop was the fielding feature he having no fewer than ten assists.

Cincinnati vs. Baltimore.

An unexpected victory was scored by the Baltimores May 8, at Cincinnati, it being the opening contest of the series between these clubs. The Baltimores batted McGill out of the box in the second inning, when they bunched three hits, including a home run by Whistler. Duryea was substituted as pitcher, and did well except in the ninth inning, when the visitors made two runs off three hits and won the game. McMahon pitched steadily, and proved effective at critical points. The official umpire failing to appear, Harry Vaughn was chosen to fill that position, but his rulings were unsatisfactory, and the contest was marked by much wrangling.

St. Louis vs. Cleveland.

The Cleveland team visited St. Louis May 8, on a special train provided by the local management and returned with a victory the same evening. The attendance was not up to expectation, the weather being cold and blustery. Cuppy did great work in the pitcher's position, holding the home team down to two safe hits, which were made in the second inning, and earned their only run. The visitors virtually won the game in the fifth inning, when they scored five runs off only two safe hits. Breitenstein, who was batted freely only in the eighth inning, was poorly supported.

Cleveland vs. Boston.

The Bostons met with a defeat May 9 at Cleveland. Gaffney failed to appear, and Snyder, of the Western League staff, was substituted as umpire. Both teams played poorly in the field. Young kept the hits well apart, and would have shut out the visitors but for an error by Davis in the second inning, when three men crossed the plate, although only one hit was made. Stovey gave way to Stivetts in the fifth inning. The home team bunched five safe hits off Clarkson in the first and sixth innings, and, aided by a wild throw home by Stivetts to catch a base runner, then secured four runs and the victory. Burkett's batting and Quinn's fielding were the features.

Pittsburg vs. New York.

The opening contest of the series between these clubs took place May 9 at Pittsburg the home team then winning. Umpire Macullar made his first appearance in this game. Elmer Smith, who reappeared in the pitcher's position, held the New Yorks down to six safe hits, five of which were made in the third and fourth innings, and brought in three runs, although poor coaching twice lost chances to score. Smith also did nearly all the batting for the Pittsburgs up to the ninth inning making three timely singles that drove in three runs. Rusie kept the home team from bunching their hits up to the last inning, when three singles gave them the winning run. He was wild, however, in the fourth inning, when he gave the home team two runs. Ewing accepted all of twenty chances at first base.

Eight players have been signed by Manager Ogle for the Johnstown Club, of the Pennsylvania State League. Among the number is Elmer Cleveland, who formerly played with the Columbus and New York Clubs.

Pitchers Lovett and Haddock are still holding out for higher salaries than the Brooklyn management offer them. President Byrne says they will remain idle throughout the season or accept the club's terms. He says there is nothing positive yet in the published reports that Pitcher Terry is to be released to Baltimore, but that he would like to see that club strengthened, and that Terry may be let go there after the Brooklyns return East.

The championship games of the Western League played last week resulted as follow: May 4, at Minneapolis, Columbus, 7; Minneapolis, 6 (eleven innings) At St. Paul, Toledo, 8; St. Paul, 7. May 5, at Kansas City, Kansas City, 4; Indianapolis, 2. May 7, at Columbus, Kansas City, 2; Columbus, 1 (thirteen innings). At Milwaukee, Milwaukee, 8; Indianapolis, 0. May 7, at Evansville, Evansville, 4; Rock Island-Moline, 1. At Jacksonville, Rockford, 2; Jacksonville, 1. At Quincy, first game, Peoria, 6; Quincy, 2. Second game, Quincy, 3; Peoria, 2.

The California League championship games recently played resulted as follows: April 24, at San Francisco, Los Angeles, 10; San Francisco, 1. April 27, at Oakland, Oakland 10; San Francisco, 5. At San Jose, Los Angeles, 9; San Jose, 5. April 28, at San Jose, San Jose, 7; Los Angeles, 4. April 27, at Oakland, Oakland, 5; San Francisco, 4. At San Jose, San Jose, 8; Los Angeles, 6. May 1, at San Francisco, San Francisco, 9; Oakland, 1. At San Jose, San Jose, 7; Los Angeles, 1. The standing of the clubs in the chhmpionship race to May 1, inclusive, is as follows: San Jose, won 18, lost 7, per cent. .720; Los Angeles, won 14, lost 12, per cent. .538; San Francisco, won 12, lost 13, per cent. .480; Oakland, won 6, lost 18, per cent. .250.

Captain Tebeau, of the Cleveland Club, predicts that his team will lead the five Western clubs at the end of the first series. He attaches great importance to the pitching qualities of Young and Davies. He is of the opinion that it was the need of good pitchers which caused Cleveland's hard luck in the past.

Edward Hanlon assumed control of the Baltimore Club May 9, at Cincinnati. John Reilly and Hanlon met that day, and the terms of the first baseman were virtually accepted.

It required eleven innings to decide the contest between the Holy Cross and Yale College teams May 9, at New Haven, Ct., the former then winning by a score of 7 to 6. Jackson and Wyckoff were tried by Yale in the box, and they were batted for twelve hits.

President N. E. Young, of the National League and American Association, on May 9 removed Umpire McCrum, and appointed J. A. Macullar, the ex-professional player, in his place, the latter umpiring the Pittsburg-New York game on that date.

Pitcher Sanders, who is now at college, expects to join the Louisvilles on June 18.

Rain on May 3 prevented the championship games between Cincinnati and New York, at Cincinnati, and Cleveland and Philadelphia, at Cleveland. Rain also caused the postponement of the game between Chicago and Baltimore, at Chicago, May 5, and between Pittsburg and Washington, at Pittsburg, May 6. The games scheduled May 9 between Chicago and Brooklyn, at Chicago; Cincinnati and Baltimore, at Cincinnati, and St. Louis and Philadelphia, at St. Louis, were also postponed on account of rain.

Rain on May 5 prevented the game between Binghamton and Rochester, of the Eastern League, and St. Paul and Toledo and Omaha and Milwaukee, of the Western League. The same caused the postponement on May 6 of games between Binghamton and Rochester, at Binghamton; Athletic and Buffalo, at Philadelphia; Troy and Albany, at Troy, all being scheduled Eastern League championship games.

There is talk of the Cincinnati Club releasing Halligan and O'Neill, two of its outfielders, and signing Johnston. Burke, it is said, will then play right field, while Johnston will be placed at centre and Holliday at left field.

The Schuylkill Navy Athletic Club nine defeated the University of Pennsylvania team May 9, at Philadelphia by a score of 14 to 9. Leiper, who played professionally one season with the Columbus Club, pitched for the winners, and held the collegians down to eight scattering safe hits. Snyder caught well for the Navy nine and led in batting with two triples and a single.

Cahill, the catcher, and for two seasons with the Louisville Club, left Louisville May 8 for Troy, N. Y., to captain and manage the Troy Club, of the Eastern League.

The Charter Oak Stake.

The list of subscribers for the big stake of $10,000 offered by the managers of Charter Oak Park, Hartford, Ct., and which is to be trotted for during the August Grand Circuit meeting by horses of the 2:20 class, has been announced. Eighteen owners have entered, including some of the best known breeders and turfmen in the States. New York State contributes six, including C. J. Hamlin, of Buffalo, who has Playboy, with a mark of 2:19¾; John Hamlin, of Gravesend, who has Frank F., 2:20¼; Henry —, Jewett, of Jewettsville, who has Fannie Wilcox, 2:19¾; the Silver Mine Stock Farm, of Copake, which has Bush, record 2:20¾, and William Weeks, of New York, and William C. Trimble, of Newburg, who have good stables from which to pick winners. Pennsylvania has Jacob Livingstone, of Carlisle, who has a stable of half a dozen fivers. The Dubois Brothers, of Denver, Col., have Harvey, record 2:21, and the Edgewood Stock Farm, of Terre Haute, Ind., will also name a horse. Boston has four subscribers—J. Malcolm Forbes, James Golden, "Jock Bowen," who has Jesse Hansen, 2:21¾, and Stanley, 2:25¼, and The Boston Globe, which will try to start a winner. The other noted New England subscribers are W. R. Allen, of Pittsfield, Mass.; Samuel Hodgson, of Meriden, who has Falcoln Jr., 2:21¾; H. E. Brewster, of St. Johnsbury, Vt., who has Dawson, 2:19¼, and G. C. Morse, of Bath, whose Otis Shaw has a 2:25¼ record.

THE principal event at the Spring meeting at Newmarket, Eng., on May 6 was the race for the One Thousand Guineas, which attracted the customary large attendance of turf goers and resulted in the victory of Baron De Hirsch's filly La Fleche, by St. Simon-Quiver, with The Smaw second and Adoration third.

RACING ON THE HEIGHTS.

Despite the threatening condition of the weather May 3, a large and enthusiastic crowd of people attended the races at Guttenburg. The track was a trifle heavy, but nevertheless good time was made. The number of entries was greatly increased, which furnished abundant opportunity for speculation. Derango winning the handicap at seven furlongs proved the surprise of the day. Charley Kelly was fined $100 for not starting Kingstock on Monday, after the judges had ordered him to do so. In the five furlong selling race Little Fred was bid up to $805, at which price he was bought in by his owner, who had to pay $305 to keep him. Summary:

Purse $400, of which $50 to second, for maidens of all ages, six furlongs.

The Match Game

for the championship of Pennsylvania between Champion Edward McLaughlin and W. M. Dodds was played at St. George's Hall, Philadelphia, night of May 4. This contest was for a side bet of $150 and the Stroup championship emblem, the provisions being a 14-inch balk line game, 400 points up, to be played on a 5x10 Brunswick-Balke Collender Co. table, with 2⅜ inch balls. Between 300 and 400 people assembled to witness the match. That McLaughlin ran away from his opponent is shown by the appended score of the contest.

The Double Scull Match.

George H. Hosmer, who is at present training the amateur oarsmen of the Passaic Boat Club, of Passaic, N. J., called at THE CLIPPER office one day last week, and informed us that the date and place where the race in which he and John Teemer will be opposed to Champion William O'Connor and Ed. Hanlan for the championship have not as yet been settled upon. The arrangement to row at Point of Pines, Mass., could not be carried out for several reasons, and, although they had received offers from several places to bring the match off on other waters, nothing definite had been done. It was probable, however, that the race would take place at Lake Calumet, Pullman, Ill., on some other date than that originally fixed. George further said that, regarding Rastus Rogers, of Saratoga, who has manifested a desire to make a match with him for a single scull race at three miles, the latter need not allow the matter of a deposit at this time to deter him from accomplishing his desire, as he (Hosmer) will come to this city to make the match with him at any time, the race, of course, to come after the double scull championship will have been decided. Concerning his future movements, George states that he contemplates taking a trip to England and the Continent in the Fall, going professionally, but whether he concludes to go or not, he does not think that he will be seen on the dramatic stage during the coming Fall and Winter.

THERE is talk of a race being sailed on Sunday, May 15, between Charles J. Larzelere's new cabin catboat Juanita, F. Townsend's Truant and J. Rummel's Edna D. The Juanita has had some two or three trial trips, and it is believed by the Brooklyn Yacht Club members that she is very speedy. Ed. Ames tested her April 24, and feels confident that Larzelere has a gem.

TWO HOURS were spent in considering the question of sending an exhibit of models to the Chicago World's Fair by the committee appointed by the New York Yacht Club, May 5, but they have concluded not to make public their views until the general meeting of the club May 19.

THE new forty-six footer Wasp, N. Y. Y. C., Archibald Rogers, is now in readiness for business. She will start in the first race of the season, held by the Larchmont and Seawanhaka Clubs, and will take part in the annual regattas of the Atlantic and New York Clubs.

WARNING

I hereby repeat my warning to all managers of theatres against producing "PETE PETERSON," as it is a version of my COPYRIGHTED comedy, "SQUABBLES," first produced by me on any stage at Naperville, Ill., Feb. 23, '91, and appropriated by KIRK ARMSTRONG, who was then a member of my company. Since my warning to managers appeared in THE CLIPPER, MR. MARSHALL, local manager at Ashland, Wis., informed me that he received a letter purporting to come from a lawyer, in which he states, after having carefully compared the MSS. of "SQUABBLES" and "PETE PETERSON," he is satisfied they are totally different. Pray, where did this lawyer, obtain a MS. of "SQUABBLES?" There are only supposed to be three in existence, two deposited with the Librarian of Congress, the other in my trunk.

I will furnish several witnesses who have seen both plays that will prove that the dialogue, scenes and situations produced by KIRK ARSTRONG in "PETE PETERSON," at Mankato and Stillwater, Minn., also a short time ago in Chicago, are almost identical with my comedy of "SQUABBLES." One of these witnesses is MR. WISEMAN, of Minneapolis, who copied the parts from a MS. given him by ARMSTRONG, which he recognized as "SQUABBLES," with the exception of the interpolation of a Swede character, to which had been given the principal lines of my Irish comedy part.

In a word, Mr. Armstrong is no more the author of the play produced as "Pete Peterson" than he was of the Acrostic on "George Washington," published some time ago in these columns, to which he unblushingly signed his name, and was scathingly denounced in THE CLIPPER, when it proved to have been written by MR. H. C. DODGE, of New York. Nor is he the original "OLE OLESON," nor the originator of Swedish comedy as he announces on his letterheads.

All I have herein stated will be proven at the proper time in a court of justice, where Mr. Armstrong will be compelled to speak the truth.

I thank managers of Washburne (Wis.), Bayfield, Ashland, Ironwood, Mich., who, after examining both programmes, synopsis, etc., assured me protection. Also Mr. Chittendon, of Hurley, who canceled "Pete Peterson," and I am sure all reputable managers will see the necessity of following their example, and thereby avoid trouble.

4 SCHRODE BROTHERS, 4

GEORGE, JOHN, HENRY and WILLIAM SCHRODE, THE CLOWN, ACROBATS AND PANTOMIMISTS, Re-engaged with the HANLON BROTHERS' "SUPERBA" CO. for the Season of 1892-3. Read what the Press of the principal cities have to say about us!

THE ACROBATS.

The Schrode Brothers, whom the Hanlons have engaged to play the leading parts, have all the tricks of the ancient pantomime masters at their toes' ends, and in addition they have brought their limbs up to date in a most effectual way.—NEW YORK SUN, Nov. 17, 1891.

The features of the Schrode Brothers, acrobats, are all the more attractive because performed with an apparent absence of effort.—PHILADELPHIA PRESS, Dec. 22, 1891.

The Schrode Brothers, a wonderful quartet of gymnasts, were, of course, the life of the pantomime.—BALTIMORE AMERICAN, Jan. 5, 1892.

The Schrode Brothers, the most daring of acrobats, perform a number of thrilling feats.—CLEVELAND TOWN TOPICS, Oct. 31, 1891.

The Schrode Brothers, acrobats, gave a very fine exhibition.—DENVER REPUBLICAN, Feb. 9, 1892.

The daring acrobatic feats of the four Schrode Brothers are clever, WHO QUITE OUT DO THE CRAGG FAMILY, seen here some time back.—LOS ANGELES TIMES, March 9, 1892.

The acrobatic performances of the Schrode Brothers were exceptionally fine and WELL WORTH THE PRICE OF ADMISSION.—Duluth, April 14, 1892.

The Schrode Brothers give an acrobatic turn which for neatness and daring excells anything seen for a very long time. There was not a skip or a miss in their whole act, but every movement was graceful and as easy as though the performers were walking, instead of performing difficult acrobatic figures.—EVENING BULLETIN, San Francisco, Feb. 23, 1892.

The acrobatic feats of the Schrode Brothers are better than anything of the sort that has been seen here for a long time.—EXAMINER, San Francisco, Feb. 23, 1892.

One of the most extraordinary features of "Superba" is the acrobatic performance by the Four Schrode Brothers. At no time have we witnessed a performance so unhesitatingly unstudied, so flexible, easy and graceful, even in the most difficult movements, as by this quartet of limber limbed humans. Each seems a part of the other.—MORNING CALL, San Francisco, March 3, 1892.

THE CLOWN.

If the shades of George Fox and one of the Ravels were hovering about the flies of the Columbus Theatre they must have slapped each other on the back in self congratulation as they witnessed the performance of "Superba" last night and heard the shouts of laughter that Mr. William Schrode evoked from all parts of the house.—NEW YORK SUN, Nov. 17, 1891.

William Schrode made a comical Pierrot, and his pantomime was easily understood by the audience. He is agile and a good gymnast.—BOSTON GLOBE, Nov. 24, 1891.

The Pierrot of William Schrode, the only pantomime character in the piece, was very good. He is a worthy follower of the younger Hanlons in this line.—PHILADELPHIA PRESS, Dec. 22, 1891.

William Schrode kept the house in great good humor. Mr. Schrode has a keen idea of pantomimic art, so that there never was any doubt as to what his gestures and facial expressions meant.—PHILADELPHIA LEDGER, Dec. 23, 1891.

The main work, however, devolved upon William Schrode, one of the remarkable Schrode Brothers, the splendid acrobats of the company. His Pierrot, most arduous in its requirements, was a finished piece of pantomime.—TRIBUNE, Salt Lake, Feb. 18, 1892.

William Schrode, the Clown, is not wearisome, as some are. His business is never over done, and what he does he does thoroughly well. HE IS NOT SILLY, HE IS AMUSING.—CHRONICLE, San Francisco, Feb. 28, 1892.

One would suppose after seeing the first act that the clown had exhausted his plethora of tricks; but such is not the case. Each succeeding act has its store of illusions and funny acts by the clown, who is an adept at the business and as hard a worker as we have seen on the stage for many a day. He plays under the name of WILLIAM SCHRODE, and HE IS A GENIUS.—EXAMINER, San Francisco, Feb. 23, 1892.

THE NEWEST PLAYS.

"The American Minister."

This four act comedy drama, written by Paul M. Potter to the order of W. H. Crane, was performed for the first time on any stage April 4, at the Star Theatre, this city. The plot is clever, and the action is swift and rarely flags. The figures and incidents are manipulated deftly, and, for an initial performance, the play was performed with great dexterity and creditable smoothness. The first scene discloses the arrival of the new Minister, who, in his breezy way, tells his predecessor, Dr. Pierre Carondelet, his impressions of Rome. He finds that St. Denis has more bones than a boarding house chicken, and thinks that Italy is a country with a beautiful future behind her. As for art, he has consulted a friend in the tea business, and knows all about it. He carries a hand book, "Italian At a Glance," and when he announced his instructions to his confreres, he says, among other things, that he was directed to protest against the future manufacture of hand organs for the murdering of the United States. The plot is quickly exposed. The Minister's predecessor had lost 80,000 francs by gambling, and, as the United States and Italy are on the verge of war (the time being April, 1891), a Machiavellian Italian Minister persuades him to steal a telegraphic cypher from Washington to Lawton, and recoup himself on the Bourse. Circumstances seem to point to the Minister's son as the thief. An Italian Princess in love with the Minister, and a member of the Mafia; a Chicago detective, who represents himself as a Commissioner of the World's Fair; foreign diplomats and numerous women fill the other roles. The second act seems to incriminate young Lawton, and, in the third, the Minister recovers the cypher from the Princess. A reception is held at the Royal Palace, and the Minister tells the assembled diplomats his views on the threatened war, and incidentally announces that we have a fine army, even if we have a surplus of colonels. When the Machiavellian Italian attempts to wrest the dispatch from the Princess, after she has paid the retiring Minister his stipulated 100,000 francs, Lawton rescues her and scoffs at the Mafia, because, as he says, he has been measured for a funeral before.

"A Tin Napoleon."

The first production in America of "A Tin Napoleon" occurred at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, April 18. The play is adapted from the French of "The Adventures of Mr. Martin" and "Le Voyage a Dieppe," by Chas. T. Vincent, and is given as two acts of a farce comedy and one of spectacle. A diverting plot pervades the piece, but it is too thin for a three act play. "A Tin Napoleon" concerns the fortunes of Edward Leo, a prosperous dry goods merchant of Bordeaux, who, upon receiving news from Africa that his brother, an explorer, has been made king of a principality, swells with importance as the heir apparent, and, becoming possessed of delusions of grandeur, resolves to close his shop and go to Africa, there to live in state, as befitted the heir to a throne. Wally Mount a showman, and friend to Oscar, who is betrothed to Ruth, Leo's daughter, in an effort to rid the merchant of his hallucinations, has him conveyed to the forest of St. Germaine, which is represented as being in Africa, and the members of a theatrical company disguise themselves as savages, dusky courtiers, etc., and pay allegiance to Prince Leo.

"The Councilor's Wife."

Jerome K. Jerome's new comedy, "The Councilor's Wife," received its first presentation on any stage at the Boston Museum, April 18. Chas. Frohman owns it for this city and other territory. The councilor and his wife are the chief personages. The councilor is a pious hypocrite—the quintessence of respectability to all outward showing; in fact, a swindler and a bigamist. The wife—and the situation is richly humorous—is a former variety actress, who has married the councilor in order to escape Bohemian associates, and to become respectable. The councilor, in an incautious moment, gets into a scrape, and a "spicy" account of the affair, with his picture, is put into a paper whose business is the reporting of police news. The picture leads to his discovery by his first wife, whom he had abandoned, and to her denunciation of him as a bigamist. An artist, an ex-actor and a novelist are instrumental in bringing him face to face with his former wife, in convicting him of his frauds, and in making him disgorge at least a part of his ill-gotten gains.

DEATHS IN THE PROFESSION.

J. A. J. NEAFIE, one of the oldest actors on the American stage, died on Sunday, April 1, at his residence, in Eighty-third Street, this city. Andrew Jackson Neafie was born in New York in November, 1815, and worked at his trade as a carpenter until 1839, when, paying $300 for the privilege, he played Othello at the old Park Theatre, and was so successful that he was enabled to secure an engagement as star at that house. Later he fulfilled an engagement at Niblo's Garden, where Edwin Forrest saw him and became interested in him. Through his influence Mr. Neafie was engaged at the National Theatre, in Philadelphia, making his debut there on Aug. 31, 1840, as Falland in "The Rivals." In 1861 he visited England, and was well received. About 1867 he retired from the stage forever, and had since been living quietly and almost forgotten in this city. Mr. Neafie was a tall, powerful man, with a sonorous voice and great fire in his declamation.

FRANCESCO LAMPERTI, the famous singing master, has just died at Milan. Francesco Lamperti was born at Savona in 1813. His father was a lawyer and his mother a prima donna of some repute. He showed talent for music when a child, and was placed under the instruction of Pietro Rizzi, of Lodi. He entered the Milan Conservatory in 1830, and studied the piano and harmony under Sommeruga d'Appino and Pietro Ray. He subsequently began to devote himself to the teaching of singing, and became associated with Masini in the direction of the Teatro Filodramatico at Lodi. In 1850 he was appointed Professor of Singing at the Conservatory of Milan, where he taught Angelica Moro, Paganini, Galli, Risarelli, Angeleri and Peralta, and had as private pupils Albani, Cammanini, Stoltz, Waldemann, Aldighieri, Vialletti, Derevis, Mariani, Palermi and Everardi. After filling the office of professor at the Conservatory for twenty-five years he retired on a pension in 1875, and thereafter devoted himself entirely to private pupils. Lamperti was a Commendatore and Cavaliere of the Order of the Crown of Italy, and a member of many foreign academies and orders. He was the author of several series of vocal studies, and of a treatise on the art of singing, published by the Ricordis and translated into English by one of his pupils.

ALFRED GREVIN, a noted designer of theatrical costumes, died at Paris, Fr., May 5. He was born at Epineuil, near Tonnerre, Department of Yonne, in January, 1827. M. Grevin was one of the four great caricaturists of the nineteenth century—Gavarni, Daumier, Cham and Grevin. In the afternoons he attended to his costume work at the theatres, occasionally visiting eccentric cafes and balls, making sketches. All the queer things he heard he jotted down in his album, and with these for inspiration he drew his compositions. His earlier drawings were full of detail of line and color, shading and cross hatching, but in later years he made a drawing with one line which proved to be an eloquent outline. Mr. Grevin collected his legendes first, and made his drawings afterwards. He went to Paris from Burgundy at the age of twenty, and while employed in a railroad office devoted his leisure time to the development of his genius as a caricaturist, in which he won eminent success.

THE French musical world has suffered a loss in the death of M. Guiraud, who passed away at Paris, May 6. He was born at Orleans in, 1837, his father being a French professor in that city. Though he was never very successful as an operatic composer, M. Guiraud was considered one of the greatest authorities on music in France. He had completed several operas, and he has left not a few unfinished. At the time of his death he was engaged on "Kassia," a posthumous opera by Delibes. As a musician he was noted for his exquisite taste, and in the artistic world of Paris he was highly esteemed.

THOMAS L. BRADY died at his home, New Haven, Ct., April 21, after a four years' illness, of consumption. He was a black face song and dance performer, and had traveled with nearly all the big minstrels. He made his professional debut in 1880 with Dupree & Benedict's Minstrels, at Hudson, N. Y., remaining with them two seasons. He next joined Hi Henry's Minstrels for two seasons, and then joined J. H. Haverly's Minstrels, where he remained one season. He next joined J. J. Dowling and Sadie Hasson in "Nobody's Claim" and "Never Say Die," creating the dude part in "Never Say Die," which won a reputation for him. He remained with Dowling and Hasson two seasons, and then went back into the minstrel business. In 1888 he joined the Haverly-Cleveland Minstrels at Buffalo, N. Y., and went to California with them. He closed with that show in May, 1889, at the Lee Avenue Opera House, at Williamsburg, N. Y. That was his last engagement. He leaves a mother, two sisters and two brothers.

J. S. TOWNSEND, stepfather of Tom Harper, and a retired actor, died at his residence, 120 West Washington Street, Chicago, April 28, aged sixty-seven. His wife, Margaret Townsend, died at the same place April 4.

WM. E. HINCHCLIFFE, solo cornetist of Voss's Military Band, died at his residence, Clinton Avenue, Newark, N. J., May 1. The deceased was a member of Haverly's New Mastodon Minstrels, and leader for F. F. Proctor and G. B. Bunnell, at New Haven, Ct.

TOM PLEON.—It is with regret that we learn of the death of the English comedian, Tom Pleon, which took place at London, Eng., April 26, from sudden failure of the heart. The deceased comedian had felt very unwell towards the close of the pantomime at Drury Lane, but struggled bravely on, thinking that the indisposition would pass off, and that a rest would restore him. He was figuratively speaking, cradled in the profession, making his first appearance at Drury Lane Theatre, at the age of three. He played miniature clown, singing Grimaldi's songs, "Hot Codlins" and "Tippertiwichet," and appeared at the same theatre as the Duke of York, in a revival, under the Chatterton management of "Richard III." with Barry Sullivan in the title role. He also performed with the Moore & Burgess' Minstrels as Piccaninny Tommy, afterwards appearing with Prof. Anderson and Fred Maccabe. He next went to the music halls with his mother, Mme. Pleon, under the sobriquet of Gen. Tom Dot, his brother, Harry, being known as Maj. Mite. When both grew up to man's estate, they were known as the Brothers Pleon, Ethiopian comedians and banjo performers. They, however, found it to their mutual advantage to separate, and we next hear of Tom with white face, playing banjos of various sizes, and varying his performance with acrobatic dancing. A few years since he took part in the successful sketch, "The Organ Crank," produced by the Wood Family. He made his first appearance under Sir Aug. Harris in Drury Lane pantomime in 1887, and played in 1888 Friar Tuck in "Babes in the Wood," his success therein getting him a re-engagement for the Christmas season of 1889—when he was enrolled in the pantomimic corps as the Cabman in "Jack in the Beanstalk"—and again in 1890, and during the present season. Had he lived he would have been seen at Old Drury next Christmas. Tom Pleon, whose real name was Fred Pleon Whitehouse, leaves a widow and child to mourn his loss. He was thirty years old. The funeral took place from the house of his brother. The coffin was completely covered with wreaths, crosses, etc., and the room where the remains were waiting had the appearance more of a conservatory than a death chamber.

EDOUARD LALO, author of "Namouna" and "Le Roi d'Ys," died at Paris, April 23. He had been suffering for a long time, but such an abrupt ending of his illness was quite unexpected. French music loses in the deceased composer a performer of great merit, and of exceptional modesty. Born at Lille in 1830, Lalo studied at the Conservatoire of that city, became an accomplished violinist, and, while still quite young, composed several pieces of instrumental music. He went to Paris, and during several years performed at high class concerts. An opera called "Fiesque," which he wrote for a competition at the Theatre-Lyrique in 1867, was placed third on a list of fifty works, but, despite repeated efforts, he could never succeed in bringing it out, either in France or in Belgium, a disappointment that weighed much upon his mind. In fact, few modern musicians suffered more from the indifference of his countrymen than Lalo, and although his "Namouna" was admired at the Opera in 1882, the public showed no favor towards it, and until "Le Roi d'Ys" was produced at the Opera-Comique in 1888, his name was unknown to fame. That work brought him glory and is now recognized as one of the finest of modern lyric dramas.

TOM CARLTON, who for many years was the popular manager of the Royal, Holborn, died at Bournemouth April 27. Mr. Carlton has been connected with the Royal as chairman of the old hall and acting manager and manager of the new. He was, just before his decease, manager of the Pavilion, Swansea, where he succeeded Frank Hall, who was also, a few years ago, associated with the Royal. The deceased, who was forty-five, was buried at the Necropolis, Brookwood, May 4. No relatives of the deceased being discoverable, the committee of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund granted a sum of five pounds to assist in defraying the expenses of the funeral.

DAISY VORCE, aged nineteen, lately employed at the Theatre Comique, at St. Louis, Mo., took a dose of poison May 2, and died 3 at the City Hospital. She was a singer and dancer, and worked with her husband, Joseph Vorce. Her maiden name was Daisy Stephens, and she was born at St. Louis. She had been in the profession some six seasons, and was married about three years ago. Her funeral, which took place 4, was well attended, and her body was buried at Bellefontaine Cemetery.

CHARLES MCSHANE, the oldest of two brothers who had traveled all over the country posing as the midget boxers, is dead at Buffalo, N. Y. He died in the General Hospital, and his funeral took place at the Alhambra Theatre, where he had been working all Winter.

JOSEPH TEMELMAN, better known in museum circles as the "Man Fish," and lately stage manager at Newman's Central Theatre, died May 5 at St. Francis Hospital, Jersey City, N. J., of a complication of diseases. His remains were shipped to his home at Richmond, Ind., May 7.

JOHN M. ST. CYR, a Winnebago Indian guide, government interpreter and scout, and a brother of Ed. St. Cyr (Chief War Eagle), died suddenly in the railroad depot at Ripon, Wis., May 5. The St. Cyrs had been engaged for several years in supplying Healy & Bigelow with Indians for their medicine companies.

THE RING.

Plimmer Does for Kelly.

Tommy Kelly, the "Harlem Spider," was beaten with apparent ease, May 9, by Billy Plimmer, of England. They fought for a purse of $2,000 and an outside bet of $1,000 before the Coney Island Athletic Club, in the presence of about fifteen hundred spectators. It was an international affair, but a battle in which the foreigner had everything his own way. Kelly was "not in it," and plainly showed that he was a whipped man in the first round, when he clung to Plimmer's neck to avoid punishment, and during the subsequent rounds it was evident to all present that he was no match for his foreign rival. Al. Smith was the club's representative as referee, and Bob Stoll acted as time keeper. Plimmer was the first to enter the ring, attended by Charley Norton and Benny Murphy, and was followed by Kelly, who was seconded by Brooklyn Jimmy Carroll and Jack Quinn. Charley Johnston held the watch for Plimmer and Jerry Farley officiated in a like capacity for Kelly.

Round 1: Both sprang to the centre of the ring at the call of time and after numerous feints Plimmer got in his left on Kelly's body; then followed an exchange of harmless blows and a clinch. Plimmer proved himself a clever ducker and avoided Kelly's blows, which lacked judgment. There were several sharp engagements, in one of which Plimmer gained first blood, getting in a good blow on Kelly's proboscis.

2. Kelly started the ball rolling, but was very inaccurate as to landing, while Plimmer got in two telling blows on Kelly's wind. Sparring of an ineffective kind followed. Kelly got in a good blow on Billy's eye, but received a hard knock on the jaw for his trouble.

3. Plimmer assumed a confident air, and Kelly was somewhat rattled, although he forced the fighting; after several exchanges he adopted the "Mitchell sprint," and rush in and land and get away, but his blows lacked strength. Plimmer was as cool as a cucumber, and only hit when he knew he would land, and was very careful in ducking Kelly's wild swinging blows.

4. Kelly still sprinting until cornered by Plimmer, who got in several hard raps on Kelly's ribs and wind, and closed with the odds at $500 to $100 in his favor.

5. Kelly made a wonderful rally in this round, smashing Plimmer right and left, getting in telling blows on the neck and ears, but his steam was spent and Plimmer took his punishment like a man, although he got in several hard blows and had Kelly bleeding like a pig before the gong sounded, and it was evident he was a whipped man.

6. Kelly was to all intents and purposes "out of it," and Plimmer started in to give him his medicine, landing on his jaw, stomach and ribs at random, and getting away without any marks. Kelly clinched to save punishment, but learned to his sorrow that Plimmer was proficient at in-fighting. Plimmer gave him a rap over the heart that made his teeth rattle, and Kelly presented a sickening spectacle, as he was covered with gore.

7. Kelly gamely came to time, but saw he had no chance of winning. He tried to land three right handers but was met by Plimmer's repeated jabs in his wind with his left, hardly using his right in this round. Kelly's underpinnings were sadly out of order, and looked as though they needed bracing up. The gong saved him from being knocked out in this round.

8. Kelly was plainly "out of the race" although he led at his man, and finally clinched to avoid punishment. Plimmer had both hands disengaged and played sad havoc with Tommy's jaw, and got in several half uppercuts which did considerable damage, flooring Kelly, who barely escaped being counted out in this round. Through his seconds worked like beavers to pull him out in time.

9. Kelly sailed in on Plimmer, but his ineffectual blows fairly threw him off his pins and he fell into Plimmer's arms, who shoved him away as though he were a suckling babe, showering blows at him at random.

10. The jab Plimmer got in on Kelly in the preceding round evidently did its work, for he was so groggy he fairly reeled, although he took his gruel like a man. Plimmer shot out his left with a bang and Kelly's star went out.

Boxing for Cash.

The Manhattan Athletic Club held their last boxing entertainment of the season May 7, and it was rather interesting. The opening event was between Billy Murray and Jack Lynch. It was an interesting bout and, while Murray got a stiff punching, he took his medicine well, and was whipped on clean left handed hitting. The next pair were William Wallace and Billy Vernon. Wallace was a big fellow, but was beaten clearly by the bricklayer, who pounded him all over the stage for six rounds, and won with apparent ease. George Reynolds and Martin Snee followed. The former had the advantage, and won with ease. The next event resulted in a clean knockout, and Paddy Smith was the victim. His opponent was Tom Kelly of West Hoboken, a vicious swinger, and it did not take Smith long to find out that fact, as he got a left hander on the point of the jaw which knocked him down, and when he got up he was forced hard by Kelly, who fought him to a stand still. The referee was obliged to stop the fight in order to prevent a knockout. Time, 2m. 15s. George Strong and Joe Smith had a hard slugging match, which resulted in a victory for Strong.

ARTHUR VALENTINE AND ARTHUR CALLAN were opponents in a fight for $125 a side, limited to twenty rounds, and they met at the hall of the Goodwin Club, London, Eng., April 28. The full number of rounds stipulated for in the agreement were not required to reach a decision, as Callan had all the pepper he was in need of at the end of the sixteenth, when he was unable to respond after receiving a smash on the point of the jaw that laid him low. He was not insensible, but was too exhausted to rise from the floor in the alloted time.

THE cable is responsible for the announcement that the coming engagement between Peter Jackson and Paddy Slavin, arranged to take place before the National Sporting Club in London, Eng., during "Darby" week, will be limited to twenty rounds, instead of to a finish, as was previously understood. The exact date was not to be fixed till after the arrival of Charley Davies, Jackson's friend and backer, now nearing the shores of the land of Bass ale and roast beef.

JACK DAVIS, hailing from Portland, Ore., administered a chastisement to "Gipsey" Gleason, from England, at Burlington, Ia., on May 7. They fought with gloves for $200 a side and a purse of $500, and nineteen rounds were contested, in the latter of which Davis caught his adversary a rasper on the mouth in the shape of an uppercut that brought plenty of blood and rendered the recipient deaf to the call of time. The referee accordingly gave the battle to Davis.

JIM HALL, JOE CHOYNSKI and their manager, Charles E. Davies, sailed from this port for Liverpool on board the White Star liner Germanic, on Wednesday, May 4. Their stay abroad will probably last three months, and it is possible, although not probable, that during the time both boxers may try their luck in contests with British members of the ilk.

DURING the second round of a boxing match between a couple of colored men named W. M. Nelson and Jim Sellars, the latter broke his right arm in the second round. The accident was the result of an attempt to land a round handed blow, which took effect on the top of the stone like caput of Sellars as the latter dodged the intended visitation.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN is in Philadelphia this week, filling an engagement with his company. Next Monday evening, May 18, he will appear at one of the Brooklyn theatres, where he will be seen every night, so that his troops of admirers will have an opportunity to greet him again, and incidentally have a chance to help to swell the box office takings.

JIMMY CARNEY, the English lightweight champion, recently fell from a horse he was riding and had his collar bone broken. The injury will compel Jimmy to remain housed, and thus prevent him from witnessing a number of interesting events now on the carpet.

HENRY GRAVES and John Rogan fought to a finish, Queensbury rules, at East Rock Park, near New Haven, Ct., May 3. The former had everything pretty much his own way from start to finish. Rogan made a game fight, even though he was knocked out in the fourth round.

A FIGHT has been arranged in New Orleans between Billy Dacey and Andy Bowen to battle at 133lb. Dacey is probably the cleverest man of the two, but Bowen may be the better stayer. Take your pick.

GEORGE REYNOLDS and Jack Thornton started in for a finish fight in a boat house at Astoria, L. I., on Monday night, May 2, but at the beginning of the fifth round Reynolds gave up, as he was not over pleased with the treatment he was receiving.

A DRAW was fought Sunday night, May 1, at Albuquerque, N. M., between Jim Lawson, of Australia, and Kid Dawson, of San Francisco. It lasted seven rounds.

FRED JOHNSTON, the English featherweight, has received his expense money, and will sail for this city on Wednesday, May 10, on the Majestic.

Pigeons Fly for The Clipper Prize.

On May 1 the first trial was made for THE CLIPPER, Outing and other prizes in which the competition opened with the day. The entry was three birds owned by Daniel Connolly, of Boston. The distance was about 174.6 miles. The start was at 9.15 A. M., standard, from Madison Square Garden tower, this city, and at 12.15 A. M., standard, according to the advisory telegram from the owner, the bird Forty Minutes was at home. Time was taken by a watcher at the loft, and his report was approved by the owner. But, through some oversight, the report was not mailed until the next day, and the material proof, the countermarking band, was not delivered at all. Computed from local time, the speed at these figures would be 1,600 yards per minute; the mile in about 66s.

The proofs furnished were forwarded to the secretary of the Council of Pigeon Flyers, and at a meeting of the Board of Control, held on Sunday at Providence, R. I., they were decided to be insufficient. There is no one but that believes that the journey was made as claimed, but the proofs, as furnished, do not show it. Forty Minutes tried for THE CLIPPER prize of 1891, once in October and twice in November. He is of the O'Toole strain, and wears the registered band of 1889. The next date named for a trial for the prizes is by the birds of the Milton (Mass.) Club, from North Adams, 100 miles, on Saturday, May 14.

EDWIN GORDON LAWRENCE - - Director

The Summer term of this highly successful SCHOOL OF DRAMATIC ART will commence JUNE 1 and CLOSE AUG. 31. Fully equipped stage, enabling students to gain a thorough and practical knowledge. A three (3) months' term is all that is necessary to enable a student who is possessed of intelligence and perseverance to go upon the professional stage. The charges for the full term are $100, and this entitles students to eight lessons per week for three months. Those who join June 1 will be ready for the Fall and Winter season. Circular, giving full particulars, may be had on application.

Press Notices.

FROM N. Y. CLIPPER, Jan. 24, 1891.—The Lawrence School of Acting appears to have met with more than ordinary success. Mr. Lawrence is an actor of experience and standing, and his pupils are sure to profit by his advice.

NEW YORK DRAMATIC TIMES, Dec. 19, 1891.—Mr. Edwin Gordon Lawrence has been a teacher for sixteen years. His experience has made him thoroughly posted in stage matters, and there is no better dramatic teacher in New York today than Mr. Lawrence, nor is there a school of acting better managed.

NEW YORK DRAMATIC NEWS, May 30, 1891.—The Lawrence School of Acting is one of the oldest and most successful institutions of its kind in the country.

N. B.—Students of this School were placed in the following well known companies for the past season: James O'Neill's, "The Burglar," Thos. W. Keene's, "The World Against Her," Eva Mountford's, "The Runaway Wife," etc. Some good openings for next season.

Chevalier CLIQUOT,

THE PUZZLE TO THE MEDICAL PROFESSION.

He is Assisted by MLLE. CLIQUOT.

Been in this country since last February and played with the following first class managers, viz.: KEITH'S, Boston; ROBINSON'S, Buffalo; MOORE'S, Detroit. Now with KOHL & MIDDLETON'S, Chicago, and their opinion is that this act is

The Greatest in Existence.

THE FOLLOWING RCCOMMENDATIONS ARE A PROOF OF SUCCESS:

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN—F. CLIQUOT has played for us two weeks and we re-engaged him for the third week (3). HIS ACT IS THE BEST OF ITS KIND, and we cheerfully recommend him to other managers. Respectfully, KOHL & MIDDLETON, Chicago, May 6, 1892.

TO MANAGERS—I take pleasure in endorsing the work of CLIQUOT, the Sword Swallower. It is without a doubt the strongest act of its kind before the public. His work is marvelous and not to be compared to ordinary sword swallowing act. Respectfully, J. H. MOORE, Detroit, April 25, 1892.
